H. P. DAVISON DENIES GERMAN FALSEHOOD

POINTS LESSON IN TREATIES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 6.—H. P. Davison, who is in London and will soon leave on his return home from a month's inspection of the American Red Cross work on the Continent, when told by THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that the German newspapers were alleging that he had ordered the American Red Cross not to aid any German wounded, smiled and said:

"I never expected any appreciation from the Germans, but I did think they might still have some slight regard for the truth. As a matter of fact, we already have some German wounded under treatment in American hospitals in France."

Assails German Treaties.

LONDON, May 6. (Associated Press.)—H. P. Davison, Chairman of the American Red Cross War Council, who will return to the United States almost immediately to superintend the second Red Cross drive to raise another $100,000,000 in a single week, when asked as to the impressions he had gained from his trip of inspection, said to The Associated Press:

"Any attempt to describe the situation in Europe since March 21 is almost futile, if not impossible. Only those who have been in France since the beginning of the present offensive and have seen conditions there for themselves can have any appreciation of the situation there."

The correspondent asked him what had most impressed him, and Mr. Davison replied that he had been most impressed by the apparent result of the Brest-Litovsk treaty, which, together with the treaty with Rumania, has eliminated from the minds of the allied peoples in Europe any question of a peace by negotiation.

Mr. Davison spoke very confidently of the success of the coming Red Cross campaign and remarked that the American people would not only willingly contribute, but would demand that every assistance and comfort be given to the American boys in the trenches.

AGREE TO ARBITRATE STRIKE OF BAKERS

GLUT OF CORNMEAL HERE

Food Board Urges Housewives to Employ It More Largely and Prevent Great Loss.

The second conference of representatives of the United States Department of Labor, the New York State Industrial Commission, and the State Food Commission, and the Jewish Boss Bakers and labor unions resulted yesterday in an agreement to submit to mediation the differences which caused 1,500 Jewish bakers in the city to go out on strike on May 1. Most of the baker unions involved demand a $10 increase in pay over the minimum of 1917, and while many boss bakers have voluntarily granted the increase, the employers as a whole are inclined to oppose the demand of the unions.

Pending the settlement of the dispute the boss bakers have offered to raise the scale $6 provided the employes go back to work, but the employes thus far have assumed an "all or nothing" attitude, which yesterday's conference failed to change, with the exception of the general willingness expressed by them to submit the matter to mediation. Clifton Reeves, representing the United States Department of Labor, will act as Chairman of the Mediation Board, and with him will serve Colonel Michael J. Regan of the State Industrial Commission, and F. W. Fiske, representing John Mitchell, President of the State Food Commission.

"The Federal Food Board," Mr. Fiske said yesterday, "in its endeavors to settle these differences, in co-operation with other Federal and State authorities, is considering the consumers' interests as well as the interests of baking employers and employes. Any adjustment of wages of the employes will be considered in so far as it may affect the price of bread, and no unnecessary burden will be placed on the consuming public."

Appealing for greater use of cornmeal, the Federal Food Board in an announcement yesterday said:

"New York, like other big centres, is overstocked with white and yellow cornmeal as the result of heavy purchases during the Winter and the delayed receipts due to traffic conditions. This meal will spoil in the coming hot weather, entailing a deplorable food loss, unless every consumer helps to prevent it. In New York alone, it is estimated, there are 50,000 barrels on hand, much of which is of the soft Southern variety, which will not remain sound during warm weather.

"Unless the Federal Food Board is able to create a big demand for cornmeal at once, there is likely to be a loss of half a million dollars' worth of this meal. Bakers and consumers generally can do no more patriotic service at this time than to confine themselves to the exclusive use of white and yellow cornmeal for the month of May. It is suggested that this character of meal take the place of the other substitutes of better keeping qualities, such as corn flour, rice flour and tapioca flour, in which the percentage of moisture is low and which will not suffer even during a long period of storage.

Celebrate 25th Anniversary.

The New York Section, Council of Jewish Women, held an all-day session at the Hotel Astor yesterday in celebration of its twenty-fifth anniversary and to discuss active co-operation in war relief work. At the morning session the officers were reelected for the ensuing year and Mrs. Alexander Kohut was elected Honorary President. Among the speakers in the afternoon were Mrs. Charles S. Whitman and Lady Borden, wife of the Prime Minister of Canada.

SUFFRAGE MOTION BEATEN IN SENATE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—An effort of woman suffrage advocates in the Senate today to bring about a vote on the Susan B. Anthony amendment to the Constitution failed by just one vote. Senator Jones of New Mexico, Chairman of the Woman Suffrage Committee, who attempted to obtain consent to the vote for Friday, announced that he would call up his motion again on that day.

Senator Jones, who brought up the resolution, move that it be made the special order for Friday. Vice President Marshall ruled that it would require a two-thirds vote of the Senators present to adopt the motion. On the roll call, the motion was lost by a vote of 40 to 21. The vote was as follows:

The suffrage advocates are sanguine that they will put the Susan B. Anthony amendment through. They are assured of the support of Senators Cummins, Fall, Frelinghuysen, Goff, Gore, Johnson of South Dakota, Kendrick, La Follette, McCumber, McNary, Myers, Nelson, Owen, Smith of Arizona, Smith of Michigan, Thomas, and Townsend, all of whom were absent today.

MERCURY CLIMBS TO 85.

Weather Becomes Summerlike—Heat Prostration in Brooklyn.

The temperature went up to 85 degrees yesterday, and a record was added to the list that is kept in the office of the Weather Bureau on top of the Whitehall Building, overlooking Battery Park. It was the warmest May 6 in the history of the bureau. The man who went to work without his overcoat was comfortable, and straw hats attracted not even passing attention. There was one case of heat prostration in Brooklyn. George Johnson, 50 years old, of 267 Eighteenth Street, was overcome in front of 235 Seventeenth Street. He was taken to the Holy Family Hospital.

The trend of the mercury was upward from dawn, and the highest point, 85 degrees, was reached at 2:30 P. M. The warmest previous May 6 was in 1896 when the temperature was 80 degrees. The highest recorded temperature for the month of May is 95 degrees. This record was made on May 31, 1895. There was a large percentage of humidity yesterday.

The forecast for today is for showers and cooler. Probably the same sort of weather will hold tomorrow.

CANADIANS GO OVER THE TOP

BACK AREAS ARE UNDER FIRE

LONDON, May 7.—"Our own and the enemy's artillery have been very active north of the Lys and have shown some activity on other parts of the battlefronts," says Field Marshal Haig's report from British Headquarters in France tonight. "There is nothing further to report."

The British made a successful raid last night near Neuville-Vitasse, southwest of Arras, capturing three machine guns and a few prisoners, and suffering only slight casualties, according to the day official report, which says:

We carried out a successful raid last night in the neighborhood of Neuville-Vitasse (on the front recently taken over by the Canadians), and captured a few prisoners and three machine-guns, with slight casualties to our troops. A raid attempted by the enemy near Boyelles was repulsed. There is nothing further to report.

The British official communication dealing with aviation issued tonight says:

Rain prevented flying Monday until 8 o'clock in the afternoon. After this some fighting occurred, in which six hostile machines were downed. One of our machines is missing.

After dark 100 bombs were dropped in the neighborhood of Bapaume. One machine did not return.

Terrific Two-Hour Bombardment.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, May 7 (via Ottawa).—There was a terrific bombardment of two hours' duration last night in connection with two raids. One was carried out by the enemy, and was unsuccessful. The other was by the Canadians, near Neuville-Vitasse, southwest of Arras. The Canadian raiders reported that many Germans were killed or wounded in hand-to-hand fighting, and that great destruction was wrought in the enemy's defense works.

Heavy rains are rendering the ground very bad for fighting. Undoubtedly the enemy is preparing for another violent blow, but the British are ready to meet it.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 7, (Associated Press.)—The artillerymen yesterday and last night continued to carry the weight of the conflict on their shoulders and had a busy time of it at numerous points along the battlefront.

There was no infantry action in this period, but from the furious gun duel waged south of Arras during the early part of the night one might easily have drawn the conclusion that a grand attack was in progress. It developed nothing bigger than raids, but the quick response of "heavies" along the line showed the tension that existed.

In the course of the evening the German essayed a raid near Boyelles, and about the same time the British, a few thousand yards northward, at Neuville-Vitasse, undertook an expedition into the enemy's lines. The first move sent colored flares whirling across the sky in an appeal for an artillery barrage. Within a few seconds the big guns of both sides all along this part of the front were pounding away like mad, and for several hours the duel continued with drumfire-like intensity.

Yesterday and last night the Germans kept up a considerable bombardment of the back areas in Flanders with high-velocity guns. The Allies, on the other hand, were busy hammering the enemy's roads and concentration points.

It rained again last night and this morning, making the Flanders battleground still more difficult for the enemy to work over in carrying out preparations for a further attack.

Capt. J. N. Hall, Noted American Airman, Lost After Thrilling Fight with the "Flying Circus"

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 7, (Associated Press.)—Flight Captain James Norman Hall, author and one of the best-known aviators in the American or allied armies, is missing, after a thrilling battle ten miles inside Germany opposite the Toul sector.

The fight was between three American planes and four German machines, which apparently belonged to the "flying circus."

Two German machines went to earth in the battle in a crippled condition.

Captain Hall's home is in Colfax, Iowa.

German machines were out in force, apparently hunting for the Americans, all day despite the bad weather. The Americans answered alarms throughout the day just as the Boche hoped they would. Once a Lieutenant answered an alarm for one enemy machine which was reported to be flying low. When he approached the enemy, five additional German machines dropped down from the clouds and attacked the American plane, which was driven by Lieutenant Cunningham, who put up a desperate fight till his machine gun jammed and he was forced to withdraw. The Germans did not follow him. Cunningham returned with ten bullet holes in his plane.

James Norman Hall joined the British Army in London in August, 1914. After a year and a half in the service he obtained his discharge and returned to the United States on private business. As soon as possible he returned to France and there enlisted in the Lafayette Escadrille. It was shortly after this that his book, "Kitchener's Mob," was published.

Hall was transferred to the American Army from the Lafayette Escadrille on Feb. 8, 1918, and on March 2 he brought down two German airplanes in a fight lasting but seven minutes. On March 13 he received the Distinguished Service Cross of the United States Army, and the same day he destroyed a German airplane and forced two others to land.

THE HAGUE, May 7.—It is perhaps a sign of the times that Maxmillan Harden's Zukunft is now printed in Roman type for the first time. In the current issue Harden treats of Czernin and Lichnowsky, exposing the former's insincerity, and defending the latter. He also publishes President Wilson's Baltimore speech, but with little comment.

"Wilson's speech, made in Baltimore April 6 expresses the same thoughts," he says, "although somewhat more forcibly stated, as his former speeches."

Die Zukunft has an article on Czernin's fall entitled "Tiger and Spider." "Did you ever see a cat spring at a fly?" Harden asks. "He licks his fur; the pupils of his eyes dilate; he shakes himself and springs. • • • Woe to him if he jumps on a nail, as some old short sighted cats do."

The writer proceeds to describe Clemenceau as the tiger and Czernin as the spider that spun its web and was caught in it. He remarks, however, that Germans may be glad of this. He says that there is something insincere and disappointing in Czernin, on whom all the people who still believed in humanity had pinned their hopes, "even though he made speeches in Vienna and Budapest last Summer which Wilson might have made. Democracy, self-determination, neither annexation nor indemnities, disarmament, a court of arbitration—everything which the beating heart of humanity desires. A little ambiguity, the attempt to mirror the spinning of fine threads between Vienna and Washington, made us hesitate even then. But the master of the White House smilingly ironed out the creases, and with him all persons of good will applauded the rosy passages in the speeches."

But, Harden continues, after the turn of the tide, after the advent of Lenine and the disarming of the Russian Army and the destruction of the Russian military spirit, Czernin went to Brest-Litovsk. "Those who took part in the forced 'peace' have, in my judgment and that of politicians known to me, been excommunicated from the sphere in which statesmen are allowed to breathe."

The Zukunft writer notes the rumors that Czernin knew of two royal indiscretions preserved at the Elyée Palace which might one day cause inconvenience to the Crown and the Empire, and so tried to lure the French out of their secrecy, using the moment of the German western offensive to insure Austria against fire. Harden professes not to credit this theory, but rather believes that the Minister wished to retire gracefully. He recalls how Czernin spoke to a delegation from the Vienna Municipal Council on April 2, saying: "All men on deck! Then we shall be victorious."

The same issue of Die Zukunft contains a long defense of Lichnowsky, remarking upon the injustice of the prosecution of that statesman and asking in what way he has harmed the Prussian Diet.

"I will swear," says Harden, "that there are dozens of men sitting there in these dark war hours who have written and said similar things in sharper and more bitter words," and he asks if they would meet the same fate if their papers were stolen and exposed in German's shop windows. "Many a trusted wife," he says, "must cry out in fear: 'But, you know, Ernst, Adolf, and Klaus have spoken more desperately.'"

The chief theme of Lichnowsky's memorandum, the editor of Die Zukunft asserts, was the danger to Germany.

VIENNA MANIFESTO THREATENS RISING

REPRESSION ANGERS SLAVS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 7.—A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Vevey, Switzerland, says that a Vienna Telegram to the Geneva papers states that the Vienna Sozial Demokratische Correspondenz contains the following threat:

"A committee of the Socialist Party and a committee of the German Socialist Deputies' Club have decided to publish a manifesto informing the workers that parliament has been adjourned owing to the inability of the Government to control the Assembly for fear of discussion of the Emperor's letter to Prince Sixtus and the motives for Count Czernin's resignation. If absolutism be re-established, the manifesto says, out of regard for Pan-Germanism, which is prolonging the war, if it be intended that Austria shall again be governed after the manner of Count Stuerghk the working classes will be forced to fight for their rights."

The manifesto ends with an exhortation to the workers to hold themselves ready to fight if that becomes necessary.

A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Berne says that the Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung laughs to scorn as childish and criminal the idea of the Austrian Government that it can soothe the passions of the mob and solve the crisis by the simple expedient of proroguing parliament until the storm has blown over. The journal appeals to the Government to see its error ere it is too late and warns Premier von Seidler and those behind him that he is on the brink of a precipice.

Vienna Threats Infuriate Slavs.

LONDON, May 7.—The latest developments in the Austrian situation apparently can be summarized as "concession to the Germans and threats to the southern Slavs, says a dispatch from The Hague to The Daily Mail.

"At least," continues the correspondent, "that is how the Czechs and the southern Slavs regard the decision of Premier von Seidler to introduce for Bohemia alone the rearrangement of the provincial administration which was promised nearly a year ago for all Austria.

"The Austrian Germans are pressing for a number of administrative changes which would give them influence over the machinery of the Government greatly in excess of their numerical proportion. The Czechs consider that the concession to the Germans is an obstacle put in the way of the realization of their own demand for the political independence of Bohemia, one and undivided.

"Von Seidler's announcement has infuriated the Czechs. The southern Slavs are furious over the proclamation that stern measures will be taken to repress disturbances in the south. The German reactionary press is urging the Government to quash the rebellious tendencies of the Czechs and the southern Slavs by force and to use the military to commandeer foodstuffs in the agricultural districts, pointing out that the Ukraine developments have shown that force alone overcomes obstacles when normal

Nicaragua Declares War on Germany and Her Allies

SAN JUAN DEL SUR, Nicaragua, May 7.—Nicaragua today declared war on Germany and her allies. The declaration of war was adopted by Congress at the suggestion of President Chamorro, with only four dissenting votes.

Congress also adopted a declaration of solidarity with the United States and the other American republics at war with Germany and Austria, and authorized the President to take steps for utilization to a full measure of the nation's forces in the war.

Nicaragua's action follows that of its neighbor, Guatemala, which last month declared war on Germany. Nicaragua severed relations with Germany a year ago.

Nicaragua is the twentieth nation which has declared war against Germany.

HOUSE DISCOVERS NO GRAFT

PRODUCTION SPEEDING UP

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The country seems to be in a fair way to learn the facts concerning the breakdown in the military aircraft production program. On the heels of the action taken by President Wilson yesterday in ordering the Attorney General to investigate charges of inefficiency and crookedness, with a view to criminal proceedings, if justified, the Senate Committee on Military Affairs decided today to conduct an investigation of its own. In announcing that decision to the Senate, Mr. Chamberlain, Chairman of the committee, gave notice that there would be no immunity baths, and that the committee "doesn't propose to indulge in any whitewashing, either."

This revival of effort to ascertain why the aircraft program is a failure is due in the main to the action of President Wilson in directing the Attorney General to make a judicial investigation. The President's course was based on charges made by Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, who conducted an inquiry into aircraft production with the President's sanction, and on the report submitted recently by a special investigating committee of lawyers appointed by the President, with H. Snowden Marshall of New York at its head.

Neither the Broglum nor the Marshall report has been made public. Mild criticism of this suppression was voiced in the Senate today. Letters that passed between the President and Senator Thomas of Colorado and the President and Mr. Borglum, some of them given to the press by the White House, and others furnished by Mr. Borglum, showed that the sculptor-investigator charged that his inquiry had developed that profiteering, graft, inefficiency, and pro-German hampering had been responsible for the aircraft failure.

Disbelieve Graft Charges.

While the Senate was debating the aircraft situation the House Committee on Military Affairs was engaged this afternoon in examining officials having to do with carrying out the plans that have gone awry. As a result of these examinations members of the committee expressed themselves as satisfied that the charges of graft and inefficiency made by Mr. Borglum were untrue. This opinion was not confined to Democratic members of the committee, but was freely given by Republican members, including severe critics of the Administration in its conduct of the war.

The House committee will not hold an investigation. After they had heard the aircraft officials, members said that while there had been delay, due to a variety of causes, they were satisfied that no criminality existed, and that the production program was at present in a satisfactory state. Statements of this character were made by both Republican and Democratic members of the House committee, while the opposite or critical view taken at the other end of the Capitol was shared by Senators of both political parties.

LONDON, May 7.—One explanation offered in circles well acquainted with the practical workings of British parliamentary institutions of how the Premier and Mr. Bonar Law came to make the statements questioned by General Maurice is that their statements were the mere slips of busy men discussing details of transactions concerning which they were compelled to trust subordinates for information.

It is stated that Maurice is the last man to fail to appreciate the effect, both national and personal, of his remarkable letter. He is not only a distinguished soldier, one of the best brains in the British Army, but also a highly cultivated writer, and noted for his keen, analytical mind. Bred up, moreover, in all the traditions of the British Army, he could never have broken with its custom of reticence on professional matters unless he were convinced that it was absolutely necessary.

He feared, it is suggested, that the army was growing indignant at what it considered was the attitude of the civil officials. It knows that it is facing the hardest task ever set to a British Army, and is performing it without regard to the cost to itself. It remembers certain passages in Lloyd George's Paris speech in which its efforts of last year were disparaged, and it is indignant that there should be any misconception of the conditions under which it is facing the present tremendous German offensive.

The friends of the Government are quite sure that the Ministers never intended to mislead the nation. Their surmise is that Bonar Law, knowing he was to be questioned about the extension of the British line, applied in the ordinary course for information from the War Office, and that the official who supplied it blundered. Consequently, the leader of the House of Commons, it is urged, is now pilloried for the mistake of his subordinate.

As for the statements of the Premier, it is pointed out that they were made in the course of a long speech introducing the Man Power bill, which, it is safe to assume, was not entirely of his own composition. It was noted at the time that he read from voluminous notes with which he had only partly familiarized himself, and it is urged that to hold him personally responsible for every word in the technical part of his address would be to require of him an accuracy of detail impossible in a man of his immense responsibilities. Moreover, even his best friends have never accused Lloyd George of pedantic exactness of mind.

Serious Menace to Cabinet.

Meanwhile, Maurice's letter has inevitably roused excited speculation as to its effect on the Government, and many believe that it will assuredly cause its fall. Coming as it does just as the Irish question is once more springing into prominence, it is doubly dangerous.

Many believe that there is no real majority for Irish conscription in the Commons, and that if the desire to keep the Government in were removed they might be defeated over that. Then, of course, they could appeal to the country if they wished, and would probably find that their Irish policy was far more popular in the constituencies than in the House itself.

They would have, therefore, a chance of remaining in power, but the old objections to general elections on a register nearly five years old remain in full force. The new register,

LONDON, Monday, May 6, (9:10 P. M.)—Major Gen. Sir Frederick Barton Maurice, who was Director of British Military Operations from 1915 until recently, when Brig. Gen. Delma Radcliffe succeeded him, has addressed a letter to The Daily Chronicle which is bound to create an extreme sensation. General Maurice challenges the accuracy of certain statements made in the House of Commons with regard to the military situation by both Premier Lloyd George and Andrew Bonar Law, and demands a Parliamentary investigation.

To the Editor of The Daily Chronicle:

My attention has been called to answers given in the House of Commons on April 23 by Mr. Bonar Law to questions put by R. C. Lambert, Colonel C. R. Burn, and W. M. R. Pringle as to the extension of the British front in France. Those answers contain certain misstatements which, in sum, give a totally misleading impression of what occurred. This is not the place to enter into a discussion as to all the facts, but Hansard's report concludes:

"Mr. Pringle—Was this matter entered into at the Versailles War Council at any time?

"Mr. Bonar Law—That particular question was not dealt with at all by the Versailles War Council."

I was at Versailles when the question was decided by the Supreme War Council, to whom it had been referred.

This is the latest of a series of misstatements which have been made recently in the House of Commons by the present Government. On April 9 the Prime Minister said:

"What was the position at the beginning of the battle? Notwithstanding the heavy casualties in 1917, the army in France was considerably stronger on Jan. 1, 1918, than on Jan. 1, 1917. (Hansard, Vol. 104, No. 24, P. 1328.)"

That statement implies that Sir Douglas Haig's fighting strength on the eve of the great battle which began March 21 had not been diminished. This is not correct. Again in the same speech the Prime Minister said:

"In Mesopotamia there is only one white division at all, and in Egypt and Palestine there are only three white divisions. The rest are either Indians or mixed with a very small proportion of British troops in these divisions. I am referring to infantry divisions, Ibid P. 1,327."

This is not correct.

Now, Sir, this letter is not the result of a military conspiracy. It has been seen by no soldier. I am by descent and conviction as sincere a democrat as the Prime Minister, and the last thing I desire is to see the Government of our country in the hands of soldiers.

My reasons for taking the very grave step of writing this letter are that the statements quoted above are known to a large number of soldiers to be incorrect, and this knowledge is breeding such a distrust of the Government as can only end in impairing the splendid morale of our troops at a time when everything possible should be done to raise it. I have therefore decided, fully realizing the consequences to myself, that my duty as a citizen must override my duty as a soldier, and I ask you to publish this letter in the hope that Parliament may see fit to order an investigation into the statements I have made. I am, Sir, yours, faithfully,

F. B. MAURICE, Major General.

Asquith Moves for Commons Inquiry; Fight on Issue to Come Tomorrow

Ex-Premier Blocks Cabinet's Program for Two Judges to Act as a "Court of Honor" on Maurice Charges—Disciplinary Action Against General Not to Wait.

LONDON, May 7.—Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who is spokesman for the War Cabinet in the House of Commons, since the Premier's duties in managing the war do not give him time for constant attendance in Parliament, told the House this afternoon that the Cabinet had decided to intrust to a commission of two Judges the investigation of the charges made by General Maurice.

Ex-Premier Asquith, who is always a supporter of Parliamentary traditions, led the faction in the House which insisted that the investigation be made by a Parliamentary Committee.

Mr. Bonar Law said that the Army Council was dealing with questions of discipline growing out of the letter written by General Maurice.

"General Maurice's letter," said Mr. Bonar Law, "raised two questions—the question of military discipline involved in writing such a letter, and the question of the veracity of Ministerial statements.

"As regards the first question, that is being dealt with by the Army Council in the ordinary way. As regards the second question, though it must be obvious to the House that the Government could not be carried on if an inquiry into the conduct of Ministers should be considered necessary whenever their action was challenged by a servant of the Government who has occupied a position of the highest confidence, it affects the honor of the Ministers, and it is proposed to invite two Judges to act as a Court of Honor to inquire into the charge of misstatements alleged to have been made by the Ministers, and to report as quickly as possible."

Mr. Bonar Law's statement gave rise to a lively series of questions, in reply to which the Chancellor said that, as secret documents would have to be gone into, it would be unsuitable to appoint a select committee from the House of Commons, but, he added, a day would be given for discussion after the Judges had reported. The disciplinary proceedings against General Maurice would not be suspended pending the finding of the court of inquiry.

"The Government have considered the best method of doing what they deem necessary to satisfy the House that we have not made misleading statements, and in our opinion that can best be done by the court suggested," said the Chancellor.

He thought that every one involved would be glad to place his information at the disposal of the Judges, and if the Judges were not given everything they wanted they would certainly let the Government know.

Admiral Sir Hedworth Meux said that the answer given by Mr. Bonar Law would be received with the greatest dissatisfaction in the army and navy.

"They are sick to death," he said, "with the way things are going on in the House of Commons."

Replying to further questions by Sir Edward Carson, Mr. Bonar Law said that the judges would decide whether the members and former members of the Cabinet should be called as witnesses and allowed to state what had transpired in the Cabinet. There should not be any feeling in the House that there was any desire to burke the examination of this question, and he was willing to allow Mr. Asquith to select two judges as proof of that.

Repeating that the disciplinary proceedings against General Maurice would not be suspended pending the inquiry, the Chancellor said:

"Even if every statement were true, discipline in the army would be impossible if such letters were permitted to be published."

Mr. Asquith said:

"This is a matter which we ought to have the opportunity of discussing in some form of a motion, and will the Government give us a day for that purpose?"

Mr. Bonar Law replied:

"Certainly, if you desire it. Am I to understand that the right honorable Member desires that we should not set up our court until the discussion takes place?"

"Certainly," said Mr. Asquith.

Mr. Asquith then gave notice that he would move for the apointment of a committee from the House to investigate the affair, instead of having the inquiry made by Judges. The motion will be debated on Thursday.

General Maurice has strong support from the part of the army behind him, how strong remains to be seen. Critics of the Premier have accused him of trying to shoulder upon the army what they allege to have been his mistakes, and a newspaper controversy has been going on since the beginning of the German offensive, which may be described as the army against the politicians, the gist of which has been that the War Cabinet has overridden its military advisers in matters of strategy, and especially in regard to the military demands for men on the western front. This quarrel has come to a crisis, which is now likely to be settled and the air cleared.

General Maurice is one of the foremost military authorities and military historians of the war. After giving out the famous "Where is Bilcher?" interview, he was relieved of his position as Director of Military Operations at the War Office, and it was understood that he was then being transferred to an important position in France. No notice of another assignment has been issued, however, and apparently none was made.

The debate on Thursday will hinge upon a motion by Mr. Asquith worded, "that a select committee of this house be appointed to inquire into the allegations or incorrectness in certain statements of Ministers of the Crown to this house contained in a letter of Major Gen. Maurice, late Director of Military Operations, published in the press of May 7."

OPPOSITION READY TO ACT

LONDON, Wednesday, May 8.—General Maurice's letter charging misstatements by Premier Lloyd George and Andrew Bonar Law regarding the army has raised in Parliament as serious an issue as any that has confronted the British people, speaking from a domestic point of view, since the war began. His direct challenge of the accuracy of Ministerial statements is regarded as a most serious indictment of the Government.

"Mr. Asquith will move a resolution which if carried will be a vote of censure on the Government. A division is absolutely certain. Your attendance is most specially requested."

The Daily Chronicle and Morning Post Parliamentary correspondents, writing in Wednesday morning's issues, both understand that the Government proposes to regard Mr. Asquith's motion for the appointment of a select committee of the House of Commons to inquire into General Maurice's allegations as a vote of censure. The decision on Thursday evening will, therefore, be of critical importance. A hostile majority would mean the downfall of the Government.

The Chronicle correspondent says that Thursday's division would be more menacing if the Irish Nationalist members were in attendance. There is no certainty that they will cross from Dublin to take part in it.

The Morning Post correspondent says that in the present critical stage of the war, a majority of the House would hesitate very much before taking a drastic step which would involve the resignation of the Government.

Asquith Ready to Take Office.

The Daily Telegraph says editorially:

"The opposition, led by Mr. Asquith, regards the time as ripe and is prepared to accept the responsibility of office. It is for the House to choose. An alternative Government exists. It would be a Government exclusively radical in its composition. Of that there is no doubt."

The Daily Telegraph's Parliamentary correspondent says this morning:

"The situation is regarded as one of the utmost gravity, as the Government have made it known that they will consider the adoption of Mr. Asquith's resolution as a vote of no confidence, and will as a matter of course promptly tender their resignation."

The same correspondent understands that the Premier in tomorrow's debate will make a full statement regarding the issues raised, and says:

"He will probably find it necessary to give certain facts and figures which, from a military point of view, it might be better not to discuss. These have been supplied to him as the head of the War Cabinet by responsible officials of the Army Council. The House may expect to have placed before it figures comparing our forces on the western front at the beginning of 1917 and the beginning of 1918, with a review of the relative strengths of the British and German armies at the commencement of the enemy's present offensive. Mr. Bonar Law may also make an explanation on his own behalf."

The Daily News lobby correspondent says this (Wednesday) morning:

have a complete answer to General Maurice. The Cabinet have also decided to abandon their offer of a tribunal of two judges to investigate the charges on the rather curious ground that Mr. Asquith preferred a select committee to a legal tribunal. There is now to be no inquiry. The Government say that the House of Commons tomorrow shall be the tribunal to decide on the question of the honor of the members of the Cabinet involved, and that the issue shall be taken at once."

The Daily News says of the program this morning:

"That course will have one high virtue. It means an instant verdict, and that is supremely desirable. This dark cloud must not hang over the nation at this time an hour longer than can be helped. It is not the morale of the army alone which is involved. The morale of the nation is equally at stake. The course of the Government for months past has created in the mind of the public a condition of disquiet and distrust which is a menace to the country. Incredulity, suspicion, and all the miasma of doubt and disbelief are the breath of our nostrils."

Cabinet Summons Supporters.

The Times Parliamentary correspondent this morning says:

"Mr. Asquith's motion will be resisted by the Government with all the strength at their command. The Ministry last night sent telegrams to all their supporters except those on active service, urgently summoning them to attend tomorrow's sitting. It is understood that the Prime Minister will be in his place prepared to make a full reply in open session to the specific points raised by General Maurice.

The Times says editorially:

"No Government can afford to ignore or merely to rebut such a challenge as is contained in General Maurice's letter. Unless and until it is impartially investigated and disproved it must profoundly shake public confidence in every statement made from the Treasury Bench."

The Daily Express lobby correspondent says:

"The Asquith Liberals told me frankly last night [Tuesday] that if the Government do not meet them and grant them a select committee they will go into the division lobby against the Ministry."

War Office Cited as Authority.

The Daily Mail's political correspondent says:

"It is understood that the information in Bonar Law's statement to which General Maurice takes exception was supplied direct from the War Office, and the figures given by Lloyd George in his two statements were furnished by the highest military authorities. The suggestion of wilful misrepresentation is considered by his supporters to be ridiculous. A section of the House, however, is determined to shake the confidence of the public in the Government, and they make no secret of their hope 'to turn Lloyd George out of Downing Street.' To judge by their language, one would imagine that the defeat of his Ministry would mean more to them than the defeat of the enemy.

"The supporters of the Government are not disturbed on a simple matter of fact. It ought to be easy to prove who has spoken the truth, and a select committee, which might continue its deliberations for weeks, seems a cumbersome tribunal to decide a point of honor, which an impartial Judge could settle in five minutes. If military secrets are to be disclosed, it is probable that the House will go into secret session."

The Chronicle's parliamentary correspondent writes this morning:

"The House of Commons, always jealous of its own rights, did not jump to Bonar Law's suggestion that the allegations contained in Maurice's letter should be inquired into by a court of two judges. In order to constitute such a court, legislation would be necessary, and the terms of the reference to it would have to be settled by the House, but the objection of the members is not to the time that would be occupied by these preliminaries. It is the traditional objection to the calling in of any external tribunal to pronounce on matters affecting the House of Commons.

"Last evening Mr. Asquith handed in a notice of a motion that a select committee of the House be appointed to inquire into Maurice's allegations. The motion will be discussed on Thursday. I understand the Government will oppose it and treat the matter as one of confidence. In short, they propose to regard Mr. Asquith's motion as a vote of censure. That being so, a division on Thursday evening will be one of critical importance. A hostile majority would mean the downfall of the Government.

"In Ministerial circles the situation is viewed with serene composure. I am informed the Government are confident of their ability to substantiate the accuracy of the statements that have been impugned. As to the statement about the fighting strength at Haig's disposal on March 21 it may well be that Maurice excluded certain factors that were included in the estimate made by the Prime Minister. Otherwise the variance is inexplicable. It is incredible that Lloyd George in a carefully prepared speech such as that of April 9 would make a misstatement on a vital matter that must have been for days previously engaging the attention of the War Cabinet. General Maurice and other officers of high rank were present at Cabinet councils where the facts and figures in regard to the strength of the British Army in France and Flanders were discussed."

CABINET'S DEFENSE AGAINST MAURICE

with the addition of millions of women and new voters, is not likely to be ready before November, and there will undoubtedly be a great effort made to prevent a political upheaval until that time.

Talk of Milner and Asquith.

This implies the possibility of a stop-gap Government to carry over, and one very interesting suggestion is a Milner-Asquith combination. Lord Milner has gathered considerable strength since he became a member of the War Cabinet, and this appointment as War Secretary was generally approved.

Strangely enough, considering that it has been considered correct to criticise him on the ground of his arbitrary methods, he has won great favor among the younger labor leaders. They regard him as a straightforward, able man who cares nothing for old politics and parties and is only out to win the war, but he is no parliamentarian, and a British Prime Minister must be a ready speaker and debater. It is, therefore, suggested that he might lead the Government from the peaceful atmosphere of the Lords, while Asquith, with his rare personal popularity, would lead the Commons.

Of course, there would be an outcry against Asquith's return to the Ministry from certain sections of the community, and, indeed, it is unlikely that he could again be Prime Minister during the war, but those who favor his inclusion in a possible Milner Cabinet hold that as the leader of the House of Commons his great powers of conciliation would be again turned to the service of the country, while Milner would, in himself, be quite strong enough to give sufficient decision and sternness to the policy of the Government. The foregoing is an outline of general unofficial comment in circles which have Parliamentary, departmental, and other official relations.

Papers Call It a Bombshell.

General Maurice's letter is generally described as a bombshell. Both the radical Star and Lord Northcliffe's Evening News use that term. The latter paper at first followed the example of The Daily Mail in not publishing the letter, but gave it in full in later editions, together with the editorial in The Daily Chronicle, which The News said "has consistently supported the policy of the Government."

The Westminster Gazette, in an editorial written before Bonar Law's announcement in the House of Commons of the judicial inquiry plan, spoke of Maurice having "taken a strong step which can only be justified by extreme public necessity," and added:

"Whatever allowance may be made for the necessary vagueness of official statements respecting the strength of the army in time of war, no Government could allow its veracity to be impugned by a soldier in Maurice's position and pass it by in silence. The statements challenged have an intimate bearing on the relations of the Government with the army. Their cumulative effect was to suggest that the army in undiminished numbers had suffered a reverse for which the Government was blameless and the army alone responsible.

"In his message from the front on Sunday Mr. Lloyd George gave us to understand that the Generals were greatly surprised to hear of discussions going on at home on the assumption that they had been defeated, and that the only question of importance was as to who was to blame. If that idea has got abroad among them, an explanation may at least partly be found in the statements which General Maurice declares to be not correct."

Maurice Letter "Grave Precedent."

The Evening Standard, which is a governmental supporter, feels it to be its duty to point out that a very grave precedent has been created by the letter, adding:

"Clearly, if every distinguished soldier who does not see eye to eye with the Cabinet on questions of policy or fact is to act as a kind of public prosecutor, a fatal blow will have been delivered at the system of Ministerial responsibility to which we are accustomed in this country. The position of a Minister whose conduct is subject to Parliamentary inquiry held on the demand of a subordinate is scarcely possible. He cannot act with authority when that authority is ipso facto impugned. If General Maurice is held to be justified in this case, no Government's existence can be guaranteed against similar attacks, and it is easy to understand that all such attacks might not be with the transparent honesty which characterizes the General's letter."

In its news columns the same paper prints a paragraph saying:

"Public opinion already strongly deprecates highly placed officers until recently holding important posts rushing into print and raising controversies as to the respective degrees of responsibility of Ministers and soldiers for operations which are already things of the past."

The Pall Mall Gazette omits editorial reference.

Predicts Fall of Cabinet.

The Globe, which for some time past has been attacking the Government, comes to the conclusion that "the present régime in Downing Street cannot last," and is anxious that "our allies and the dominions should realize that a change in Downing Street is inevitable, and we would caution them against the fable that the fall of Lloyd George involves a relapse toward defeatism or pacifism, which were never at such discount in Great Britain as today."

The Star says:

"The only thing that Parliament has to consider is the discovery of the truth. The Maurice affair is the culmination of a series of similar affairs—the Jellicoe affair, the Robertson affair, and the Trenchard affair. Taking these four affairs together, it is beyond question that there is something wrong with the present Government in its relations with the navy and army.

"In fiction and in the drama the long arm of coincidence can be used to make the improbable seem probable and the impossible seem possible, but in war these four coincidents strain the most fantastic credulity. If the case of Jellicoe had been an isolated one, or even if the cases of Jellicoe and Robertson had stood alone, those who cling desperately to the mystical faith that Lloyd George is our only war winner might have managed to hold on, but four—Jellicoe, Robertson, Trenchard, and Maurice—really there is a limit."

Supports Maurice's Demand.

[The following dispatches to THE TIMES are of Monday night's date, and were delayed by the censorship.]

The Daily Chronicle editorially says:

"The letter which we print in another column from General Maurice speaks for itself. It is not possible to overstate its gravity. General Maurice as Director of Military Operations of the Imperial General Staff, had an unsurpassed first-hand knowledge of facts and figures relating to our forces in the field during the long period when he filled that post.

"He writes to say that certain recent statements made in the House of Commons by the Prime Minister and Mr. Bonar Law are untrue. The statements in question were not casual but elaborate and deliberate ones. They concerned not minor matters, but the most central and vital of all the circumstances under which the British Army took every extra piece of front south of St. Quentin, where the disaster of March 21 occurred, the fighting strength at Sir Douglas Haig's disposal on the eve of the great battle and the degree to which our white troops have been employed this year in our Asiatic campaigns.

"General Maurice's step is, of course, a very serious one for him personally. He has taken it because he judged the case too grave for any other course. That he is acting from a high sense of duty is obvious. Whether he is right remains to be ascertained, but he can scarcely be refused his appeal to Caesar, that is, to a Parliamentary inquiry.

"For their own vindication the Ministers impugned must submit to one. As it is, they stand charged by a responsible official witness with misleading Parliament and the nation. Their alleged misstatements look worse because they were such that they had the effect of diverting blame from the shoulders of the Ministers to those of the soldiers whom they employed.

"Moreover, there are grave questions of policy as well as of statement, for if it were the case that Sir Douglas Haig, with the German menace piling itself up against him month after month, was left by the War Cabinet actually with fewer troops than in 1917, the country would not view the Cabinet's responsibility lightly.

"We say this without in any way desiring to prejudice the case. It is not a case that ought to be prejudiced, but it is emphatically one that ought to be tried, and tried by the only adequate tribunal—a Parliamentary inquiry. If the two Ministers have, as they may well have, a good and conclusive answer, let them make it there without delay."

The Times, Daily News, and Morning Post also published General Maurice's letter, the first two without comment.

Maurice Detached from Politics.

General Maurice's position may require definition for American readers. The post which he held until recently, when he applied for a change, was known as that of Director of Military Operations of the Imperial General Staff. Actually he directed no military operations, but was the connecting link between the British commanders in the field and the war Cabinet at home. His reputation as both a soldier and a man of ability was of the highest.

His weekly review of operations for the press created a deep impression upon his hearers, who were men of all nationalities, some of them distinguished students of war. On several occasions, when political and military questions had become intermingled, General Maurice was asked for an opinion. He invariably refused to make any statement which could be interpreted as departing in the slightest degree from the purely military viewpoint.

VIOLENT SHELLING OF YPRES FRONT

The official statement issued this afternoon says:

The artillery on both sides was active north and south of the Avre. A German raid against a small French post near Hangard was repulsed. In the same region we carried out a local operation and brought back prisoners.

There is nothing to report elsewhere on the front.

There has been marked activity by both artilleries on the front of Hailles-Villers-Bretonneux. (Amiens sector.)

An enemy surprise attack to the south of Hartmanna-Wellerkopf (Alsace) failed.

On May 6 four German airplanes were brought down in the course of an aerial fight. Ten others were sent down damaged within their own lines. During the same day our bombarding machines dropped 4,000 kilograms of projectiles on the stations of Fluille, Martel, Merreals, Ham, Guiscard, Noyon, and Vermond.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 7.—"English stubbornness and French dash have been heroically combined in resisting an enemy superior in numbers and strongly supported by an imposing mass of artillery and poison gases," says General Coral, The Tribuna's military critic, reviewing the situation in France.

"One of the surest proofs that the Germans have been kept in check is the present pause in operations. Although they have made gigantic efforts south and north of Ypres, the Germans have not managed to obtain new successes. It is forty days since they launched their great offensive on all parts of the front without having obtained a strategic result. The Germans took more than three months to prepare for their action in France; the British and French initiated the unity necessary for any operation of war under the fire of the enemy's guns, the pressure of attacking hordes, and the influence of advancing enemy masses. The organization and co-ordination of masses of troops needs time and calmness. Therefore, all must admire what General Foch has been able to accomplish under the circumstances.

"These considerations are recommended to those who impatiently seek in the comuniques for a sign of a counter-offensive. In defensive tactics economy of forces is an essential factor. It is this economy which has maintained for the last thirty days the compactness of the front, despite the violent and overwhelming pressure of the enemy. Those facts are the highest tribute which can be given the British and French troops who in fraternal union vie with one another in sacrifice and heroism."

BERLIN ADMITS LOSS IN AUSTRALIAN ATTACK

Says Assailants Reached Some Foremost Trenches, but Failed Elsewhere.

BERLIN, May 7, (via London.)—The German official communication issued today says:

On the battlefront in the morning hours the artillery activity was lively. On the northern bank of the Lys advances by English companies failed.

Between the Ancre and the Somme the enemy employed Australians for a night attack. On both sides of the Corbie-Bray road they succeeded in reaching our foremost line. For the rest their twice-repealed attack broke down before our posts with heavy losses. The artillery battle continued until daylight with the greatest intensity.

South of Brimont storming detachments pushed forward across the Aisne Canal into the enemy's positions near Courcy and brought back some prisoners.

BRITISH CASUALTIES 38,691.

Heaviest for Any Single Week—6,555 Officers and Men Killed.

LONDON, May 7.—British casualties reported during the week ended today reached a total of 38,691. Of this number, 6,555 officers and men were killed or died of wounds, and 32,136 were wounded or reported missing. The casualties were divided as follows:

Killed or died of wounds: Officers, 490; men, 6,056.

Wounded or missing: Officers, 1,859; men, 30,277.

British casualties reported during April, starting with low figures in the first week, began to mount rapidly thereafter, so that the total for the month reached 82,475. The returns from the heavy fighting against the German offensive in late March and April are now apparently in full flow.

Figures for casualties reported for separate weeks have not been made available with anything like uniformity during the war, but it appears probable that those reported during the current week are the heaviest in any single week of the fighting. In the days of the Somme battle of 1916, however, the losses reported in August averaged 30,000 per week, and an average of more than $25,000 has been reached in several other months.

CALLS UPON PACIFISTS TO WAR UPON GERMANY

Pastor Charles Wagner of Paris, author and one of the world's leading exponents of "the simple life," has sent a message to the American people in which he warns against a German peace, and declares that "to go on leading a quiet life when iniquity is flooding the earth is to become an accomplice of iniquity." The message makes a special appeal to pacifists.

"It appears more clearly every day by the acts of our enemies," says the message, "that they are endeavoring to achieve a worldwide domination. They cover the falseness of their designs with the cloak of piety. It is in the name of God that they want to impose their tyranny and make everything give way and bow before them. What we have to face now is a fearful attempt to reduce mankind to slavery by usurping divine power itself. Who are they, those who are proffering peace? They are the men who let loose war, believing they would surely conquer, who violated the treaties they themselves had signed, who ransacked unoffending countries, who pillaged and burned towns, who dealt ruthlessly with the civilians of the invaded countries, including aged people, women, and children. They need peace in order to profit by their booty. Those who are offering us peace are a highly organized gang of highway robbers who have enormous plunder and want to keep it under the cover of treaties.

RUMANIA SIGNS FOES' PEACE TREATY

All Demands of Central Powers Agreed To by the Little Kingdom.

HOW AMERICANS ESCAPED

Red Cross Mission from Jassy Tells of Exciting Adventures in Flight to Safety.

AMSTERDAM, May 7.—The peace treaty between Rumania and the Central Powers was signed yesterday morning, says an official dispatch from Bucharest today.

The plenipotentiaries of the four Teutonic allied powers and Rumania, under the Chairmanship of Dr. von Kühlmann, the German Foreign Secretary, signed the treaty in the same room of the castle where the entry of Rumania into the war was decided upon. The treaty will be called "the Peace of Bucharest," and the text will be published at an early date.

Americans' Escape from Odessa.

LONDON, May 7.—In an eventful flight from Jassy, the Rumanian capital, the American Red Cross Mission to Rumania, which now has arrived in London, escaped from Odessa thirty-six hours before the Germans entered it only to be fired upon by a German battery in the Ukraine 200 miles north of the famous Black Sea port.

The German shells did no damage to the Red Cross train, falling about a half a mile from it, but several members of the mission breathed a sigh of relief when the bombardment came to an end after five minutes which had seemed like hours.

When the mission left Jassy, it was known that the journey likely would be a dangerous one. Reports in Jassy as to the whereabouts of the Germans varied greatly, but it was fairly clear that they were within fifty or sixty miles of Odessa, and that their advance parties might be encountered along the line. Most of the passengers on the train were officers and privates of the French Military Mission to Rumania, and it was hardly to be expected that German or guerilla bands would make any careful distinction in favor of a few American Red Cross uniforms.

The members of the American Red Cross Mission left on the third of six trains which carried the allied missions from Jassy. The first train left at noon on March 9, and the other trains followed at intervals of two or three hours.

Each train was provided with food for a month. There was no dining car and the food was cooked in two military food kitchens abandoned by Russian troops and which were carried on a freight car on the end of the train. Three other freight cars, loaded with rails, ties, and railway iron, also were carried, so that the roadbed could be repaired quickly in case of accident, or in case the Germans had torn up the line.

The train on which the Americans traveled was one of the most extraordinary combinations of railway rolling stock ever seen. American doctors and officers had a third-class sleeping car, while the nurses had a second-class sleeper. Both cars were of ancient Russian vintage and without water supply, or heating facilities.

The French officers had sleeping cars, some Russian and some Rumanian, but the privates were compelled to get along with ordinary freight cars of nondescript types, and two or three in different passenger cars.

Engineer Lived in Box Car.

The engine which pulled the train dated back to 1876 and only burned wood, which was picked up along the way. The engineer matched the engine. He was an elderly Russian of Bolshevist opinion, and had to be fed with rubles and cognac almost as frequently as the engine required wood. He carried his family along with him in a box car next to the engine, and whenever meals or other domestic affairs required his attention he stopped the train and went "home" to his box car.

Just outside Odessa the engineer became dissatisfied with the flow of rubles and cognac and went on a strike. The French officers tried to reason with him, but he was obdurate, and departed with the engine and the box car, leaving the remainder of the train standing on the main line. He had chosen rather a critical time, for reports were current that the Germans were likely to reach the railway at any moment. After some delay the French succeeded in finding another engineer and engine, and the train proceeded.

As a matter of fact German battalions entered Odessa only thirty-six hours after the Americans passed through the city, and it is probable that some of their advance parties already were in the suburbs at the time the engineer went on strike.

The striker apparently suffered a change of heart soon after he left the train, for the next day when the train was a hundred miles or so beyond Odessa, he, with his engine and "home," caught up with the train. He begged the French officers to take him back on their own terms. The French declined to reinstate the old engineer, and the last seen of him he was taking his engine and box car backward on the return trip to South Russia.

For the first hundred miles or so out of Odessa the trains carrying the allied missions traveled over a new railway which had been completed only a short time before by Russian military engineers. It was rather a circuitous route, but it was believed the Germans were ignorant of its existence, and that it was safer than the old lines.

On the second day when the train bearing the Americans was about 200 miles north of Odessa, one of the doctors saw a flash of fire away off on the horizon. It was followed quickly by a loud explosion and a great geyser of earth and rocks as a shell burst in a field about half a mile from the moving train. The first shell was followed by many others, the bombardment continuing for five minutes.

Nobody knew what was going on, but the general belief was that the train had come within sight of a distant German observation post which was trying to direct the fire of its batteries on the railway track. Military men on board declared the shells were 6.9 inch or larger. The shells appeared to fall in a regular line, as if the gunners had the railroad carefully registered. The range was a little too great for the German guns, however, and all the shells fell short.

Battle Causes a Detour.

Arriving at the station of Doinskala, the Americans were informed by the Bolshevist authorities that a battle was in progress in the north. The train then turned from its scheduled route and proceeded southeast, returning to its northward route after a lengthy detour. For the next forty-eight hours hardly an hour passed without rumors of danger from Germans or guerrilla bands.

At Kursk the Americans were greeted enthusiastically by several thousand Bohemian troops who originally had been prisoners captured from the Germans, but lately had been fighting with the Russians against the Central Powers. They said they had just returned from a severe battle with the Germans between Kiev and Kursk, and many of them were wounded. They boasted that this action on their part had saved the American mission, as otherwise the Germans would have been in Kursk before the Americans arrived there. Most of these Bohemian troops had offered themselves for service in France.

The mission arrived in Moscow on March 18. The trip northward to the Mourmansk coast and thence to England was without danger of German interference.

political administration becomes impossible, owing to local conditions."

Move to Stifle Budapest Parliament.

AMSTERDAM, May 7.—Premier Wekerle of Hungary, having agreed to attempt the formation of a new Cabinet, as was announced recently, a Royal rescript was published yesterday in the Official Gazette of Budapest confirming him in his post and instructing him to make proposals for a recomposition of the Cabinet and for carrying through the franchise reform project, if possible.

If he should be unable to bring about an agreement which would make it possible to adopt electoral reform in accordance with the Emperor's rescript of last year the Premier is authorized to dissolve Parliament and issue writs for new elections, even though it should be desirable to avoid a general election during the war.

The resoript also asserts that the legal influence of the Hungarian Government in the conduct of the joint affairs of the monarchy shall be maintained always, and that it is the Emperor's wish that the new Cabinet should realize the social and economic program which has been laid down.

The power conferred on Premier Wekerle to dissolve Parliament and postpone the general elections until after the war foreshadows a situation in Hungary similar to that in Austria. Last week Emperor Charles authorized the Austrian Premier to adjourn Parliament and adopt measures to render impossible the resumption of its activities.

In Hungary as well as Austria there has been great political unrest recently. The Wekerle Ministry resigned last month because it had become doubtful whether it would be authorized to dissolve Parliament to carry through the Electoral Reform bill, which would give the vote to every Hungarian, male or female, 24 years of age and able to read and write. Great demonstrations have been held recently in Hungarian industrial centres in behalf of the bill.

PEOPLES IN AUSTRIA 'LIKE HUNGRY WOLVES'

Spirit of Revolt Rife and Cries of "Long Live Wilson!" Are Heard, Says Traveler.

STOCKHOLM, May 7.—The Politiken today publishes an interview with "a person in an important position who has just traveled through the lands of the Central Powers, where he came in contact with a large number of influential persons from different classes of political parties and professions, including also Russians, Lithuanians, Ukrainians, Poles, Rumanians, Czechs, and Hungarians."

In the interview this person gives a very dark picture of conditions in the Dual Monarchy. He declares that Austria especially is in a bad situation. Famine conditions prevail and general discontent was never so great, he says.

"The different nationalities regard each other like hungry wolves," the interview continues. "The Czechs are united in supporting a Czechish republic, and their ambition is separation from Austria. Even the southern Slavs are more openly taking a front against the Hapsburgs. The Poles are striving for a union with the Congress of Poland.

"The spirit of revolt is rife among these three nations, and the sole desire is that the enemy may conquer. 'Long Live Wilson' has become a regular cry in wide circles.

"In Austria the political struggle is growing more bitter, and the Government dares not summon Parliament.

"The situation is tangled similarly in Hungary. Count Tisza governs from behind the scenes, and is trying to regain his grip on Austria. This irritates the Czechs and disquiets the Emperor. The solution of the franchise question is impossible because of Magyar obstruction, which takes the form of strikes and sabotage by the workmen.

"Hungary, which has plenty to eat, boycotts Austria, which is starving. Almost nothing is coming from the Ukraine, because the Bolsheviki burned everything on their retreat, and what does come goes to Bohemia to help calm the flames of insurrection. The German provinces in their turn complain about this, saying that their loyalty is being retarded by hunger."

The informant declares that the labor unrest is most acute, especially in Vienna and Prague. The Socialists are shifting rapidly to Zimmerwaldism and the Zimmerwaldists soon will be in the majority.

of a too close alliance with Vienna and Budapest, of the flirtation with Poland, and his insistence upon the necessity of friendly relations with a strong Russia. The German outcry against Lichnowsky, however, gave foreign countries the impression that the Prince had made fearfully damaging disclosures of Berlin's guilt. The question of blame, he says, "reflected almost an identical interpretation to that of our White Book, and a cool head would not have made a world sensation out of it."

Harden concludes by saying that an ostracized Lichnowsky would become a power; but the Prussian Diet has no sense of humor.

GERMAN POISON GASES FELT ALONG THE RHINE

GENEVA, May 7.—The municipal authorities at Mülhausen, Alsace, have ordered all inhabitants to obtain gas masks before May 10, as protection "against aerial gas attacks," the Lausanne Gazette says.

The truth of the matter is, the newspaper adds, that, owing to contrary winds, large quantities of poison gas employed by the Germans are now drifting gradually toward towns along the Rhine, which already are feeling the effects of the gas.

BRITISH EYES ON RUSSIA

London Times Urges That Allies Help Her and Says Their Efforts Would Be Welcomed.

A "NECESSARY PARTNER".

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Baron Shimpei Goto, the new Japanese Minister for Foreign Affairs, and Secretary Lansing have exchanged messages showing that both Governments are determined to work together in resisting Germany as the common enemy menacing the safety of both Japan and the United States. Baron Goto sent this message to Secretary Lansing:

Charged with the direction of foreign affairs in this Ministry, owing to the regrettable illness and retirement of Viscount Motono, I need hardly assure you of as firm a determination as ever of this Government to promote and cement in every possible way the relations of mutual regard and confidence between our two nations, holding implicit faith in the final victory of our common cause to which we are unalterably committed. I am indeed proud of the privilege that is afforded me of associating myself with you in the great task before us.

Secretary Lansing's reply, also made public at the State Department today, follows:

I have read with gratification your telegram of yesterday, which expresses so frankly the spirit of goodwill for this country and of devotion to the common cause to which we are pledged.

It is needless to assure your Excellency that your words of confidence and esteem are fully reciprocated by this Government. Candor and friendship in all our relations are our supreme wish and purpose; and we feel confident that, guided by this spirit, the United States and Japan will enjoy an even better understanding—if that is possible—than the understanding which today characterizes their intercourse.

I appreciate your words concerning our personal association, and I am highly honored in this relationship, looking forward as I do with confidence to a continuance of the cordial spirit of helpfulness which has been so manifest in these days of conflict when the bonds of mutual interest draw our countries so closely together.

Please accept my expressions of sincere esteem and of earnest desire to co-operate with you in vigorously and successfully resisting our common enemy who menaces the national safety of Japan as well as that of the United States.

New "Atmosphere" in Russia.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 7.—The Times, commenting editorially on its Christiania dispatch concerning the situation in Russia and its advices from Tokio, says:

"It is the plain duty of well-wishers of the Russian people on both sides of the Atlantic to give the Russian people all the assistance in their power in the great work of national reconstruction. The temporary paralysis of Russia has been a heavy blow to the Allies in their fight for freedom. Her dissolution, her prolonged weakness as a great power, or her practical subjection to Germany would constitute a new and standing menace to the peace and security of both hemispheres. She is a necessary partner in the projected league of nations, and her copartners are bound by every consideration of justice and of self-interest to see that she takes her place in full enjoyment of her resources and of her independence.

"We cannot doubt for a moment that any of them would hesitate to give her all the help in their power were she to invite it through the medium of a stable government, or, indeed, of any elements which gave promise of effective co-operation for the common cause. It is well known that such elements exist. The changes in Petrograd are conclusive proof that things in Russia are no longer what they were. Signs of a new 'atmosphere' are indeed so manifest that even the absence of an official or public invitation to assist the new movement need not necessarily be a bar to such a step. It is certain that whether they venture to speak out or not, the aid of the Allies would be cordially welcomed by great numbers of sensible and patriotic Russians.

"It is gratifying to know that the only one of the Allies who would be able to afford this assistance promptly and effectually in the present state of the world struggle is also willing to afford it. Baron Goto's recent statements make it clear that Japan would not refuse, were she properly approached, to undertake this duty. She would doubtless require a mandate from her allies and associates in the war. The form and terms of such a document would, of course, need to be settled between them, as would the wording of the proclamation of disinterestedness which all powers concerned would naturally address to the Russian people.

Japan's Motives Elevated.

"All the Allies and America are well aware, we are confident, that if Japan were to undertake such a mission she would do so under the inspiration of a policy as elevated as it would be farsighted. She has already shown she would act in a spirit of the utmost friendship for Russia, whose reconstruction she is bound to desire in her own interests as warden of the peace of the Far East."

THE HAGUE, May 7.—Commenting on the report by The London Times correspondent at Tokio on the question of Japanese intervention, the Vossische Zeitung says that the Republican Party in the American Congress is endeavoring to make capital out of President Wilson's hesitating attiiude regarding Japan's intervention, and that in furtherance of the party's new severe war and imperialist policy the Republicans are demanding that Japan have a free hand without considering the consequences for Ameri a's future world position. The Vossische refers to Senator Poindexter's recent demands and criticism of the Government.

The War Situation

It is difficult to conceive, except in a most general way, of the enormous extent of the offensive operations which the Germans have attempted since the 21st of March. In this fighting of the first six weeks, which includes all of the fighting in Picardy and the opening of the fighting in Flanders, the Germans used 129 divisions. This was an unprecedented strength, just as the width and scope of the attack wes unprecedented. Never before had an attack been launched on such a wide front or anything approaching it. In a corresponding time in the battle of Verdun, which is rightly regarded as the most stubbornly defensive fight the Allies have yet been in, or had been in previous to March 21st, the Germans used but 20½ divisions. When we remember the ferocity of the Verdun offensive in those early days, the meaning of these figures becomes obvious. Although there has been a lapse in the fighting now lasting for the better part of a week, the very bugeness of the numbers that are known to be engaged negatives any other idea than that the offensive must go on.

The Germans have not passed these days in idleness, we may be sure. On the contrary, they have been used in preparing for another blow. This preparation has taken a variety of forms, all of which are time-consuming. The practice of shifting divisions from active fronts to those where there is relative idleness has been common ever since the western front acquired the habit of staging offensive operations. The British have followed it consistently. The German divisions which have been used in the offensive so far have in many cases been very roughly handled. Some have been almost obliterated and ere of no further use in the fighting and have to be fully reorganized with material which in the natural course of things would be by no means as good as that which was used in striking the first blow.

Tho probabilities are, then, that these divisions have been reformed and sent to one of the quiet sectors of the front east of Montdidier, while their places on the active fighting front have been taken by fresh divisions which they relieved. There is a limit to which this practice can be carried, of course. The effect of it is a gradual rotting away of the efficiency, of the striking and resisting power of the remainder of the line which is inactive. Sooner or later this part of the line reaches a point where it is too weak to resist. This point has not been reached yet. Possibly it is far from that point up to the present time. When it is reached it will be General Foch's time to strike.

The time for Germany to begin operations again is fast approaching. There are indications that within twenty-four hours the battle may be renewed in all its intensity. Before it does break, there are certain facts in regard to it to which we may well steel our minds. When this attack is launched it will be in great strength. Very probably the German forces which are thrown in will be as great as, if not greater than, those which began the attack in March. They will be concentrated at the point of attack in such a way as to take immediate advantage of the slightest wavering of the allied line. They will try to break through and continue their progress to the sea.

And we may be sure that some initial progress will mark the opening days of the fight. It is almost impossible to conceive of a great mass of troops being thrown against a section of the line and not bending it back when the element of casualties is to a large extent ignored. There will be a weight of artillery support equalling anything the war has yet seen. It will, indeed, be the great German effort of the war, more vital than the fighting which has heretofore taken place. The reason for this is that this next move will truly spell victory or disaster. If Germany is to win it must be against the Allies while they are on their guard. It is no longer possible to catch them by surprise. They have known where the attack was coming within reasonable limits, and have had ample time to prepare to meet it. It is against this situation which Germany must win. If she is thrown back after the preliminary period of advance, if she is held in place and checked as she has been both in Flanders and in Picardy, the end has been reached. By no possible circumstances can Germany win.

Germany realizes this. That is why this coming blow means so much, why we may regard it as the crucial test of the war. The Allies, knowing that the blow is coming, appear to be confident of the result. They have had the shock, they have met it, and after an initial period which for a time savored of disaster, have held the Germans absolutely in place. Their reserves are up, ready to be thrown in where needed. Certainly, somewhere in the fighting zone there is a large force held in readiness to be thrown in should the occasion demand it. It is in reality in anticipation of failure that the German peace waves are being formed, ready to be thrown out by the projecting machinery of German propaganda. The Germans, we have learned, are farsighted and prepare for every contingency their leaders can visualize, and one of these is now most certainly the possibility of defeat, whatever it may have been before the battle was begun. If this next offensive meets the same fate as the first, Germany's sole hope lies in a peace negotiated quickly. For only in such quick action can she escape ultimate defeat.

BERLIN PRESS ADMITS FAILURE IN UKRAINE

Mistakes Made There by German Government Deplored—No Food Relief.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 7.—The papers openly criticise the turn of events in the Ukraine. The Tageblatt considers it was a great mistake to make the Main Committee debate so secret, pointing out that the Ukranian failure has created much excitement, and that the press naturally endeavors to learn something of the proceedings.

Even the Vossische Zeitung admits that Erzberger was right in saying that mistakes were being made. The Vossische Zeitung, however, considers the mistakes were made long ago and with the consent of the Reichstag. The paper says the peace was always one of necessity. It deplores the policy toward the Russians and the celebration of the peace as a "bread peace," and also the shortsightedness of Vienna's policy.

AMSTERDAM, May 7.—The uneasiness caused by Germany's policy in the Ukraine, as revealed in the recent Reichstag debates, was again reflected in yesterday's sitting of the Main Committee of the Reichstag.

Hugo Haase, leader of the Socialist minority in the Reichstag, said it was remarkable that the peace treaty with the Ukraine was still unratified, and that it must be ratified most speedily.

"The militarists," said Herr Haase, "run the risk of spoiling for the future the things we have won with the sword. Why should we by our field tribunals bring upon our heads the hatred of the whole population?

Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the National Liberal leader, said:

"Surely, our policy is to support the independence and aspirations of border peoples in order to weaken Great Russia. Yet our Ukraine policy tends to the opposite direction. Our action against the Rada cannot be approved and will be long exploited against us.

Herr von Payer, the Imperial German Vice Chancellor, announced in the Main Committee today that a special department would be established to uniformly regulate Germany's whole eastern policy. The department will direct the border States under orderly government and administrative conditions. The department, Herr von Payer added, will be incorporated in some existing imperial department.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Advices received by the State Department today stated that at a meeting of the Imperial Rationing Committee in Berlin it was disclosed that the quantity of food supplies expected from the Ukraine would be so far below the desired amount that it would barely prevent a material reduction of the food ration in Germany. The report stated that the significant thing was that the Ukrainian supplies only saved the situation and did not really improve it.

It was disclosed that the large cities in the Ukraine were themselves suffering from hunger. Grain was being kept in secret stores by the individual peasants, and it was declared that even a very slight passive resistance might make the German military task of gathering it extremely difficult.

An official German report on May 2 stated that 12,000 carlonds of grain were already in Rumania ready for transportation. From the official calculation, it will not be possible to receive these supplies in Germany until July 21. The German meat supply has run so short, the dispatch stated, that there is already talk of reducing the ration, which is now 200 grammes a week, to 150 grammes.

ASKED EICHHORN'S RECALL.

Ukraine Government Also Wanted German Ambassador Withdrawn.

LONDON, May 7.—The Ukrainian Government has sent a note to Berlin intimating that it will resign if several German officials are not recalled by Germany, says a Reuter dispatch from Moscow dated Saturday. The note specifically mentions General von Eichhorn, the Military Commander, and Baron Mumm von Schwarzenstein, the German Ambassador.

MIRBACH WATCHES REVIEW.

MOSCOW, May 2, (Associated Press.)—May Day was notably celebrated throughout Russia by the Soviets. The Soviet proclamation declared the day doubly important, as it also marked the end of the sixth month of the workmen's Government in Russia and the firm establishment of the Soviet power.

The Moscow celebration centred about the Red Square, adjoining the Kremlin, where the victims of the October revolution are buried. Probably 100,000 workingmen and workingwomen of the various unions, bearing gigantic red banners proclaiming international Socialism and extolling the Soviet Government, passed before the members of the Central Government, grouped about the graves of the revolutionists.

LONDON, May 7. — Thanks to the American Government for valuable assistance given in connection with the supply of silver in India were expressed by Lord Chelmsford, the Viceroy, at the recent war conference of the members of the Viceregal and Provincial Councils and of the ruling Princes at Delhi, according to a delayed telegram received by Reuter's Ltd.

BALFOUR SAYS AMERICA HAS NOT BEEN SLOW

Believes History Cannot Show a Parallel to Our Action in This War.

LONDON, May 7.—Presiding this evening at London University at the first of the lectures of Professor Andrew C. McLaughlin of the University of Chicago on the causes of America's entry into the war, Arthur J. Balfour, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said:

"No people understood better than ourselves the reasons which held America back from entering the war until she did. Had we been in the position of her people we should have hesitated quite as long as America, perhaps longer, before we plunged into the tremendous conflict. I do not think that there was ever a thought of anything in the nature of an apology required for the fact that the great, peace-loving, free, industrial community should not at once have rushed into the fray.

"What I am thankful for is that by a process which I do not consider slow, 100,000,000 of English-speaking people have been brought in with a unanimity never known in the history, perhaps, of any country governed as America is.

"I do not believe that the whole history of the world shows anything quite parallel or equal to the action of America in this war.

"There is something almost dramatic in the punishment which has fallen upon the cynical appetite for domination which possesses the German people."

OUR TROOPS POURING IN.

They Continue to Arrive in Force at the Front, Clemenceau Says.

PARIS, May 7.—American troops are continuing to arrive on the front in force, Premier Clemenceau told Marcel Hutin, editor of the Echo de Paris, on returning today from a two days' visit to the front area.

The Premier brought back, he said, a feeling of confidence in the invincibility of the Entente forces.

ADMITS SUCCESS OF RAID.

Frankfurter Zeitung Calls Zeebrugge Attack an Audacious Stroke.

LONDON, May 7.—That the recent British attack on the German submarine base at Zeebrugge was successful is admitted by the Frankfurter Zeitung in commenting upon the affair. The newspaper urges that the German Navy take measures to deal "with an antagonist of remarkable boldness."

"It would be foolish to deny," it says, "that the British fleet scored a great success through a fantastically audacious stroke in penetrating into one of the most important strongholds over which the German flag floats.

"However unpleasant it may be, we must frankly admit that the enemy ships actually entered the port of Zeebrugge. That being so, there is no reason why they should not achieve a similar feat at other times. It therefore behooves our navy command to be alert, for we have to deal with an antagonist of remarkable boldness."

If it's all wool, the style may belong to another planetary system.

The fabric must wear—but the style must endure just as well.

This might happen to your estate

SOME months ago a fine old gentleman died who for many years had acted as trustee for a large estate and this Company was appointed to succeed him.

WHEN he assumed the trusteeship he was in the prime of successful business life and was well able to manage the property, but as he grew older his vigilance relaxed. When we took charge we found that a large part of the principal of the estate was in mortgages, some of which had run for twenty years without being renewed or the property appraised.

WE immediately had conservative appraisers examine the properties and began to put the mortgages on a sound basis. We found, however, that about $20,000 had been lost through failure of the elderly trustee to keep careful watch over the security behind the mortgages.

IF this Company had been appointed trustee in the first instance, this loss would have been avoided. The Company keeps a constant scrutiny over all investments in which trust funds are placed.

TWO INVESTIGATIONS OF BORGLUM AIRCRAFT CHARGES TO BE MADE

THOROUGH AIRCRAFT INQUIRY PLANNED

Chamberlain Tells Senate That Borglum Charges and Other Phases Will Be Sifted.

TAKES PRESIDENT AT WORD

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—In announcing in the Senate today that a sweeping inquiry into the aircraft situation would be taken up within the next few days by the Military Affairs Committee, Senator Chamberlain, its Chairman, said the investigation would include expenditures by the Aircraft Production Board, as to which allegations of graft have been made, and charges of inefficiency, as well as the alleged deliberate attempt to hold up the aircraft program.

The committee investigation, Senator Chamberlain said, was inspired by President Wilson's suggestion in his letter to Senator Thomas of Colorado—that, apart from the Department of Justice inquiry, he hoped the airplane situation would be "treated as one for searching official investigation by the constituted authorities of the Government."

Mr. Chamberlain expressed gratification that the President should want the situation investigated, and said the Senate would probe "diligently."

Senator Chamberlain explained that the committee would look into every phase of expenditures from the $1,000,000,000 fund appropriated by Congress for the aircraft program. The Department of Justice would conduct the criminal investigation, he said, although the Senate Committee might, as the investigation developed, go into that phase of the matter also. The committee, Mr. Chamberlain said, would not call witnesses whose ultimate prosecution the Department of Justice might contemplate. No immunity baths would be given, nor would there be any "whitewashing."

Mr. Chamberlain bitterly criticised the failure of the aircraft program, saying not one American-built battleplane had been shipped to France, unless recently, and there had been "something radically wrong with the whole program." The committee, he said, would try to find out precisely what was wrong and let the public know. Mr. Chamberlain criticised the withholding of the Gutzon Borglum report and the report of the President's Committee, headed by H. Snowden Marshall, on the aircraft situation, saying a tendency had been manifest to smother ugly facts.

Senator Brandegee of Connecticut sharply attacked the Administration for not having taken the public into its confidence in aircraft and other war activities. Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, Reed of Missouri, McCumber of North Dakota, and others insisted on the fullest inquiry to ascertain what has become of this money appropriated by Congress for aircraft.

Will Try to Get at the Truth.

Senator Chamberlain, in announcing the decision to take up the inquiry, said:

"I have never seen the Borglum report. I have never had any conversation with Mr. Borglum, although I saw him a little while yesterday in the committee room. I infer the Borglum report had reference particularly to disbonest or pro-German transactions affecting the work of the Aircraft Board."

"The Committee on Military Affairs made a report on airplane production without going into details as to the expenditure of money. The conclusions of the committee were the same as those reported by the Marshall Committee and reached by Mr. Borglum—that there ought to be centralization of effort in aircraft production. The President has undertaken to centralize the work under Mr. Ryan. I hope to see better results achieved by a man who, having been successful in his own affairs, is likely to be successful for the Government.

"The President has referred the Borglum report, according to his letter, to the Department of Justice, with instructions that every instrumentality at the disposal of the department be used to investigate charges of dishonesty and malversation. The Borglum report, I understand, deals largely with the expenditure of money.

"The Department of Justice is practically the only department which can investigate a particular case into which the criminal element enters. But it is not the purpose of this committee to abandon its efforts to ascertain the truth with reference to aircraft construction.

"There has been something radically wrong in the whole program. I have not been able to put my hand on the expenditure of this money, and I do not think there is any member of the committee who can account for the expenditure of anything like $640,000,000. The committee, if it can have the consent of the Senate, is going to ascertain, if possible, where this money has been expended and where the delay has been occasioned."

"Ought not the committee, independent of the criminal question, investigate and ascertain to whom this money has been paid and for what purposes?" asked Senator Nelson.

A Constituted Authority.

"The committee is going to try to find out the truth of the whole situation," replied Senator Chamberlain. "I am very glad, indeed, to know from the President's letter that he approves of a searching, official investigation by the constituted authorities of the Government. The Military Affairs Committee is a constituted authority of the Government, and, without fear or favor, intends to do whatever is necessary to get at the bottom of this whole matter. I am sure that is what the President wants, and I am glad, indeed, to know that this course has his approval in advance.

"This investigation is not the development of a day. We make our investigations and think we have closed them, and the very next day the mail will bring charges of a sensational kind, made in many instances by reputable citizens interested only in winning the war. These charges must be segregated and the motives of the complainants analyzed. Charges are coming to me every day, such, for instance, as those in the Borglum report, which this committee never saw.

"This committee is determined to do whatever is necessary to win this war. If there is responsibility for a lack of speeding up, this committee hopes to put its finger on the man or men who are responsible. It proposes to do that without fear. It does not propose to protect the reputation of any individuals who have been connected with any dishonest transactions, from the highest to the lowest. It is the purpose of the committee to find out and to point out to the country the men who are responsible, if such there be, and it does not propose to engage in any whitewashing process."

Senator Vardaman asked Senator Chamberlain if he knew how much of the airplane appropriation had been spent for construction.

"I only know that the money appropriated was $640,000,000, and I understand there is to be a deficiency appropriation of $200,000 more, in regard to which I presume a report will be made in due time," replied Mr. Chamberlain.

Senator Vardaman inquired the number of airplanes built out of that fund and how many were now in use.

"There has been so much misrepresentation that it is difficult to learn," Mr. Chamberlain replied. "America has not put any planes on the battlefront of France, unless within the last two or three weeks—battleplanes built in America and shipped abroad for the use of American troops. There have been planes built in France at the expense of America, and these have been put on the battlefront. If the Senator calls them American battleplanes, then some have been built. How many I do not know. America has also sent to Great Britain and France material out of which airplanes are to be made, and is continuing to do that.

"Our people ought to be informed. Those who ought to know the truth do not tell it all. I am not blaming anybody, possibly it is impossible for anybody to know what the truth is. I do know, however, that it was testified before the committee that the flower of American youth to the number of about 1,500 was sent abroad to be trained in France in the use of battle and other planes at the front, and yet at this very day some of those very men have not had the advantage of training in American-built planes or in any planes whatever.

"It has become the purpose of the Chief Signal Officer, as he testified before the committee, that these young men should be returned to America and trained here, after having been kept over there nearly a year with nothing to do. If America has all the pinnes she needs, why has she not placed them in the hands of these young men on the battlefront of France?"

In reply to an inquiry Mr. Chamberlain explained that it was "the extreme optimism of the Chief Signal Officer and the men associated with him" in the airplane production that caused these men to be sent over.

"Did he indicate to the committee the basis of his expectation that they would get planes there?" asked Senator Walsh.

"Oh, if the Senator had been watching the newspapers and the testimony as it was adduced before the committee he would know that they had been disappointed in nearly every expectation they had," replied Senator Chamberlain. "If the Senator will come into my committee room some day I will give him a confidential statement that he can almost read at a glance."

"Is it not true that there were young men sent over there who were partly trained, ready to go on with flying, who had not had their feet off the ground since they had been there?" asked Senntor Lodge.

"I could not state that positively," said Senator Chamberlain.

"I can only state it in a general way," Senator Lodge said, "but they have not had an opportunity to fly."

Aviators' Morale Shaken.

"I have a letter from a young man who went to France, who claimed that the morale of these 1,500 young men was almost destroyed by months of weary waiting," said Mr. Chamberlain. "They went over there expecting to become the 'aces' of America. They were young men from different colleges, who were sent because it was deemed that they would be most efficient and likely to be the best fighters that America could send. Since they have gone over, selected, as they were, as the best young men in the country, others have gone over, outranking them in commissions; and an effort is now being made to arrange the order in which the commissions shall be issued so as to protect these young men, as far as possible, against the optimism of the Aircraft Board."

"How is it," asked Senator Walsh, "that the American schools and aviation fields were abundantly supplied with training planes and the French schools were not?"

"That leads up to another question," said Senator Chamberlain. "This whole business has been camouflaged and misrepresented to the American people. It has only been recently that the American aviation fields have been supplied with proper planes for the training of these young men; and yet the statement is constantly being made that there were sufficient airplanes for this training of the American boys here and abroad."

Senator McCumber asked "the number of airplanes we were to have."

"I do not recall exactly," replied Senator Chamberlain, "the number we were to have in Europe by July; I think something like 2,500 or 3,000, with a possibility of increased production."

"Do we propose to have 50,000 to 80,000 there finally?" asked Mr. McCumber.

"We will not," said Senator Chamberlain.

"Will the Senator state," pursued Mr. McCumber, "how much the planes were to cost apiece? From the investigations I have made those machines ought to be produced at a big profit at $3,000 apiece; but, even allowing $10,000 apiece, with a billion dollars we could produce 100,000 planes. It seems to me, inasmuch as we have spent nearly a billion dollars and have got nothing, we ought to find out what has become of it."

Senator Reed remarked that no such low figures as those intimated as sufficient by Senator McCumber ought to go before the country.

"I think we are all aware," put in Senator Lodge, "of the constant changes and improvements; and yet England and France and Germany have managed to keep great numbers of fighting machines on both fronts in constant use."

"That is true," said Senator Reed. "We made the primary colossal blunder of undertaking to build an engine to fit almost any airplane in the world, whereas skilled mechanics and men who understand the business say that in every instance the engine must be built to fit the plane. The so-called Liberty motor is only adaptable to two or three types of planes, and among those types is not included the battleplane."

Suffrage and Prohibition.

"If there is any virtue in co-ordination, let us co-ordinate," said Senator Brandegee. "We have three co-ordinate departments of the Government. Now let us co-ordinate. This war is not going to be won by Colonel House. It is not going to be won by any pet or favorite of the President. It is only going to be won by the people of the whole country having confidence in this Government, and if the Government warrants the confidence which the public places in it.

"I have no partisanship in this war. They can take my property; they can take my life. They are taking the lives of the fellows they draft into the army, and they can have my life. I have only one life to live, and I have only one death to die, and I know of no better cause in which to sacrifice my life than in standing against this German brute who is trampling over civilization. But, my God, I'm a free man! I am not a partisan! No word that I have said on this floor has any partisan tinge to it.

"To be sure, when the President presumes, as I think at times, to be a superman, and to think his judgment is better than that of the hundred million people of the country, I make some jokes about it and some sarcastic references to it. There is no ill-nature about that, and I am not doing it for politics; I am doing it in the hope that, at last, he will some day realize that there are other people in this country besides him, who have some brains, and some loyalty, and some patriotism.

"You cannot win this war by talking about woman suffrage and prohibition. We won every war we ever were in without woman suffrage and prohibition. We won the War of 1776, and 1812, and the Mexican War, and the War of 1861; and the Spanish-American War, and there were no pink tea parties talking about putting pink chemises on the men and Plymouth Rock pants on the women. The women do not propose to go over in the trenches abroad and do the fighting. It is the men who will have to do that. Instead of bleating around here about their saving democracy by forcing their way into caucuses and conventions, they had better go home and knit bandages and pick lint and get ready to take care of their brothers, and sons, and fathers, who are going to be shot to pieces in the trenches abroad.

"And, take the boys in the trenches 'over there,' standing all night in two feet of ice water, with orders in their pockets to go over the top in the cold gray dawn, in a chilly fog, to put their unprotected bodies up against shot and shrapnel, and machine guns and poison gas, in addition to frozen feet! And they say they are going to fill each man's belly full of ice water before he starts as a moral stimulus to him. It is perfectly absurd! Every army abroad gives its men a drink of something to expand the cockles of the heart before they go up against the cold blue steel, and it may be the last one the poor devils will ever get. Yet you would think that this war is going to be won by such fads and fancies and frills as that.

"Now let us get down to brass tacks and win this war. Let us find out the facts, and let us investigate all these irregularities in a nonpartisan way and report to the representatives of the people, and then let the people pronounce the verdict."

AIRCRAFT INQUIRY BY THE SENATE

today under the President's instructions to investigate the Borglum charges. After consultation with advisers, he announced that he had placed Assistant Attorney General Frierson in charge of investigation. Mr. Gregory made this statement:

Attorney General's Statement.

"The Attorney General has received a letter from the President in regard to aircraft construction. The purpose of the investigation by the Department of Justice will be to determine whether there has been any dishonesty or malversion of any kind. In case either is developed, necessary steps to punish the guilty will be taken. The investigation will begin at once, and Assistant Attorney General William L. Frierson will be in immediate charge."

Mr. Frierson is one of the younger of the higher officials of the department. He will have a large personnel to assist him, including the officers and agents of the Division of Investigations, of which A. Bruce Bielaski is chief, the detective force of the department.

Mr. Gregory said there was ample law for the prosecution of offenders. It was asserted at the department that the investigation would be pushed with all the possible energy that was followed in the Hog Island inquiry.

No formal announcemsnt has been made by the War Department in regard to the request by Major Gen. George O. Squier, Chief Signal Officer of the Army, for the appointment of a military court of inquiry to investigate the charges affecting him and others made by Mr. Borglum. It was alleged by Mr. Borglum that General Squier attempted to impede his investigation. It is said to be likely that the request for a court of inquiry will not be granted in view of the investigation undertaken by the Attorney General and the inquiry to be made by the Senats Committee.

Among members of the two military committees of Congress there is a disposition to credit General Squier with having honestly believed that the elaborate assurances as to aircraft production would be carried out. General Squier was recently relieved from authority over military aeronautics, this section of the Signal Corps being placed in charge of Brig. Gen. Kenly, an artillery officer who has been in charge of aircraft activities in France.

AIRCRAFT FIGURES CONVINCE COMMITTEE

Graft Charges Baseless, House Members Declare—Potter Gives Construction Data.

WASHINGTON, May 7. — Figures presented to the House Military Affairs Committee today by W. C. Potter, Chief of the Equipment Division of the Aviation Section, United States Army, convinced members that much of the criticism leveled at the Administration would not have arisen had the War Department officials frankly explained from time to time the difficulties encountered in aircraft production.

This conclusion was reached by many members of the committee after a thorough presentation had been made to them of the progress and the present status of aviation production by officials connected with the aviation service. Some Republican members, after hearing from the experts, emphatically declared against an independent investigation and asserted that reasonable progress was now being made in the aircraft program.

The opinion was expressed by leading members of the House committee that there had been no corruption in the aviation contracts, and that while many mistakes had been made, chiefly due to lack of co-ordination, these had not led to undue waste in expenditures. These mistakes have been corrected, it was asserted.

The majority sentiment in the committee is opposed to any further inquiry into aviation. It was declared that the officials had fully satisfied the committee that the money had been honestly expended and that the aircraft situation was now well organized, satisfactory progress being made in production.

While the officials connected with aviation in the War Department refrained from making any specific charges that pro-German influence had operated against production, Mr. Potter declared that what was suspected to be German influence had brought about strikes in plants making airplanes and that sabotage had been practiced which was probably due to the same influences.

Secretary Baker, who appeared at the morning session, impressed upon the committee the utmost necessity for secrecy, and members were unwilling to go into details as to what had been testified to by Mr. Baker and the other officials.

Billion Dollars for Next Year.

The estimates for aviation for the next fiscal year submitted by Secretary Baker call for an expenditure of more than a billion dollars for the construction of flying machines. In stating the exact number of machines the War Department proposed to build and the types planned, Mr. Baker impressively requested the committee not to give the figures even to other Congressmen. It can be stated, without supplying the enemy with military information, that the program for next year calls for a number greatly in excess of 22,000, which were to be built out of the appropriation of $740,000,000 provided for aviation purposes this year.

Mr. Baker, whose testimony was of a highly confidential nature, was one of those who gave the committeemen assurances that the aviation program was now proceeding without undue delay. One member said the War Department had made a great mistake in not publishing a businesslike statement of the exact status of aircraft production and a recital of some of the difficulties met in the early stages. He said if the public had the exact figures as to production and were informed as to the necessary delays, much of the criticism that has developed would not have arisen, and confidence would have been inspired.

Mr. Potter answered in detail questions submitted in writing by the Subcommittee on Aviation. He frankly replied to every question, and explained fully just what had been done with the money appropriated by Congress for aviation. It was his full and frank explanation of the expenditures and the progress made which led members of the committee to express the opinion that the aviation program was now in a satisfactory condition.

Some Results Accomplished.

So far as could be learned, the $740,000,000 apportioned for aviation has been expended as follows:

The War Department has expended $307,000,000 for airplanes and fields.

There is an unexpended balance now on hand of $433,000,000.

Of the unexpended balance, all is covered by contract, and additional contracts have been let for machines and other equipment which provide for expenditures of $148,000,000 beyond the appropriation.

The money already expended has been used as follows:

For engines and airplanes and general machine equipment	$163,00,000
For hangars and the acquirement of aviation fields in this country	42,000,000
For aviation fields and other purposes in France	31,000,000
For gas balloons	6,000,000

There is $31,000,000 in the hands of the Disbursing Agents and not reported at the hearing.

The balance has been spent for miscellaneous aviation work, for experiments and other general expenses connected with the program.

Liberty motors are now being made at the rate of 100 a week, Mr. Potter informed the committee.

The Government has ordered 14,000 foreign planes, and 1,800 have been delivered, he said, while 8,000 foreign engines have been contracted for, the deliveries amounting to fewer than 1,500.

There are between 1,200 and 1,400 aviators actually flying with the American forces on the Western front.

There are 5,000 men physically fit and ready to enter the service, while there are 15,000 flying and non-flying aviation service officers in the United States and France.

In the Signal Corps today there are 133,000 men and officers, which exceeds the strength of the regular army when this country entered the war.

In discussing the Liberty motor, Mr. Potter said that it was not good for all classes of aviation work, but was especially adapted to hombing and heavy work. The French Government, which has made a contract for a large number of these motors, he said, had canceled part of the contract and ordered the building of Bugatti engines. He said that, while the American experts were satisfied that the Liberty motor was a good engine, it required a great breadth of wings, which necessarily meant a sacrifice of speed.

In the opinion of this witness, if any criticism might be made of the aircraft situation, it was that too much time had been consumed in developing a single type of engine, and that it might have been wiser and more economical to use existing types.

Liberty Motor Making Good.

One hundred Liberty motors have been shipped to France, Mr. Potter said, and, while France has contracted for Bugatti engines for scouting purposes, she still has orders for 10,000 Liberty motors with this Government. In addition to the Liberty and Bugatti motors, this country is making a large quantity of Hispano-Suiza engines.

Asked whether the Liberty motor was doing all that had been promised for it, Mr. Potter said it was, although it was not suitable for use in pursuit planes, needed for overtaking fast enemy flyers. Production of the twelve-cylinder Liberty motor, he said, had been very slow in the last month, but production was now 100 a week, with the number increasing. The motor, he said, is still in process of refinement and perfection.

In the last year, the witness added, 5,000 planes were built in this country, but these were training planes, unsuitable for any other purposes.

Mr. Potter said that he never saw Gutzon Borglum while the latter was making his investigation of the aviation program. He said he was familiar with the charges, and declared some of them were true, while others were without basis.

"Mr. Potter's explanation to the committee is very satisfactory to me, and, I think, to every one of the committee," said Representative Shallenberger of Nebraska. "We realize that the expenditure of the money provided by Congress last year has not resulted in the construction of any combat planes which we had expected to have. The production capacity of the country, however, is now ready for the making of airplanes. The committee believes, from Mr. Potter's statement, that production will now keep pace with the demand.

"Mr. Potter, in answer to a direct question from me, stated that there was nothing whatever at issue between the War Department and the Packard Motor Company. He said that the Packard people had conducted a line of preliminary experimental work on the Liberty motor, for which they have been paid approximately $200,000."

With the decision of the committee to abandon its announced plan of conducting a thorough investigation into the aviation program, the Military Appropriation bill will be drafted speedily and reported to the House within the next two weeks.

SEDITION BILL SENT TO WILSON BY HOUSE

MEYER LONDON PROTESTS

Socialist Objects to Elimination of Amendment Exempting Critics Who Speak the Truth.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Final legislative action was taken today on the Sedition bill, giving the Government broad new powers to punish disloyal acts and utterances. Adopting a conference report already approved by the Senate, the House sent to the President for his signature the measure which has been before Congress for weeks.

The President is expected to sign the bill promptly, and through vigorous enforcement of its provisions officials of the Department of Justice say they will be able to do much toward checking the wave of mob outbreaks for which unpunished disloyalty and enemy activity are blamed.

Penalties of twenty years, imprisonment or a fine of $10,000, or both, are provided in the bill for those convicted of uttering or printing disloyal, abusive, profane, scurrilous, contemptuous, or abusive language about the United States or the Government, or the form of government, or the flag, and for those who are convicted of favoring Germany or her allies in the present war.

Only Representative London of New York, the Socialist, voted against the conference report on the final test. Representatives Lundeen of Minnesota, Republican, and Church of California, Democrat, voted present.

Representative London sought vainly to send the report back to conference because of the elimination of the Senate amendment exempting those who in criticism of the Government speak the truth with good motives and for justifiable ends. Representative Gordon of Ohio, Democrat, declared the Senate placed language in the bill "which plainly is in viloation of the Federal Constitution guaranteeing free speech."

Others opposed the bill largely because of their objection to conferring new censorship powers on the Postmaster General who is authorized to refuse the service of the mails to any person or concern using the mails in violation of the proposed act.

Representative Johnson of Washington attacked Representative London's criticism of the provision against using abusive language against the Constitution of the United States, and wanted to know whether the Socialist member approved the activities of the I. W. W.

"When a group of conscienceless employers refuse to recognize the right of people to organize, they will have to deal with the I. W. W.," Representative London replied. "I believe the I. W. W. is the working out of the law of compensation."

"I am eternally opposed to having the Constitution made over along the lines of a Karl Marx book on socialism," retorted Mr. Johnson, "and I am also opposed to making the Stars and Stripes into a red flag of revolution for the anarchists, of the I. W. W., or the Socialists."

Representative Webb of North Carolina, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and Representative Graham of Pennsylvania, Republican, who led the fight for the report, insisted that the powers proposed were necessary and would not be abused.

Representative Wood of Indiana and Representative Green of Iowa, Republicans, objected to the powers given the Postmaster General. The mail censorship section reads as follows:

"The Postmaster General may upon evidence satisfactory to him that any person or concern is using the mails in violation of the provisions of this act instruct the Postmaster at any Post Office at which mail is received addressed to such person or concern to return to the Postmaster at the office at which they were originally mailed all letters or other matter so addressed, with the words, 'Mail to this address undeliverable under Espionage act,' plainly written or stamped upon the outside thereof, and all such letters or other matters so returned to such Postmasters shall be by them returned to the senders thereof under such regulations as the Postmaster General may prescribe."

Penalties under the bill would apply to those who make false reports or statements with intent to interfere with the operation or success of the military or naval forces of the United States, or to promote the success of its enemies, or say or do anything with intent to obstruct the sale of Government securities during the war. They would apply to those who attempt to incite insubordination or mutiny or refusal of duty in the military or naval forces, or retard recruiting, or to those who speak, write, or publish abusive language against the uniform of the soldier or sailor or the flag or the Constitution.

GOVERNOR ASSERTS PROHIBITION CAN WAIT

Tells Temperance Forces It Would Be Unwise to Call Extra Session to Consider It.

ALBANY, May 7.—There will be no extra session of the Legislature to consider ratification of the prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution. Governor Whitman made this plain today to a committee representing the temperance forces of the State which called upon him to express appreciation of his activities in favor of ratification. The committee was composed of Canon Chase of Brooklyn, representing the New York Civic League; Gordon H. Payne of Medina, representing the Good Templars, and Mrs. C. E. Lindsay, President of the Albany County Branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

The committee also assured the Governor that the temperance forces would support him in any decision he might make regarding an extra session of the Legislature, although it made no request for such a session.

"At present," said the Governor, "it does not seem wise nor desirable to convene an extra session. I have no information that would lead me to believe that there has been any change in the Legislature. As this is a matter that can be acted upon by any subsequent Legislature for the next six years, I do not feel that an emergency exists such as would justify calling the Legislature together in extraordinary session."

The split in the forces recently defeated in an effort to force Statewide prohibition, caused by the introduction of a resolution by Clinton N. Howard, an official of William J. Bryan's National Dry Federation, asking the delegates to a no-liquor conference in Albany on Monday to work for the ousting of William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the New York Anti-Saloon League, was widened yesterday by a statement which Mr. Anderson issued. In part, it was:

"I am perfectly willing to be abused to save the temperance cause from the disgrace and the contempt that would have been brought upon it, if its leadership had had no more gratitude or intelligence than to embarrass the only Governor who ever accomplished anything for prohibition, and had become the pliant tool in the hands of the Barnes-Brown-Sweet faction, in their scheme to protect themselves by using the prohibition forces as the means of turning the State over to Tammany as the only way in which they can throw off Governor Whitman's leadership of their party."

Mr. Anderson supplemented his formal statement by saying that the league championed Whitman for another term, and that the dry forces that had started the dissension were adroitly working for Speaker Sweet, who, Mr. Anderson said, felt the first sufring of Gubernatorial ambition. He declared that, using the prohibition wrangle as a weapon, the Speaker's supporters hoped to strike at the Governor.

LEWIS IS TO RUN AGAINST WHITMAN

Attorney General Will Be Candidate in the Republican Primaries.

GOVERNOR'S CAMP AROUSED

State Leaders, After Canvass of State, Determined to Put a New Man in the Field.

Attorney General Merton E. Lewis, who announced in Albany on Monday that he would not seek re-election to his present office, will become a candidate in the Republican primaries for the Gubernatorial nomination against Governor Whitman. This became known last night after Mr. Lewis had arrived in this city for conferences with Republican leaders who expect to give their support to his candidacy.

Official announcement of Attorney General Lewis's intentions may be delayed for several days. But a friend of the Attorney General is authority for the statement that whon he decided to withdraw his name from Governor Whitman's third-term primary slate it was with the sole object of beginning a rival quest for the Gubernatorial nomination.

Plans for a fight to thwart Governor Whitman in his designs for a third term and to block the only avenue open to the Governor for the realization of his ambition to become a prominent figure in the Presidential contest two years hence have been under discussion among a group of Republican leaders for some weeks. The name of Attorney General Lewis has been mentioned as a possible leader in the fight. More recently the name of United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., has occurred in the gossip growing out of these conferences. Word reached Albany from Washington on Monday that Senator Wadsworth definitely made up his mind to remain in the United States Senate. Within a very few hours announcement came from Attorney General Lewis that he would not be a candidate for re-election.

According to advices received from Albany last night, the announcement has caused a great stir in the Whitman camp, although friends of Governor Whitman declared that if Mr. Lewis had retired as a candidate for Attorney General in order to run for Governor they knew nothing about it. George A. Glynn, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, when interviewed at Albany, said that if Mr. Lewis intended to become a candidate for Governor he had reckoned without George W. Aldridge, Republican leader of Monroe County, the political habitat of the Attorney General.

"Mr. Aldridge has assured me personally that he and his Monroe County organization are for the renomination of Governor Whitman and will continue to support his candidacy to the end," was the statement made by Mr. Glynn.

A friend of Mr. Lewis said last night that the Republican leaders who are preparing to back him in his fight for the Gubernatorial nomination had canvassed the State carefully and found so much opposition to the renomination of Governor Whitman that they had decided it would be wise to put a new man in the field. Unrest among the farmers, disaffection among Republicans in all parts of the State on account of the Governor's stand on prohibition, a demand among up-State Republicans that an up-State Republican be designated for the nomination, and fear that Governor Whitman's aspirations for a third term in itself would prove a challenge as contrary to political tradition, it was said, were some of the considerations that had prompted the backers of the Lewis boom.

"We would be seriously handicapped with Governor Whitman as our candidate, because everybody knows that he is seeking a third term solely as a stepping stone to the Presidential nomination," said one of the Republican leaders identified with the Lewis movement last night. "Mr. Lewis seeks the nomination because he wants to be Governor and believes, as do his friends, that he is well equipped to render good service to the State in that position."

It is not believed that the opposition will put a full ticket in the field. Secretary of State Francis M. Hugo, it is known, will have a place on both tickets and get through without a primary fight. Little attention has been given to the filling of other places on the ticket to be headed by the former Attorney General. There has been some talk of inducing Speaker Thaddeus C. Sweet to accept a place on the ticket, probably for State Controller. In that event he would be pitted against Eugene M. Travis, the present Controller, who some months ago reached an understanding with Governor Whitman under which he was to run with him on the "Officeholders' Entente" third term ticket.

William Barnes, William L. Ward of Westchester, Harvey D. Hinman of Broome, Edgar Truman Brackett of Saratoga, Speaker Sweet of the Assembly, Senate Leader Elon R. Brown of Jefferson are among prominent Republican leaders who will support Mr. Lewis. That United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., will stand with the anti-Whitman forces if he decides to take an active part in the fight is certain.

Of "Old Guard" leaders who at present are considered friendly to the Governor are George W. Aldridge of Monroe, Francis Hendricks of Syracuse, Fred Greiner of Erie, J. Sloat Fassett of Chemung, Samuel S. Koenig of New York County, and Fred J. H. Kracke of Kings. Jacob A. Livingston, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Kings County Republican Committee, on the other hand, is opposed to the renomination of Governor Whitman, and has been taking an active part in the movement to put another candidate in the field.

SEES STATE VINDICATED.

Wisconsin's Loan Record Doesn't Show Disloyalty, Says Cooper.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Speaking in the House today, Representative Cooper of Wisconsin, Republican, declared the oversubscription to the Liberty Loan in Wisconsin furnished sufficient proof to refute insinuations of the State's disloyalty.

He called attention to the casualty list which a few days ago showed eighty-nine men from Wisconsin, and cited a large number of Wisconsin men aboard the torpedoed transport Tuscania.

DR. BOLDUAN TO QUIT CITY'S HEALTH WORK

A NEW MacBRIDE INQUIRY

Civil Service Head Expects to Reclassify Some Health Department Employes.

Dr. Charles F. Bolduan, Director of the Bureau of Public Health Education of the Health Department, it was announced yesterday by friends of his, has received a number of offers from other health organizations and will soon accept one of the places.

The removal of Dr. Balduan was one of the recommendations of Mayor Hylan's Health Department investigators, who also suggested that the work of the department could be managed by a $40 a week clerk. Dr. Royal S. Copeland, the new Health Commissioner, disagreed with this feature of the investigating committee's report.

The resignation of Dr. Bolduan, which will be tendered very soon, will permit carrying out at least part of the program of Chairman James E. MacBride of the Civil Service Commission and his confrères. It has been freely predicted that the bureau as a bureau would be abolished as soon as Dr. Bolduan departed. Commissioner Copeland's reiteration of his great interest in public health education has been taken to mean that he would include the work of the bureau among his many duties.

Chairman MacBride announced yesterday the discontinuance, at least temporarily, of the Civil Service Commission's investigation of alleged civil service irregularities in the Health Department. He also announced that beginning at 2 o'clock this afternoon there would be public hearings at the office of the commission in a general scheme for the reclassification of employes of all city departments. "This general reclassification may wipe out some inequalities that we have found exist in the Health Department," he said.

Dr. Bolduan has been with the Health Department since 1904, having been appointed in that year as bacteriologist in the Bureau of Laboratories. Following this he was for seven years assistant to Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, then the General Medical Officer of the department. When Dr. Biggs retired in 1914, Health Commissioner S. S. Goldwater formed the Bureau of Public Health Education and put Dr. Bolduan in charge.

Following a conference yesterday with officials of the department, Commissioner Copeland sent inspectors for a vigorous supervision of the sale of food during warm weather.

AMERICAN GUNNERS SAY THEY SANK U-BOAT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7. — Announcement was made by the Navy Department today that the American steamer Tidewater almost ran into a German submarine on March 17 and fired three shots, at least one of which is believed by officers and crew of the steamer to have been effective. The official announcement read:

"The commander of the armed guard on the steamship Tidewater reports to the Navy Department that on March 17, about 11:30 P. M., a submarine was sighted off the starboard bow, heading toward the vessel, about 150 yards off. As the ship turned it missed the submarine by not more than twenty feet. The U-boat was then submerging. The ship's guns were brought to bear, and the first shot hit some distance ahead of her wake.

"'The pointer fired the second shot,' says the report, 'and made what the Captain, the chief engineer, myself, and other members of the crew called a clean hit and was satisfied that it was effective. The third shot was fired by the boatswain's mate in charge of the after gun's crew, having her spotted and firing in the position she last submerged in. We resumed our course and commenced zig-zagging, standing by for an attack, but the submarine did not appear again. We made all preparations for an attack at daybreak, but there were no signs of a submarine.'"

OLD DOMINION LINER SUNK BY SUBMARINE

11 Men, Including 5 Naval Gunners, Lost on the Tyler Off the French Coast.

The Old Dominion liner Tyler and the Canadian Pacific Company's steamer Medora have been sunk off the French coast, according to a message received here yesterday by the Marine Insurance Company, which read: "Tyler and Medora victims of war peril." Additional information received in shipping circles is that eleven of the men on the Tyler were killed or drowned. Of these six were members of the crew and five were navy gunners. The members of the crew reported dead are:

Gragario Carro, coalpasser, Corunna, Spain; Fernando Lasse, Corunna, Spain; E. W. Mears, third assistant engineer, Washie Creek, Va.; F. Kauamato, messman, no address; Clarence E. Knowlton, oiler, 407 West Thirty-first Street, Norfolk, Va., and Jose Roderigues, fireman, Corunna, Spain.

The Tyler was sunk on May 3. She was one of the first vessels to be commandeered by the United States Shipping Board, being taken over last October, since when she had been engaged in the Italian trade.

SAVED BY A DESTROYER

Dived Overboard After Felling Commander and Came Up Behind Wreckage Which Hid Him.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, May 7.—To have felled a German U-boat commander on the deck of a submarine and then to have made his escape is the experience of Captain D. J. McDonald, the tall, ruddy Nova Scotian skipper of the three-masted schooner John G. Walter, now at the bottom of the Atlantic. His quickness in diving overboard and the timely appearance of an allied destroyer saved him. The Captain told of his experience today when he arrived on an American steamship.

The schooner, he said, was on her way from a Canadian port to England when she fell in with a submarine. The U-boat commander, after ordering the crew to take to their boats, sank her with bombs. He took the Captain off, however, and ordered him on board the U-boat. While some of the German crew were bringing over some of the stores taken from the Walter the two Captains stood on the deck and watched the proceedings.

"I guess you will have to make a visit to Germany," the German naval officer said.

Captain McDonald did not reply immediately. He waited a few seconds, and then his fist shot out and caught the German on the point of the jaw. As the U-boat commander fell stunned the Nova Scotian turned and went head first over the side.

"I swam under water as long as I could, and when I came up I was fortunate in emerging in such a position that one of the small boats was between me and the submarine."

FINDS CHEROKEE WAS UNFIT

Court of Inquiry Also Says Lost Tug Was Badly Handled.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Secretary Daniels today submitted to the House Naval Committee and made public the reports of the Board of Investigation and the later Court of Inquiry which were appointed to determine the responsibility for the foundering in a gale off Cape Henlopen on Feb. 27, 1918, of the naval tug Cherokee, with a loss of thirty lives, including that of Lieutenant E. D. Newell, the commanding officer. Both the Board of Investigation and the Court of Inquiry found that the loss of the tug was caused by the fact that the vessel was not in the most seaworthy condition and by errors of judgment, if not inferior seamanship, in handling the vessel.

The Cherokee was formerly the Edgar F. Luckenbach, and was taken over by the Government in the Fall of 1917 from the Luckenbach Steamship Company.

WARTIME CURRENCY NEXT.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Designed for the nation's first wartime currency, Federal Reserve Bank notes of $1 and $2 denominations today were approved by the Treasury, and the new bills will appear in general circulation about July 4.

A symbol of the war period is given to the reverse side of the $2 note in the design of one of the newest battleships. The face of the $2 notes bears a portrait of Thomas Jefferson. The face of the $1 note carries a portrait of George Washington, and the reverse side has a design of the spread eagle in warlike attitude clutching the American flag.

The bills are intended to replace silver certificates, about $80,000,000 of which have been withdrawn from circulation in the last two weeks, as the silver which secured them was melted into bullion under the new Silver act.

Form-fitting knitted and loose-fitting woven garments—fine in quality, non-irritating—light, and cool. All styles.

A Right Size for Everybody.

Why Not Bring Style Closer To Service

THE average man has no interest in a confusing variety of shoe styles. He wants a shoe to fit his foot—on a last endorsed by the leaders in foot fashions.

He gets what he wants here—100% shoe value and dependability—and he gets it cheaper. He isn't paying for a lot of odds and ends, "out of styles" and "left overs"—by-products of catch-fancy styling. And a store like this can always afford to have his size in stock.

The Regal Shoe Company, as a nation-wide institution, standardizes shoe values—concentrates all its factories exclusively on the most wanted lasts and leathers, cuts out the waste—sells the right style in a shoe that gives service on your foot.

We expect to be in business a long while.

MRS. VIBBARD IS HEARD

"Most Pleasant Session the Executive Committee Ever Held," Is Alfred E. Smith's Comment.

Tammany tradition was completely upset yesterday when the Fourteenth Street organization elected thirty-two women as members of its Executive Committee. Henceforth women will be on the same footing as the men in every Tammany district in the city and in the councils of the wigwam where Charles F. Murphy presides. There are five women district leaders yet to be selected, but they will be chosen within a few days, and then the organization will boast of seventy-four district leaders—thirty-seven men and thirty-seven women.

Although there are only twenty-three Assembly districts in New York County, some of the districts have had two and three leaders each. In those districts having two representatives each will have half a vote; in the districts having four each will have one-quarter of a vote, and in those having six leaders each will have one-sixth of a vote. The women selected yesterday will serve on the Executive Committee until the Fall primaries, when they and others will be chosen from the duly elected women members of the General Committee of the Democratic Party from each of the twenty-three districts.

Practically all of the regular Tammany leaders were present at the Hall yesterday. Leader Murphy was beaming with smiles and complimented the women on the interest they were taking in politics. The oldest Tammany leaders had pleasant things to say to the newcomers. Paddy Craig, the custodian of the building, had gallantly placed the new chairs in the meeting room down in front and the women took them as a matter of course. When some one suggested that it wasn't necessary to separate the women and wanted them scattered about the hall, Mr. Murphy, with a smile, insisted that the women should have the place of honor. He greeted each new member jovially and some of them remarked later that the "Chief" did not appear anything like his enemies had portrayed him. Many of the women leaders Mr. Murphy had never seen before. The women appeared to be perfectly at ease, and one of them, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Vibbard of the Twenty-third district, co-leader with Thomas F. McAvoy, made a speech.

Fire Woman's Motion Carried.

The proceedings got under way after there was a short talk on thrift stamps and some picture taking. Judge John R. Voorhis, 90 years old and the Grand Sachem of the organization, spoke of the work the Democratic organization has done for progressive legislation and also gave a general talk on the technical side of the ballot law. State Senator Robert F. Wagner, Chairman of the Democratic County Committee, told of the achievements of the Democrats at Albany in enacting legislation protecting women and children, especially in the labor field; Alfred E. Smith, President of the Board of Aldermen, discoursed on party election machinery, and Judge Edward F. Boyle also talked along the same lines.

At this point Frank Goodwin, Chairman of the committee to select the women in the various districts, suggested that the committee be discontinued, but Mr. Murphy asserted his authority and ruled that the committee keep on with its work until selections had been made in the Eleventh and the Twentieth Districts. Mrs. Vibbard at this point moved that the committee go on record as favoring legislation in Washington which would put the nurses of the Red Cross on the same footing as regards rank as members of the military establishment. It was the first motion ever put by a woman in the councils of the Tammany organization, and it was passed unanimously.

To give the setting a regular Tammany flavor, it developed that a contest has already sprung up among the women of the Twentieth District for leadership. Frank J. Hendricks is the male leader of the district and so many women contestants entered the field that it was impossible to make a choice in time for yesterday's meeting. At least six women, it was said, want to represent that district. The district committees have the selection of the women leaders and it is expected that the committee in the Twentieth District will make its selection in time for the woman leader chosen to sit in at the next meeting of the Executive Committee. In the Eleventh District, where James J. Hearn is leader, no contest has developed, but the District Committee failed to make a selection.

"All was harmony," said Mr. Murphy after the meeting. "I was very much impressed. These women are real leaders. They seemed earnest and very much interested."

Alfred E. Smith said: "It was probably the liveliest and most pleasant session the Executive Committee ever held." When asked what he meant by "liveliest," Mr. Smith replied: "Oh, I mean the most pleasant, you know."

The New Leaders.

Among the women selected are several prominent in charitable and women's affairs. The line up of the Assembly District leaders is now as follows:

BLAMES AMERICA'S PRESS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 7.—The Vossische Zeitung learns from Switzerland that a German named Robert Prager, from Dresden, but living in Collinsville, Ill., was taken by a mob and hanged in a wood. It says Prager was accused of espionage by his neighbor because he talked German with an unknown woman in St. Louis.

"In reality there was nothing against Prager, and the Mayor refused to arrest him, as the offense was perpetrated outside the city precincts," the paper says.

The mob intended only to tar and feather Prager, but, finding no tar, hanged him, according to the Vossische Zeitung, which remarks that the American press is much perturbed over this lynching, but "it may be added that the American press is largely guilty owing to its love of sensation."

According to Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, who is in New York establishment committee headquarters and getting acquainted with local Republican leaders, women should take a prominent part in politics and work ehoulder to shoulder with the men. The Chairman said he was expressing only his own personal opinion, and had no thought of laying down any rule to be followed by the State leaders.

The check was presented at exercises held last night to commemorate the institution's fiftieth anniversary.

East Orange Votes to Go "Dry."

NEWARK, May 7.—East Orange voted to go "dry" in the local option election there today. The vote was 2,481 against 2,310, a majority of 171. The result may be changed when the votes of 500 soldiers are counted.

WIGGIN GIVES HIS REASONS.

Resigned as Fuel Head to Give All His Time to Banking Interests.

Albert H. Wiggin, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chase National Bank, told yesterday why he had resigned as Fuel Administrator for New York State after the arduous days of the Winter coal famine.

"I am next in line as Chairman of the Clearing House Committee," he said, "and that, with my duties as Chairman of the Board of Directors of the bank here, I did not feel that it was right for me to try and hold the office of Fuel Administrator as well, and the banking business is my business primarily, so that I cannot neglect that. Accordingly I offered my resignation verbally to Dr. Garfield some six weeks ago, as I did not want to wait until the Fall, when the fuel situation would have become acute. I heard nothing from him about it until a week ago. Yesterday I sent my resignation in writing."

Mr. Wiggin said that he had no idea who would be appointed to succeed him. Three men are said to be mentioned for the place—George W. Perkins, Reeve Schley, the New York County Fuel Administrator, and Harry T. Peters, Chairman of the Coal Conservation Committee of the State Fuel Administration.

SIGNS CITY PENSION BILLS.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 7.—Governor Whitman, by signing the Hill bill today, exempts farmers, gardeners, and dairymen, members of co-operative associations, from provisions of the Donnelly Anti-Trust act relating to restraining trade. The Governor also signed the Wickes bill exempting them from the conspiracy provisions of the penal law.

In relation to the Hill bill, Governor Whitman declared that, while there may be some doubt as to the constitutionality of the measure, he believes it will prove constitutional because of changed conditions. Farmers, he said, are forced to sell their products to corporations.

The Governor also signed several New York City pension bills, including one authorizing the Board of Education in a city of over 100,000 population to establish a pension system for all classified civil service employes of the board.

SELL $12,000,000 WAR STAMPS HERE

NAILS FOR KAISER'S COFFIN

Under the stimulus of Thrift Stamp Day the sale of War Savings Stamps in New York, it was announced by the committee yesterday, had passed the $12,000,000 mark. Reports from post offices and the Federal Reserve Bank showed a total of $916,103 from the sale of stamps in the last six days, more than a third of this total being realized through the activity of 3,700 workers on Thrift Stamp Day alone.

The activity was even greater yesterday than on Monday, and promises to continue for the week. At all the tents the workers carried on a flourishing business, especially in the busy hours. At Frankfort and Nassau streets the tents containing the remains of "Bill Hohenzollern," who died, according to the inscription on his coffin, "of W. S. S., 1918," continued to attract throngs who cheerfully bought stamps for the privilege of driving nails into his imperial coffin. One Italian woman in an excess of emotion reverently crossed herself, muttering in her native tongue:

"Thank God, he's dead at last!"

In the department stores the thrift banks recorded large sales. In most of the stores a space near the main entrance was devoted to stamps, and at each counter the girls were instructed to call the attention of purchasers to the biggest bargain. Among the windows which attracted special attention yesterday were Best's and McCreery's. Both illustrate the appeal of War Savings to the children. McCreery's window depicts a schoolroom, with the teacher pointing to a sum on the blackboard, which reads:

26 cents—1 thrift stamp.
1 war savings certificate—$100 in 1923.

In Best's window a War Savings Stamp agent is seated at a desk, while a family of father, mother, and children files by to purchase stamps to fill Thrift Cards which they hold in their hands.

Macy's display consists of the interior of a house in which a mother and her boys are seated looking through the window at a battle scene in the background.

In the window of Franklin Simon's store, Liberty and the Kaiser appear at opposite ends of a scale, with the Kaiser having the best of it. A sign appeals to loyal Americans to pile their money upon Liberty's end of the balance to give the decision.

Leon Rothier and Mme. Frances Alda of the Metropolitan Opera Company have been added to the program for the War Thrift Festival at the Polo Grounds on Sunday, June 2. Rothier will sing "The Marseillaise" and Mme. Alda will sing "The Star Spangled Banner."

Next Wednesday will be "Ticket Day" for the festival. Women from patriotic bodies will canvass the city and the surrounding territory as far north as Albany in automobiles, selling tickets.

The pushcart peddlers of the east side took an active part in the campaign yesterday. Looking down Rivington, Grand, and Orchard Streets, it seemed as though Thrift Stamps had been translated into every conceivable tongue. On every pushcart hung a large placard explaining that the Government would give $5 in 1923 for every $4.16 invested during the present month.

Denies Transfer of Veteran Corps.

Announcement was made yesterday by Lieutenant H. Schieffelin Sayers, Adjutant of the Veteran Corps of Artillery of New York State, that the corps in its entirety had not been transferred to the Ninth Coast Artillery Corps. Lieutenant Sayers said that several hundred of the veterans, organized as provisional batteries, had gone over to the 9th and to the 23d Infantry, the transferred men being largely recruits obtained under a temporary suspension of the regiment's rule of making eligible only descendants of veterans of the Revolution and the war of 1812. Still intact as an organization, the corps, he said, was busily preparing for the work laid out for it in connection with the defense of the city.

Two Killed Avoiding Collision.

Two men were killed yesterday while trying to avoid collision with a boy on a bicycle. The motor cycle on which they were riding skidded and struck an elevated railroad pillar at Graham Avenue on Second Avenue, Astoria. One of the men killed was John Bauer, 21 years old, of 318 East Ninety-fourth Street, Manhattan. His companion was Frederick Johnson of Richmond Hill. The boy on the bicycle was Thomas Lillis of 126 Flushing Avenue.

This Amount Will Be Exceeded, as Many Reports Are Still to be Tabulated.

Julia Richman High Wins First Honors with Sales of $1,909,150 —First Payment Tomorrow.

The prediction that the New York district's subscriptions to the third Liberty Loan would total more than $1,000,000,000 was realized yesterday when the Federal Reserve Bank announced that the tabulated returns showed an aggregate of $1,002,900,200, with a large number of reports still to come. The banks have until tomorrow to make their final returns and the Reserve Bank has until Monday to forward its figures to the Treasury Department in Washington.

The initial payment of 5 per cent. on the bonds will have to be made tomorrow. These will be effected in three ways: First, the banks may pay into the Reserve Bank cash or its equivalent; second, they may credit the Government with a deposit on their books; and third, they may turn in Treasury certificates of indebtedness.

There will mature tomorrow $500,000,000 of 4 per cent. certificates, but the banks are not restricted to this issue in making their payments; they may turn in some of the 4¼ per cent. certificates which mature May 28, June 18, July 9, and July 18; but they are not likely to do so for the reason that the later issues bear an interest rate which is ¼ per cent. higher than the bonds. The 4 per cent. certificates issued in anticipation of tax receipts and maturing June 25 are not available in payment of Liberty Loan subscriptions.

The sales of cash bonds "over the counter" have amounted to approximately $135,000,000 in this district.

The public schools of New York City have, almost in every instance, exceeded the quotas allotted them by Dr. William J. O'Shea, District Superintendent, in charge of war service activities. With returns still incomplete, 524,205 subscriptions, totaling $52,756,600, have been reported. The record, by boroughs, follows:

	Number of Subscriptions.	Amount of Subscriptions.

The Julia Richman High School earned first honors in the drive with 11,870 subscriptions, representing $1,909,150.

The New York Evening High School for Women and the Brooklyn Evening High School for Men lead the list of the city's evening high schools. Public School 93 in Manhattan earned first honors in the elementary schools division with a total of $803,450. Public School 39 in the Bronx was second with $631,250. Public School 24 in Manhattan and Public School 48 in the Bronx are putting up a great race for third place with totals of $436,200 and $434,400, respectively.

Among the Brooklyn schools, Public School 92 is fifth in the whole city and has a long lead in its home borough, with a total of 2,166 subscriptions, representing $424,700. In Queens, Public School 77 was first with $173,000 and 2,185 subscriptions. Public School 30 headed all the elementary schools.

Here are the high schools that have raised more than $200,000:

The Pennsylvania Railroad announced yesterday that subscriptions to the loan amounting to $12,051,900 had been received from 201,350, or more than 80 per cent., of its employes.

James S. Long, President of the Surveyor's Customs Welfare Association, announced yesterday that a 100 per cent. Every employe of every department in the Custom House subscribed to bonds.

Speaking before the Harlem Board of Commerce at 125th Street and Lenox Avenue last night, Police Commissioner Enright said that the members of the Police Department had subscribed for and obtained subscriptions for $19,000,000 of Liberty bonds of the three issues.

PRESIDENT AT THE CIRCUS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The President and Mrs. Wilson went to Barnum & Bailey's Circus tonight. They bought peanuts and apparently enjoyed themselves in the conventional circus way. They remained for the concert, and when they left the crowd of 16,000 people, the biggest ever seen inside the big tent in Washington, cheered heartily.

The President and Mrs. Wilson entered the big tent through a rear entrance and thereby unknowingly evaded the payment of the war tax which is collected by the ticket takers at the main gate. When the President had been seated one of the circus attendants approached him and requested the payment of the tax. "How much is it?" asked the President, and when he was told that it was 15 cents, Mr. Wilson handed the attendant a quarter.

"Keep the change," said the President.

"I'm not permitted to," answered the circus man, handing a dime to the President.

Half a dozen members of the Cabinet were present with members of their families and were seated in boxes near the President and Mrs. Wilson.

Palmer Advertising and Commercial Agency. Three years later he obtained an interest in this business.

He served in the civil war with the 37th Regiment, and during the draft riots which took place in this city was reported to have aided Horace Greeley, then editor of The New York Tribune, to escape from the rioters. Mr. Sharpe is survived by his wife and a son, Dr. William Fargo Sharpe of Cambridge, Mass.

URGES UNIONISTS TO FIGHT HOME RULE

CALLS SINN FEIN TRAITORS

Unionist M. P.'s Ask Bonar Law for a Statement as to the Home Rule Bill.

LONDON, May 7.—Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, in another forcible letter to the press, warns the Government of the danger of its Home Rule policy. He expresses doubt as to whether the Government really intends to apply conscription to Ireland and urges the Unionist Party to compel reconsideration of the Government's policy.

"I cannot but think it will be a great calamity if, in the midst of the war, and at its most critical period," says Sir Edward's letter, "the Unionist Party, which is the main support of the Government, should be rent asunder by a revival of the home rule controversy. * * * The action of the Nationalists, Sinn Fein, and the Roman Catholic hierarchy have demonstrated how useless imperial reservations and paper safeguards must be in any Irish settlement.

"The advocates of a Federal plan have here most convincing proof it is not one which will satisfy Nationalist aspirations. If the Defense of the Realm act is not accepted in spirit as well as in letter as a part of the functions of the Imperial Parliament, it is idle to suppose that any reservations will be of any avail.

"But do the Government really intend to enforce conscription? I already have expressed grave doubts in this matter, and since that time it has been made clear by Minister Barnes that no such intention exists, at all events until home rule has become law.

"The appointment as Chief Secretary for Ireland of Edward Shortt, who opposed conscription for Ireland, is an indication in the same direction. Do the Government really contemplate that after setting up an Irish Government opposed to conscription its first action will be to fall foul of a Government of their own creation? It is evident that the situation is so changed that a vast body of the Southern Irish Unionists no longer support the action of Viscount Midleton and the Southern Unionist delegates at the convention. May I add also that the Government has the clearest evidence in its possession that the Sinn Fein organization is and has been in alliance with Germany?

"Have the Government calculated what part that organization will play in the new Irish Goverment? Where, then, does the benefit to the prosecution of the war come in? That is and must be the paramount consideration."

Then, referring to the manner of "loyal Ulster, waiting to claim confidence that specific pledges to her will be redeemed," Sir Edward says:

"This calm, it must be recollected, is an indication not of weakness, but of strength. I appeal, therefore, to the Unionist members of the Government and to the Unionist Party to compel a reconsideration of this matter before we have fratricidal conflict at a time when our whole energy should be devoted to the prosecution of the war."

The Unionist members of Parliament are signing a requisition asking Andrew Bonar Law, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, to summon a party meeting for Thursday in order that a full statement may be made concerning the Home Rule bill.

Ireland remains remarkably quiet, says the Dublin correspondent of The Daily Mail in reporting on conditions there incident to the anti-conscription campaign.

"Although the Church is raising," he adds, "an enormous 'national defense fund' which is ostensibly being collected to fight conscription, it apparently does not prefer to accept responsibility for the manner in which the money is spent, and control of the fund has passed into the hands of the Sinn Fein. The lists of names of men who signed the anti-conscription pledge under the direction of the priests is said to be in the hands of Sinn Feiners as a basis for a registration system.

"Conditions appear daily to be growing worse as Nationalism is being spread further along on the Sinn Fein flood. Moderate men of the Irish Convention have faded out of public recognition, and it is quite obvious that whatever are the Government's Home Rule proposals they will be rejected contemptuously by the bulk of the country and denounced more passionately than was conscription.

"The shortage of silver continues very acute, and difficulty in making change has almost paralyzed business in some towns. Postage stamps are being used in the midlands and in the west instead of coin. The Bank of Ireland has received in the last three months a supply of silver five times greater as compared with the same period in previous years, but as long as the hoarding continues all efforts to meet the shortage probably will be futile."

DUBLIN, May 7.—Denial that the Irish Episcopate was influenced by the Vatican in opposing conscription was made in a speech at Thurles on Monday by the Most Rev. John Harty, Archbishop of Cashel. All talk about any action by the Pope, he said, arose in the imagination of some English bigots who had attempted by a cry of "No Popery" to intimidate the Irish Bishops.

The English Catholic Union, he added, talked of appealing to the Holy See, but it did not represent all the Catholics in England, Archbishop Harty continued:

"If they appeal to the Holy See, it is not the Irish Bishops who will suffer."

The Irish Bishops had interfered in the conscription issue, he declared, because conscription raised moral and religious questions.

COLT'S REFUSES STATEMENT

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 7.—Officials of Colt's Patent Fire Arms Manufacturing Company declined tonight to give out information that would either confirm or deny the reports regarding the alleged failure in the production of heavy Browning guns.

However, it is asserted that many of the statements made in the newspapers are beyond belief. One said that 3,000 Browning heavy guns were to be delivered in June of this year. This statement is said to be absolutely untrue, as it would be a physical impossibility to manufacture and deliver that number of guns by next month.

Another article said that no Browning guns could be delivered this year. It is asserted that all promised deliveries will be made by the Colt Company.

Nearly a year ago the Colt Company discontinued its commercial business, and at the present time it is engaged in Government work to the extent of at least 95 per cent. of production.

FIGHT ON GERMAN MUSIC.

Mrs. Field Criticises Organ Recital Program at City College.

Mrs. Oliver Cromwell Field, President of the American Relief Legion and Chairman of the American Defense Society's committee for suppressing all things German, announced yesterday that she was going to make a fight against German music. She severely criticised Samuel Baldwin's program for yesterday's free organ recital at City College, which contained airs from Wagner, Shubert and Bach. She said she had vainly tried to get Mr. Baldwin to eliminate the

WILSON PROCLAIMS "RED CROSS WEEK"

Issues Appeal to America to Aid $100,000,000 Drive Beginning May 20.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—President Wilson today issued a proclamation appealing to the American people in behalf of the American Red Cross, whose second war fund campaign to raise $100,000,000 is to begin May 20 and continue throughout that entire week. The President issued a proclamation fixing the week of May 20 as Red Cross Week, and urges that generous contributions be made to so worthy a cause. The text of the proclamation follows:

Proclamation.

Inasmuch as the War Fund of 1917, so generously contributed by the American people to the American Red Cross for the administration of relief at home and abroad, has been practically exhausted by appropriations for the welfare of the men in our military and naval forces and for those dependent upon them, and for the yet more urgent necessities of our allies, military and civilian, who have long borne the brunt of war;

And, inasmuch as the American Red Cross is recognized by law and international conventions as the public instrumentality for war relief;

And, inasmuch as the year of our own participation in the war has brought unprecedented demands upon the patriotism and liberality of our people, and made evident the necessity of concentrating the work of relief in one main organization which can respond effectively and universally to the needs of humanity under stress of war;

And, inasmuch as the duration of the war and the closer and closer co-operation of the American Red Cross with our own army and navy, with the Governments of our allies and with foreign relief organizations have resulted in the discovery of new opportunities of helpfulness under conditions which translate opportunity into duty;

And, inasmuch as the American Red Cross War Council and its Commissioners in Europe have faithfully and economically administered the people's trust:

Now, therefore, by virtue of my authority as President of the United States and President of the American Red Cross, I, Woodrow Wilson, do hereby proclaim the week beginning May 20, 1918, as "Red Cross Week," during which the people of the United States will be called upon again to give generously to the continuation of the important work of relieving distress, restoring the waste of war, and assisting in maintaining the morale of our own troops and the troops and peoples of our allies by this manifestation of effort and sacrifice on the part of those who, though not privileged to bear arms, are of one spirit, purpose, and determination with our warriors.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done in the District of Columbia, this 4th day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighteen, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and forty-second.

WOODROW WILSON.

By the President:
ROBERT LANSING, Secretary of State.

CITY'S QUOTA IS $25,000,000.

10,000 Canvassers, Besides 30 Teams, Will Push Drive Here.

William C. Breed, Chairman of the American Red Cross War Fund Committee of New York, said yesterday that he was confident New York City would not fall short of its quota of $25,000,000 in the drive for $100,000,000.

"The work of preparation for the campaign by which $100,000,000 is to be raised for the American Red Cross has been going steadily forward since the first of the year," said Mr. Breed.

"Here in New York volunteers have been forming themselves into an organization which we hope will prove itself to be of real worth. Many of us have been steadily at work since the early part of January. New York's quota in this campaign will be $25,000,000, and I am confident that the city will not fall short of the amount expected from it."

Otto J. Stephens, Chairman of the Bronx County Chapter of the American Red Cross, announced yesterday that the quota for the Bronx in the coming Red Cross campaign was $1,000,000. He declared he was optimistic about the outcome, as the Bronx subscribed $13,000,000 to the recent Third Liberty Loan, although not one-third of that amount was credited to the northern borough because of the designation of downtown banks by subscribers. Headquarters have been opened in the Harvey Building, in East 140th Street. On May 18 there will be a parade in the Bronx.

WILSON THANKS COUNCILS.

Sends Letters to State Bodies Summoning War Conferences.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The President today sent the following telegram to the New Jersey State Council of Defense:

"May I not express to the war workers of New Jersey my profound appreciation of the public spirit that has led you to call a war conference at Trenton on May 7? In our fight for the rights of free men the world over your efforts and the efforts of your fellow-citizens are a vital factor. Your determination to perform the necessary labor and accept the necessary sacrifice and the like spirit which has now become manifest throughout our nation reassure a stricken world that our ideals of justice and humanity and liberty shall in the end prevail. WOODROW WILSON."

Similar telegrams have been sent by the President to the State Councils of Defense in all States holding war conferences this month.

SALVATIONISTS START DRIVE

$35,747.45 Is Raised Toward the Goal of $250,000.

The first full day of the week's campaign for the $250,000 which the General War Work Committee of the Salvation Army is attempting to raise in this city saw hundreds of workers throughout the five boroughs working for subscriptions yesterday. When the results of the day's work were announced last night it was said that no full reports had been received as yet from Brooklyn, Queens, and the Bronx, but that the subscriptions yesterday had totaled $6,507.45 in Manhattan and $1,152 in Richmond. With the $28,000 of advance subscriptions the fund now amounts to $35,747.45.

WEAR OUT YOUR CLOTHING

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The Council of National Defense, with the sanction of the War Industries Board, is soon to begin a nation wide economy campaign of the proportions of the food conservation drive. State councils have been asked to co-operate. Much literature will be distributed, and the Four-Minute Men may be called upon to aid in placing the facts before the country.

The authorities want the people to refrain from extravagance and save money to buy Liberty bonds and War Savings Stamps. It is held that such a movement, involving millions of people, not only would conserve the finances of the nation for the advancement of the war, but also would bring about curtailment of less essential industries and save tremendous quantities of materials for war purposes.

Walter S. Gifford, Director of the Council, and Julius Rosenwald, a member of the Advisory Committee, gave their views today of the effort which the American people should make to help win the war by practising economy.

"The plan we have outlined," said Mr. Gifford, "will help answer the question, 'What can I do to aid in winning the war?' Every one who practises economy will be doing a most vital thing.

"I believe we are rapidly coming to a time when people who practise extravagance will be looked upon as slackers. A person who is overdressed in such a time as this ought to be looked upon with disfavor, not as one who attracts envy. We should all feel that it is the patriotic thing to wear clothes as long as we can. Let's buy a suit, or dress, when it is necessary, but not when it is purely a luxury, and we already have enough."

"The sooner that spirit is awakened in our people," said Mr. Rosenwald, "the better for every one concerned—except the Kaiser. A nation is great and powerful to the extent that its people are thrifty. We should all adjust ourselves to the conditions faced; the sooner we do that the sooner shall we win the war."

Official Statement Issued.

Mr. Gifford made public this statement, authorized by the members of the Council of National Defense and other Government officials:

"The Council of National Defense and the Advisory Commission of the council believe that a concerted effort for economy by the people of the nation will not only go far toward paying America's expenses in the war, but will also reduce consumption of raw and manufactured materials essential to the conduct of the war.

"The council urges all to refrain from unnecessary expenditures of every kind and to bear constantly in mind that only one thing is of real importance, and that is the winning of the war.

"The nation's resources in man power, money, transportation, foodstuffs, raw materials, and fuel have already been subjected to heavy strain, and it is the clear duty of every citizen to guard against increasing this strain by a single wasteful act.

"It is most creditable for every one—man and woman, boy and girl—to be economical in dress, food, and manner of living. Every evidence of helpful self-denial on the part of all in a time like this is most commendable.

"This war is more than a conflict between armies; it is a contest to which every man, woman, and child can and should render assistance. Thrift and economy is not only a patriotic privilege. It is a duty."

Mr. Gifford said that all angles of the question had received careful consideration, including that of disturbance of labor. It was felt that the change would come about so slowly that labor would adjust itself without serious disturbance.

Better Than Forced Curtailment.

"The advisability of making public a list of so-called nonessentials or less-essentials has been thoroughly discussed," said Mr. Gifford, "and it was decided not to take that step. We found that it was almost impossible to discriminate between essentials and nonessentials—in fact, we came to the conclusion that there was nothing which might be called absolutely nonessential. but if the people themselves will refuse to buy things which they know are luxuries to them, and conserve their money instead, this voluntary action may solve the problem.

"This campaign applies to the very rich, as well as to people who have not so much money to spend, and we hope that it will prevent a condition which might be caused by compulsory curtailment of industries, which would make many things available only to the rich, because the supply would be suddenly cut down. If all practice economy and the curtailment of industries is the result of the falling off in the demand for articles, there would not be the excuse for a jump in prices which would follow the suspension of the laws of supply and demand."

Mr. Gifford said that asking the people to cut down their expenses in connection with moving-picture houses and theatres had not been considered.

"We didn't look upon places of amusement as in the luxury class at this time," he said.

WILL DEFY SUBMARINES TO SHIP GRAIN TO SWISS

Stovall Assures Berne That Germany's Threats Will Not Deter Us.

BERNE, May 7.—Pleasant A. Stovall, the American Minister to Switzerland, has notified the Swiss Government that shipments of American grain for Switzerland are to continue, even within the next three months, a period of delay which Germany has declared to be necessary for the communication of orders to German submarines concerning the future safe conduct of grain ships with cargoes for Switzerland. The American note says that this delay would be equivalent to maintaining an armed blockade against Switzerland, and adds:

"The Government of the United States accepts the challenge. Two ships flying the American flag are at the present moment on their way to a French Atlantic port loaded with wheat for Switzerland, escorted by the American Navy."

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 7.—Lieutenant W. W. Smith of Topeka, Kan., an instructor at Scott Field, a Government training camp for aviators at Belleville, Ill., was killed tonight when he lost control of his machine and fell 500 feet. A cadet in the airplane with him was not seriously injured.

APPROVES OVERMAN BILL.

House Judiciary Committee, 15 to 1, Orders Favorable Report.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The Overman bill granting broad powers to the President to reorganize and co-ordinate government departments was ordered favorably reported to the House today by the Judiciary Committee by a vote of 15 to 1.

An amendment by Representative Walsh, Republican, of Massachusetts, to exempt the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Reserve Board was defeated, 12 to 6. Another proposal to change the language of some sections was defeated without a record vote.

Chairman Webb announced efforts would be made to bring the bill to an early vote.

SHOWS 'THE DANCING GIRL.'

Gustav Amberg Gives a German Play Its First Production Here.

A brief supplementary season of German drama began at the Irving Place Theatre last night with the first production in this country of a play called "Die Tänzerin," ("The Dancing Girl,") the work of Melchior Lengyel. The production was made under the direction of Gustav Amberg, formerly director of the Irving Place company, and lobby gossip was to the effect that the piece was being staged principally in an effort to decide upon its possibilities for the English-speaking stage. Color was lent to this theory by the presence in the audience of a number of well-known theatrical figures.

The piece, which tells the story of an actress compelled to decide between a lover and a career, is classed as a comedy, but it is only in the continental sense of the word (there every play not a tragedy is regarded as a comedy) that the piece falls within that classification. The American adapter is likely to find himself with no inconsiderable task on his hands. The second act of the piece is the best; the others are rather over-furnished with words. It is possible, also, that good taste would dictate one or two radical changes.

The piece is well played at the Irving Place by a cast which includes Jenny Valliere as the dancing girl and Hans Unterkirchner as the lover. It will be repeated tomorrow night and Saturday afternoon.

DEAN KEPPEL QUITS COLUMBIA FACULTY

Third Assistant Secretary of War Is Succeeded by Professor H. E. Hawkes.

CREDITS FOR WAR STUDENTS

Men Who Leave College for Service to Receive Certificates Classing Them as Alumni.

President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia yesterday made public the resignation of Frederick Paul Keppel, Dean of Columbia College, who received a leave of absence last Spring to enter the War Department at a salary of $1 a year and who recently was appointed Third Assistant Secretary of War. The Board of Trustees at Columbia has accepted Dean Keppel's resignation and has appointed Professor Herbert E. Hawkes in his place. Dr. Hawkes, who was Professor of Mathematics, is a Yale graduate and has been acting as Dean.

President Butler further announced the appointment of Professor George B. Pegram of the department of physics, to be Dean of the Faculty of Applied Science to fill a vacancy which has existed for several years. Professor Pegram has been acting Dean of the Faculty for some time.

Coincident with these announcements were two others which directly concerned the College and the Applied Science Faculties. The first was of special interest to undergraduates in the college department, for under a new provision all college men in good standing who leave their studies to enter the national service are to receive what is known as a "Bachelor of Arts Certificate for National Service," provided they remain in the service from the time they leave college to the date on which they would have received a degree. When the Faculty has been satisfied that such requirement has been met, the man will receive his certificate at the same time his classmates who remained in college get their degrees. This certificate, it was said, will be recognized by the university as entitling holders to be classed an alumni of the college with their several classes and as being entitled to the usual academic privileges.

Dean Hawkes said he believed this provision would meet objections which had been made to giving an academic degree to men who had not actually completed their course at college and who, in the opinion of many persons, had not earned such an award. Columbia's plan, it was pointed out, would recognize the students who left their work, and at the same time would not classify them with those who completed the academic curriculum. It was regarded as probable that a residence requirement, perhaps of two years, would have to be satisfied before students would be eligible to one of the special certificates.

The other announcement concerned the Faculty of Applied Science and the School of Medicine. It was an authorization from the Board of Trustees of the emergency courses which had been established at the engineering schools and the College of Physicians and Surgeons to provide the Government and the public with engineers and physicians to meet the urgent needs of the war. Under these courses, members of the junior and senior classes at the schools may be graduated at an early date.

In explanation of the dropping of certain courses which was announced Monday as one of the ways by which the university would meet the expected deficit of $200,000, it was said yesterday that these courses and "teaching positions" were well scattered throughout all the departments, and that the only object aimed at had been the economical consolidation of work, with the view, however, to maintaining the efficiency of all the Faculties.

Thomas Again Heads Dramatists.

The annual meeting of the Society of American Dramatists was held yesterday in the society's offices in the Candler Building, and resulted in the re-election of all officers for another year. These are: President, Augustus Thomas; Vice President, Rachel Crothers; Secretary, Maurice V. Samuels, and Treasurer, Henry Erskine Smith.

Anna Held Continues to Improve.

Anna Held continued to improve yesterday, her physician reported, and for the first time in several days did not have to be urged to take nourishment. She requested that food be brought her, and the physician considered this a favorable sign. Lillian Russell, a close friend, came from Pittsburgh to be with Miss Held, and was admitted to the bedside.

MAY ADD $260,000,000 TO RAILROAD PAYROLLS

McAdoo Considering Report of Wage Commission, Which Recommends 20% Advance.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Director General McAdoo will announce soon his decision on recommendations of, the Railroad Wage Commission, which were said in well-informed quarters today to propose an average 20 per cent. advance in pay for all classes of employes. If Mr. McAdoo follows the suggestions of the Commission, approximately $260,000,000 will be added to the payrolls of the railroads.

Strong pressure is said to have been brought to bear on the Director General to modify some of the Commission's recommendations, especially affecting the four great Brotherhoods. Mr. McAdoo is not bound to follow the advice of the Commission, and can increase or reduce their recommendations as he sees fit. Apparently none of the Commission's recommendations has met the requests of the unions themselves, which ranged as high as forty, fifty and sixty per cent.

Aside from the wage question, the Commission made little effort to take up all the grievances presented to it, on the ground that it was appointed primarily to consider only questions of pay. The eight-hour day, however, involving large sums, was given close attention. A majority of the Commission is said to have felt that the eight-hour day should not be made universal for railroad employes while the war is in progress. It is said the commission has urged that after the war the eight-hour day be made the basis of employment of all classes of railroad workers.

EX-KING OF GREECE IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Fatal Termination of Constantine's Illness Said to Be Not Improbable.

PARIS, May 7.—Former King Constantine of Greece is seriously ill at Zurich, Switzerland, according to a dispatch to the Temps from Zurich.

Those at the bedside of the former monarch, according to the correspondent, regard a fatal termination of his illness as not improbable.

From the Spring to the Autumn of 1915 King Constantine was a sufferer from a mysterious disease. When his palace at Tatoi was burned in July, 1916, it was said that he nearly bled to death through the opening of an old wound. There is no record of his having received a wound on the battlefield, either in the Turko-Grecian war of 1897 or in the Balkan war of 1912. Rumor has been persistent that the wound was inflicted by Queen Sophia, the sister of the Kaiser, in a fit of anger when he had promised Venizelos that Greece should attack Turkey in the cause of the Allies.

In June, 1915, there had been constant news from Athens relating that the King was suffering from an attack of pleurisy, and that Professor Friedrich Kraus of Berlin, "who is familiar with the King's condition," had been telegraphed to come to Athens. Professor Kraus journeyed to Athens. On June 6 it was reported that a successful operation had been performed. Daily bulletins giving the King's temperature, pulse, and respiration continued until in the middle of the month they gave way to rumors of the assault.

On Oct. 19, 1917, it was reported that the wound caused by an operation in 1915 had reopened, and that another operation had been performed at the Sauerbach Clinic in Zurich. At that time it was said his condition was very grave.

LIBERTY SIX

A GROUP of engineers who have helped to make other cars world famous founded the Liberty Motor Car Company.

Their idea was to offer a car of moderate price that those accustomed to the best would be proud to own.

In every step of the design you will recognize that the thought of owner-comfort and driver-convenience is predominant.

And you will realize their accomplishment of this purpose by the difference in the way the Liberty rides and drives.

BROWNING MACHINE GUN DOUBTS

The statement of General TRACY C. DICKSON of the Ordnance Department that not a single heavy Browning machine gun had been delivered by the Colt's Arms Company was not made until the General went before the House Military Affairs Committee to enlighten it about the need of an appropriation of billions for guns, no less than $3,378,302,801 for light ordnance. The revelation did not come until there was no avoiding it. This company was to turn over 3,000 heavy Browning guns to the War Department by June 1. It remains to be seen how many of these guns, if any, are delivered by the end of this month. General DICKSON admits failure, but cannot explain it satisfactorily. He speaks of disorganization in the works, due to the draft and to labor troubles.

Members of the Military Affairs Committee are naturally skeptical. It is so easy to invoke the draft and the demands of union labor, and yet wages in the munition factories are very high. The hard-and-fast fact is that the War Department is not to get these guns by June 1, heralded, and with apparent reason, as the best of their type. When General CROZIER appeared before the Senate Military Affairs Committee on Dec. 31 Mr. McKELLAR of Tennessee asked him when all the land forces authorized would be equipped with machine guns. "I don't think," said General CROZIER, "it could be promised before July 1."

On Feb. 26 Secretary BAKER gave out a statement that the "peak of production" for the Browning machine rifle, called the light Browning gun, would be reached in June, when several thousands would be delivered weekly to the army. Of the heavy Browning machine gun he said that production on a quantity basis would begin in a few weeks in four factories; and the Secretary added that the Ordnance Department had been assured that manufacture of the heavy guns would not fall behind that of the machine rifles, or at least would compare favorably with their production. Mr. BAKER's statement concluded:

> The official tests that have been made by the Ordnance Department of the Browning guns, taken in connection with general machine gun equipment and plans, assure to the United States Army supremacy in this field of equipment.

But when? That is the question. It is now evident that General CROZIER was far out in his calculation that our land forces would probably be equipped with machine guns by July 1. Five factories are working on orders for the light Browning gun, and, according to General DICKSON, the production of these guns is proceeding satisfactorily, whatever that may prove to mean. The Ordnance Department, which does not make machine guns, has become wary about figures of production. It is to be feared that the supply of light Brownings by July 1 will not elate the Ordnance chiefs—certainly not if the draft and labor troubles are postponing the "peak of production."

Assistant Secretary of War CROWELL announced on Feb. 18 that fifteen light Brownings had been finished. He admitted that it was a small number, but maintained that they were the promise of thousands of guns to follow rapidly. Seven weeks later one would like to know what General DICKSON means when he says that the manufacture of the light Brownings is proceeding satisfactorily. In the same statement Mr. CROWELL said that deliveries of the heavy Brownings, to be made by the Colt's Arms Company, the Westinghouse Company, and the Remington Arms Company, would begin in April and May. He promised deliveries, by the Remington Arms Company in April.

In General DICKSON's report to the House Military Affairs Committee only the backwardness of the Colt's Arms Company is mentioned. If the other companies had made deliveries, the General, we presume, would be glad to give their accomplishment publicity. Have all three companies had to struggle with the draft and labor troubles? No wonder Representative JULIUS KAHN called for an investigation by Congress. He was prevailed upon to await the result of a War Department inquiry, begun the day General DICKSON revealed the failure of the Colt's Arms Company to deliver even one Browning heavy to the Ordnance Department. If that inquiry does not proceed satisfactorily in point of dispatch, it will be the turn of Congress to use the searchlight.

BOTH.

We venerate the White Man's cause, yet for the Red Man dare to plead. Mr. WILLIAM H. ANDERSON, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, may be, is, more than somewhat impetuous at times, full of regrettable asperity in his criticisms. In the classic words of Joe Gargery: "When your sister goes upon the "Ram-page, Pip, candor compels fur "to admit that she is a Buster." How tranquil, how kind, affectionate, submissive was Mrs. Joe Gargery in her later career. Yet who doesn't love her more in her impetuous, rasping, housecleaning phase, or wielding "Tickler" to the detriment of Pip?

"Great Expectations" naturally suggests Mr. BRYAN, though his are in the past. The one thing hardest to forgive in Mr. ANDERSON is that he smote Mr. BRYAN without provocation. Mr. BRYAN is the blandest and kindest of Drys. His wrath is against the Mocker and the Raging; never doth he bludgeon his fellow-Dry. Why can't Mr. ANDERSON secrete a little of that Nebraska honey?

Great as Mr. ANDERSON's offending is, though, was it well for the conglomerated forces of good, gathered at Albany, prohibition societies and sodalities of many names, to denounce him for denouncing Mr. BRYAN, to call for Mr. ANDERSON's head on a charger?

Ah, brethren and sisters, don't we need them both in the business of drubbing the Demon? Can we spare either the honey or the wormwood? Give us both or give us neither!

THE AIRCRAFT PRODUCTION INQUIRIES.

Although Attorney General GREGORY has been charged by the President to investigate aircraft production with a view to action by the Department of Justice if evidence of malfeasance or misuse of last year's appropriation of $640,000,000 is discovered, there can be no objection to the separate inquiry which Chairman CHAMBERLAIN announces that the Senate Military Affairs Committee will undertake. A Senate committee has no power to draw indictments and prosecute, but the prerogative of investigation cannot be taken from it; and when, as in this case, there is reason to believe that public money has been wasted, the Department of Justice should welcome the co-operation of the Senate. Attorney General GREGORY will be glad to use any relevant information obtained by Chairman CHAMBERLAIN and his associates, who have promised that there will be no "whitewashing." A profession of that sort is never expected from the Department of Justice. Its duty is to seek the truth and let no guilty man escape.

If justification for the Senate's decision to make its own inquiry were called for, it would be found in the fact stated by Senator CHAMBERLAIN that the conclusions reached in the report of the official investigation made by Mr. H. SNOWDEN MARSHALL were in accord with those previously reached by the Senate Military Affairs Committee when it first delved into the aircraft production mystery. In its second inquiry the committee can also avail itself of the information gathered by the President's unofficial investigator, Mr. GUTZON BORGLUM. Both reports are at the service of Attorney General GREGORY, too.

DUTY OF WOMEN VOTERS.

On May 25, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 10 P. M., the women voters of New York will have the privilege of enrolling, so that they can vote in the September primaries. Every woman should take advantage of it; it is her duty. When the primaries are held, they will nominate candidates for all the offices to be filled at the November election. No one can vote in the primaries who is not enrolled. The men, or those of them who did their duty, enrolled themselves for this purpose last November. The women were not then enfranchised, and consequently a special enrollment day has been authorized that they may have the opportunity.

It is as much a duty to vote for the nomination of candidates as it is to vote for their election. If you do not take part in the primaries, you have no right to complain of the nomination of unfit candidates. If you do not like unfit candidates, you can prevent their nomination by going to the primaries and voting against them; you cannot prevent it in any other way. But you cannot go to the primaries unless you are enrolled.

Some women are inclined to fight shy of enrollment because they think it commits them to support the candidates of the party they enroll with. It does no such thing. There is neither legal nor moral obligation. If a woman enrolls with the Democratic Party and that party nominates candidates of whom she cannot approve, she has every legal and moral right to vote in November for the Republican candidates. She does not pledge herself, when she enrolls, to support the candidates of the party she enrolls with: she merely picks out the party she in general prefers, and in the nomination of whose candidates she would prefer to take a hand.

No pledge is required, no obligation is imposed, and unless a woman voter enrolls on May 25 she can have no part in voting to nominate a candidate for Governor, or Senator, or Congressman in September. The law requires that these nominations be made by the citizens of the State. Good citizens comply with the spirit of the law and go to the primaries. The women voters, we are confident, will show their good citizenship by aiding in the nominations; but they cannot do it unless they enroll on May 25.

FRESH AND OLD GERMAN PROSPERITY.

How the Germans, making war for their pockets, used to jeer at England with the stale Napoleonic jeer, "a nation of shopkeepers"! Here is the Kaiser talking about "a strong peace, "which will open new roads to Ger-"man commerce and give us com-"plete freedom for the development "of our industries." "Our sacrifices "of blood and treasure shall not be "made in vain." That is, we shall have stolen enough of other people's property and territory and raw material to pay us for a few million dead or disabled Germans.

Nothing, as a matter of fact, interfered with the free development of German industries before the war. Not content with economic power disassociated from political and military dominance, Germany has sown through the world hatreds and ruins that will interfere after peace with her expected entargement of commercial opportunities; and she is now blithely raising up enemies in the great regions to the east which she expects to make feeders and tributaries of that "fresh prosperity for commerce" which the German Mars, wooden Hindenburg disguised as Mercury, patron of traders, has just promised to the German people. It would be refreshing to get Herr BALLIN's private opinion of the financial and commercial disaster into which the prosperity-by-war doctrine has dumped Germany so profoundly.

That curious Alnaschar, or savage-childish, quality of the German mind that builds visions of world-greatness on the mere hope, made more tenuous every day, of a German victory, is excellently displayed by the complacent demand of Mr. ZIMMERMANN, a colonial expert: "We shall have to make our deductions ruthlessly," he says, "from our military superiority "after further great events in the "west." The Belgian and the French Congo will not be enough to ask for. There must be a vast German colonial empire in Central Africa, the South Seas, and where not. When Germany has not a foot of colonial possessions left, Mr. ZIMMERMANN hears the palms of Nigeria and the Congo rustle, and assembles, in his mind, mountains of palm kernels, oceans of palm oil.

Less than four years ago, Germany had a colonial empire of more than eleven hundred thousand square miles, more than five times the size of the German Empire, larger than Austria-Hungary, France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Spain, put together. Mr. DERNBURG has said again and again that in time the colonies would supply the home country with most of the cocoa and coffee, the cotton and tobacco, the palm oil and palm kernels it needs. East Africa sent copra, gold, ivory, sisal hemp, hides; Southwest Africa copper, diamonds, lead, skins; Kamerun cocoa, ivory, palm kernels and oil, rubber, and timber; Togo cocoa, cotton, palm kernels and oil, rubber. Germany was but beginning her colonial apprenticeship. She blundered in many ways, in every way, until DERNBURG became Minister of the Colonies; yet, three years before the war, the exports from her Pacific and African colonies amounted to almost $25,000,000 a year.

The African plantations, so rich in possibilities, were hardly fairly begun. Southwest Africa is one of the finest sheep and cattle countries. The Germans so killed off and frightened off the natives that labor was scarce. Let us recall the letter of VON TROTHA, "the great General of the mighty Emperor," to the Hereros in 1904:

> The Herero nation must now leave the country. If the people do it not, I will compel them with the big gun. Within the German frontier every Herero with or without a rifle will be shot. I will not take over any more women and children, but I will either drive them back to their people or have them fired on.

Kultur in Southwest Africa killed half the native population, virtually wiped out the Hereros, who were either slain, man, woman, and child, or forced into the desert to die of thirst.

A vast colonial empire Germany had. Oppressively, cruelly, too often, bureaucratically always, she ruled it. She always regarded it as a coign of vantage whence to nurse military designs against her neighbors. Mr. ZIMMERMANN's "colonial demands," cut down even to a demand for the return of Germany's former colonies, will not be too warmly welcomed at the Peace Congress, if there is one, and our Anzac friends will never consent to certain surrenders or restorations.

MR. MORGAN AND THE MUSEUM.

The resolution adopted by the Trustees of the Metropolitan Museum in recognition of the services of the late J. PIERPONT MORGAN and of his son to the Museum, and, through the Museum, to the entire community, calls at the present moment for special comment. A chronologically arranged schedule of the Morgan gifts to the Museum is accompanied by a note explaining that they have increased its exhibition function to a point comparable to the richest museums of Europe, supplying designers and manufacturers of objects of art in this country with important examples of the greatest craftsmanships of Europe. Through these the artists, the manufacturers, and the public have come into possession of a body of documents to which they may refer, not for the ignoble purpose of slavish copying, but to increase their knowledge of types of design and methods of workmanship, to correct their taste and vision in working for the present by the best achievements of the past, and to accustom their minds to constant association with excellence in their own lines of endeavor.

The closing paragraph of the minute entered in the records of the corporation of the Museum connects this material with the spirit in which Mr. MORGAN planned to have it made of use to the community:

> Incalculable in value as are these gifts, they should not obscure the memory of Mr. MORGAN's service to American art and American education in art as President of the Museum. When he came to the Presidency the Museum had passed through the period of early struggles and local significance, and the point had been reached when the question was to be determined whether the original impulse was to spend itself, satisfied with a local and provincial success, or whether, on the other hand, the institution was to be developed into one of the great museums and educational influences of the world. Mr. MORGAN's Presidency decided that question.

Those who have followed the course of the Museum realize that to turn the latent energy of its collections into a powerful educational force, reaching to the most remote corners of the city in which it is placed and beyond to the area still barren of museum influences, was a greater service than even the giving of multitudinous and incalculably valuable objects to augment the collections. The two services united should go far toward making possible a development of industrial art in this country adequate to the immeasurable need brought about by the war. The necessary documents and the spirit of encouragement have been contributed. The Museum staff is redoubling its efforts to let both the special and general public know what it can and is eager to do for them. It now remains for the industries to recognize their opportunity and for the public to demand a standard of design and workmanship worthy of these traditions of the past made accessible and familiar to them by Mr. MORGAN's farsighted policy of giving.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Their Last Excuse Is Rejected. Of course the pacifists and pro-Germans—if one must continue to make a distinction without a difference—will not have their opinions of the draft law changed in the slightest degree by the decision of the Supreme Court. They attacked that law for reasons entirely unrelated to its constitutionality, but as those reasons were either a vehement disinclination to fight Germany or an even more vehement disinclination to do any fighting at all, and as neither of those reasons could be avowed with safety, they could only raise the point they did, so they raised it. Presumably they knew that it would be swept aside, just as it has been, but they also knew that the Supreme Court is a large, dignified, and therefore slow-moving body. Even with sure defeat before them, therefore, they foresaw their reward—and a return for the fees paid to their lawyers—in the shape of delay. For them it is something that the question was kept open for several months. They could go on talking so much longer, which was no small advantage, and for the same length of time they could escape the tediums of the training camps and the perils of the front.

What they will do now remains to be seen. They are deprived of the precious privilege of declaring themselves within their constitutional rights in refusing to perform military service abroad, and this is not quite the time for following the familiar custom of beaten litigants and getting the real consolation that lies in denunciation of the court that has found against them. In the present instance that might have consequences seriously inconvenient.

The alternative before them is a cruel one. To submit to the ruling means going to war, a course which, as is well known, involves some danger of personal injury, and is not to be contemplated with even an approach to equanimity, while to resist is to gain the martyr's crown with no opportunity to wear it except in prison, and that is a prospect with no attractions whatever. Flight to Mexico is the solution of the problem discovered by some of the pacifists, but there is probably no country on earth where antagonists of war will be as coldly welcomed as there or feel less at home.

He Realizes the Value of Letters. Former Supreme Court Justice CHARLES E. HUGHES is not one of the men who, from the indubitable assertion that our soldiers are not in France for the purpose of reading or writing letters, draw the conclusion that the less the soldiers do of either the better it is and that the poorness of the mail service between the American Expeditionary Force and home is a matter of no consequence. He has not made, so far as known, direct criticism of the irregularities and delays of which so many are complaining, but he took occasion in his speech at the opening of what is to be known as the Officers' Unit of the Union League Club to quote with approval and emphasis something he had heard said by General BELL, a man who has had considerable experience in the handling of soldiers and who probably knows about as well as anybody else both the reason why our troops are abroad and how their efficiency as fighters can best be maintained and increased.

What the General said, as repeated by Mr. HUGHES, was that "nothing will contribute in such large degree to the morale of the American forces abroad as to send over to them in every way we can messages full of personal interest." And this was followed by some excellent advice as to what letters to soldiers should—and should not—contain. We are not to tell them our own little troubles, nor should we worry them with lugubrious disquisitions on the public controversies that go on here. Instead, we are to write in such a way as to make them feel, not only that they are fighting for the flag, but that we are duly appreciative of what they are doing for us and that we are interested in all their experiences.

That is exactly right. People too often fail to realize the utter futility of exploiting their own grievances and hardships in their letters to soldiers. The latter are not in the position of men abroad for pleasure or on private business. Such men could hurry home in case of need, even if it were not a very desperate one, and it would often be their duty to do so. The soldiers are different. They must remain where they are, and it is by doing their duty there to the very best of their ability that they serve their families as well as their country in far higher degree than they could by returning, even if that were possible for them.

To Carry Mail by Airplane. It is as a beginning of great things, rather than as a great accomplishment, that the establishment, next week, of an aerial mail service between this city and Philadelphia and Washington should be viewed. As flights, there is nothing startling or even surprising in the proposed journeys, except in the fact that it is purposed to make them regularly over a route already served, and served well, by other means of transportation. There is something really novel, however, in the intention to make systematic use of the airplane in an employment not military and in recognition of the fact that it is faster than any other vehicle of human invention and that in its present stage of development it is one sufficiently safe to make its powers practically available.

With more speed than any railway train, the airplane has over either kind of telegraphy the advantage of carrying weight, both live and dead. For the present it will render, probably, only what might be called emergency service, but supply always creates demand, and the chances are that with the possibility of sending letters and other documents, themselves, and not merely their contents, the number on which high fees for the sake of quick arrival at destination will willingly be paid will soon increase. There will be, also, an emergency passenger traffic in time.

And this innovation, unlike so many others, will have to overcome no popular antagonism. We all know that the airplane is not the "toy" that the telephone was at first thought to be, and the reality of its achievements as a means of quick communication will not be doubted as was that of the transatlantic radio telegraph when THE TIMES first utilized it in news gathering.

THE IRISH LEAGUE MEETING.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Thank you not only for your article in The Sunday TIMES bringing to the public notice the disloyal conduct of the Irish League on Sunday night, but also for your article in Monday's paper giving publicity to the letter written by me that same night to Mayor Hylan and sent by special messenger to his home address. As yet no acknowledgment or answer has been received, and I am making my next appeal to the Governor of the State.

I was interested to read this morning a letter from an Irish-American in Wilkes-Barre voicing almost exactly my feeling in the matter of the need of Irish loyalty at this moment of stress, when the Huns are pounding at the doors of Ireland and America as truly as at those of England, and her sons are answering to the call of conscription here for the defense of freedom. Why should the objections of a few in Ireland be forced to the front in our midst and be expressed in public in the metropolis of America?

The meeting was honeycombed with Germans, who must have gloated over the opportunity to weaken at such a critical time the unity and strength of New York.

I appreciate, having worked for many years among the poor of New York, that a large number were led astray by a few. Mayor Hylan not only knew what the nature of that meeting was to be, and he should have forbidden it, but he refused to see that the building was sufficiently policed to enable the officers to defend the rights of American citizens present in large numbers. If that had been ordered, when the critical moment came and the traitorous sentiments demanded the arrest of the speaker and the dismissal of the meeting, this could have been carried out. Instead, the loyal American citizens were disgracefully handled by the police and appealed to to leave the building to avoid a riot. It was only out of deference to Mrs. Oakman, (née Marquand,) who was my guest and to whom the officers appealed to induce me to go out, that I consented to leave the hall.

ELEANOR KELLER.

Y. M. C. A. Work for French Soldiers

In a letter published in THE TIMES of March 5 R. D. Holmes protests against the excess of "religion" and the absence of cards in Y. M. C. A. huts in France. I am not in a position to speak with authority of the work in either the British or American Army, but I hope that neither Mr. Holmes's letter nor the editorial to which he refers gives the impression that any such charge can be brought against Y. M. C. A. work in the French Army. In the "foyers," as the French huts are called, religious services and religious discussion are absolutely prohibited, while cards are not only allowed, but provided by the association. There is plenty of religion in these foyers, but it finds its expression in patriotic and humanitarian activity, not in organized services or Puritanical restrictions. I think this fact should be emphasized, for there must be many Americans who would be of use in this French work were they not afraid of seeming to yield too much to orthodoxy.

FROM MR. GABRILOWITSCH.

He Explains His Attitude Toward America, Russia, and Germany.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Letters received recently from friends inform me that malicious rumors are being spread in certain quarters with the evident object of discrediting my name in the eyes of the American public by misrepresenting me as disloyal and anti-American. In view of such a pernicious campaign, (the purpose of which at this particular time is obvious,) will you permit me to say a few words through the medium of your paper?

I love, and have loved, this country ever since I first set foot on its soil, eighteen years ago. I owe to America a big debt of affection and gratitude. Here I have found my wife—the daughter of one of America's most cherished and beloved citizens. Our only child was born here. Nowhere has my art been more generously appreciated than in this country. Most of our best and dearest friends are Americans. What we owe to this country we fully realize, and we have been trying as best we can to prove it. I do not believe that gratitude and affection can be fully expressed in dollars and cents, but for the information of those who believe that no feeling is real unless its manifestation is tangible, I may mention that since America entered the war my wife has been successful in selling many thousand dollars' worth of Liberty bonds, besides which she and I have acquired for ourselves all the Liberty bonds we could afford. Is this pro-American or anti? We have been contributing liberally to several war charity organizations, and it is my intention as long as the war will last to donate at least one-half of my professional earnings to the American Red Cross and similar institutions. I am not quite sure that some of those who attack me as "disloyal" would be willing to "do their bit" toward America quite to the same extent.

Now for my attitude toward Germany. When the war first broke out in 1914 between Russia and Germany, I had my doubts as to which of the two was more to blame. I knew too much of the Czar's autocratic régime to believe that "the little father" would actually fight Germany merely for the protection of freedom and democracy. This skepticism I often expressed to American friends in the early stage of the European war. This is probably what originated the absurd charge of "pro-Germanism" against me. Much has happened since. Many a man's views have changed. Germany, through her actions in Russia, Ukrania, Finland, and Rumania, has destroyed any illusions I or any one may have had regarding her war aims, and has proved beyond doubt that hers is a war of conquest and annexation. Obviously against such domination all nations must unite, just as they united a century ago against Napoleon. No nation can be allowed to dominate the others after the war. On the other hand, events in Russia have proved that my original skepticism in regard to the Czar was justified. The Czar has been unmasked and overthrown, to the delight and satisfaction of the entire freedom-loving world. Just as at the beginning of the war I was "pro-Russian" and "anti-Czar," so now I am "pro-Russian" and "anti-Bolshevik." But at all times I have been and am pro-American. Those who are spreading rumors to the contrary are not acting in good faith. Having now clearly stated my attitude I shall pay no more attention to their intrigues.

Mr. Coffin's Work for Airplanes.

If the shoddy "scandal" and the Hog Island "scandal," with their happy endings, should teach us anything, they should teach us to reserve judgment when new rumors of scandal arise in connection with various branches of war production work, especially when such rumors asperse, either directly or by implication, the characters of men of hitherto stainless reputation.

From what they have read in connection with Mr. Borglum's report on the aircraft situation many persons have doubtless deduced that Howard E. Coffin is more than suspected of vague and terrible things.

Of the difficulties in aircraft production I know little more than what I have read in the papers. As with other branches of the Government, there was, of course, much ill-judged publicity in the beginning in connection with aircraft production, and this doubtless led our people and our allies to expect more than could be performed. That such was the case is most unfortunate, and it may be that Mr. Coffin erred in his early estimates of what could be accomplished.

But to question a man's judgment in certain particulars is one thing, and to impugn his character is quite another. To any one who knows Mr. Coffin a question as to his integrity and patriotism must seem nothing less than viciously absurd. I therefore ask you to permit me to assume, through the columns of THE NEW YORK TIMES, the role of prophet, declaring my belief that when the aircraft situation has been investigated it will be found that, though Mr. Coffin has not accomplished the impossible, nor even perhaps as much as some other very able man might have accomplished, he has nevertheless done his utmost for his country, that his utmost has been a great deal, and that he is deserving of the nation's gratitude.

Florida Claims a War Hero.

In your article of April 30 recounting the decoration of 122 American soldiers for valor on the battlefield in France you stated this regiment was "sons of Massachusetts." There is at least one exception, as you will note in the name of Roswell King, First Lieutenant. He is a native Floridian and our law partner at this time, having attended the Law School at the University of Virginia and was graduated at the Law School of the University of Florida, and practiced with me here for six years, he now being 28 years of age.

"AMERICA."

(As the Kaiser would have it sung.)

I'd crush with might,
If I could have my way;
I'd take your land today
And then would make you pay
What I think's right!

My natives over there
Will thwart you in the air,
On land and sea;
As spies, they're on your hills
And working in your mills—
My heart with rapture thrills,
For they love me!

"Kultur" shall fill the air
And murder those who dare
Oppose its sway;
Let mortal tongues be still
Before the "war lord's" will—
The great and only "Bill,"
That's me, I say!

Our fathers' God is Mars!
The people bear his scars—
My sons go free!
Long may the land be bright,
With subjects cowed in fright,
Verily, might is right—
Take it from me!

TEMPLE WOOD IN MUSEUM.

New Indian galleries and a splendid room interior of carved woodwork from the Temple of Vadi Pars'snath, Patten, are among the new features of the Metropolitan Museum of Art this month. This beautiful room, made entirely of carved wood, was a gift to the museum by the President, Robert W. de Forest, and his brother, Lockwood de Forest, in 1916, but up to the present time it had not been placed on exhibition. It is a remarkable acquisition to the museum, and as far as known nothing of the kind is to be found in any museum in this country or another.

It is a small room, approximately square, to which the carved interior has been fitted. The walls are formed entirely of grill work. It is lighted from the top by four windows, with elaborate balconies, and above is a domed ceiling, richly carved. It belongs probably to the sixteenth century, and in the fineness and delicacy of its carving is a masterpiece. There is remarkable detail in figure work, bands of elephants, bullocks drawing coaches, and lines of other figures. Through the suggestion of Dur Friedley, Acting Curator of the Department of Decorative Arts, there has been ingenious utilization of a small amount of space in this part of the museum, and three small galleries have been formed opening from Temple room. In one of these is shown a remarkable collection of Indian jewelry, which is unexcelled in craftsmanship and design, beautiful in coloring in its combinations of rich yellow gold, with turquoise, deep red Eastern coral and many semi-precious stones. There is an exhibition of metal work loaned by Lockwood de Forest; Indian sculpture miniatures, textiles and rugs, which are arranged to be shown to their best advantage.

Other rearrangements which will be interesting to the museum visitors are those in the rooms devoted to English furniture of the best periods and early American.

An interesting announcement has been made by Director Edward Robinson of the museum regarding the price paid in March for the portraits of M. and Mme. Leblanc, by Ingres, in the Degas sale. Mr. Robinson said that so many varied statements had been circulated regarding the price for which the portraits had been sold that he would depart from the usual custom of the museum and say that the museum paid for the pair 270,000 francs, ($54,000,) plus the Government tax. The portraits will remain in France probably until the close of the war owing to the danger of transportation.

In the Gallery of Prints there is now on exhibition an interesting Goya exhibition, one complete series of the works of that master, the "Disasters of War," a vivid rendering of the horrors of which Degas was personally the witness in the wars of Napoleon. In a second of the print galleries is shown the acquisitions of this department since its opening, showing the remarkable number of masterpieces, practically priceless, which it contains.

An exhibition of the drawings of the masters of the Venetian and Bolognese schools are shown in Gallery 25 and will remain on view until the middle of June. Canaletto, Tiepolo, Guardi, and Carracci are among the artists represented.

ARTISTS AID THE BLIND.

An exhibition of nearly 800 works of art donated by American artists, art collectors, and art dealers, to be sold for the benefit of the American-British-French-Belgian Permanent Blind Relief War Fund, will open next Saturday at the Anderson Galleries, Park Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, and will last for two weeks.

The fund, thus aided by the artists, maintains under the official direction of the French Government several American institutions in France for the rehabilitation of soldiers blinded in the war. In August last it sent out a request to artists to aid its work, and their response was overwhelming. The donations—oil paintings, water colors, etchings, and cartoons, some bearing famous names—poured in, accompanied by inspiring expressions of sympathy, which fill several pages of the catalogue of the exhibition.

All those in New York or within easy reach of the city were eager to give personal service as well as the work of their hands. Some not content with pictures or statuettes, sent money as well. The owners of the Anderson Galleries placed them at the disposal of the fund, rent free, and the following formed an Executive Council to manage the exhibition and act as a Hanging Committee: Harry W. Watrous, N. A., Chairman; Howard Russell Butler, N. A.; William A. Coffin, N. A.; Charles C. Curran, N. A.; Daniel C. French, N. A.; Francis C. Jones, N. A.; Carman Messmore, Hobart Nichols, A. N. A.; Chauncey F. Ryder, A. N. A.; George H. Story, A. N. A.; Robert W. Van Boskerck, N. A., and J. Alden Weir, N. A.

A large Honorary Committee of Artists was also formed, in which almost every name well known in the art world was represented. These will help to sell the pictures as they hang on the walls. Their efforts will be seconded by several women well known socially. Not to be behind, the British and French Army officials in New York, to enhance the interest of the affair, have promised to loan a fine collection of war relics gathered on the battlefields of France and Flanders.

ZIONISTS FAVOR SINGLE TAX

Mizrachi Organization Advocates the System for Palestine.

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—The single tax plan of land control was adopted by the Mizrachi Zionist Organization, in convention here today, as the best system under which the Jews can return to possession of Palestine under the protection of the Allies.

The plan is that which, it is said, has the support of many of the biggest Jewish single tax adherents, including Mrs. Joseph S. Fels of this city, one of the originators of the plan, and Justice Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court. It was proposed by Bernard A. Rosenblatt, an attorney of New York.

Mr. Rosenblatt pointed out that land would take on greatly increased valuation as a result of the English occupation and the working out of the "Promised Land" idea, which consists of the colonization of the entire Holy Land by Jews. The plan suggested is that the land be assessed and valued at the figures at which it stood before the war in 1914, making allowances for improvements.

BUILDING LARGEST DRY DOCK

In the presence of 3,000 workmen and 1,000 other spectators, the second section of the 33,000-ton dry dock being erected by the Morse Dry Dock and Repair Company was launched at 6 o'clock last night at the foot of Fifty-fifth Street, South Brooklyn. When completed the dry dock will be 700 feet long and will be large enough to hold the largest ship that now sails the seas. It is being built in six sections.

MUSEUM'S TRIBUTE TO LATE J. P. MORGAN

Minute Says as an Art Collector He Ranked with the Princes of the Old World.

The Trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art have issued a booklet containing an appreciation of the collecting genius of the late J. Pierpont Morgan and of his gifts to the American public through the Museum. This was printed, it was announced, because "the Trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art wish to make a formal and, so far as possible, permanent record of the great service rendered to the Metropolitan Museum and to the American people, through the Museum, by the late John Pierpont Morgan."

The booklet also contains a schedule of these gifts, describing briefly the multitude of the collected objects of art, from pottery, bronze, and marble of 3000 B. C. to modern works, which are now in the Museum through his generosity. An introductory word describing this review of the Morgan gifts is as follows:

"Schedule: Arranged chronologically, showing the periods of art and the classes of objects covered by the gifts of Mr. Morgan and his son, and giving an idea of their great extent and variety, their incalculable value to the Museum—increasing its exhibition function to a point comparable to the richest museums of Europe—and their enormous usefulness to the company of designers and manufacturers of objects of art in this country, hardly a branch of which is not, through them, bountifully supplied with most important examples of the greatest craftsmanships of Europe."

His Patriotic Citizenship.

"John Pierpont Morgan, born April 17, 1837, died March 31, 1913, was the most powerful and dominant personality in the field of finance during the period between the American Civil War and the Universal War of 1914—a period distinguished by the most amazing development of industrial organization and productiveness ever known in the history of the world. The conduct and control of great affairs during this time of intense activity brought to him a great fortune, continuous labor, and heavy responsibility; yet neither wealth nor pressure of labor and responsibility prevented the growth and exercise of very noble qualities of patriotic citizenship and human sympathy. He loved his country and his kind.

"Expressing himself seldom in words, but constantly in deeds, he was a part of all good causes. Generous almost to a fault, modest and unassuming, he did good in secret all his life without thought of praise or recognition. He loved all forms of beauty, and with his largeness of nature and of means he became the greatest art collector of his time, and in the history of art his name must always rank with those princes of the Old World who in former centuries protected and encouraged genius. He was as unselfish with his treasures of art as he was with his fortune. He believed that the happiness of a whole people can be increased through the cultivation of taste and he strongly desired to contribute to that end among his own countrymen. His last will carried on to his descendants the influence of that feeling in the wishes which he expressed regarding the disposition of his great collections.

"The most marked expression of this impulse during Mr. Morgan's lifetime was in his service to this Museum. He was one of the original subscribers to the preliminary fund raised in 1870 as the basis for the organization of the Museum, and from that time for all the remaining forty-three years of his life he never failed in his constant support of the institution. He was one of the first fifty patrons whose names appear upon the list of 1871 as members of the corporation. He became a Trustee in 1888, and discharged the duties of that office for twenty-five years until his death. He was a member of the Executive Committee and of the Finance Committee of the board from 1892 to 1894, a member of the Executive Committee again from 1901 until his election as First Vice President in 1904, when he became as he ever after remained an ex-officio member of the committee.

"He was elected President in 1904, and remained President until the time of his death. His first recorded gift to the Museum was in 1897, and for the sixteen years which followed there was a rapid succession of valuable and princely gifts. In the Summer of 1913 his son, who bears the name and inherits the spirit of his father, placed substantially the whole of his father's vast collections upon loan exhibition in the new northern wing of the museum building. Further gifts by the son of almost priceless objects have followed, and now the present John Pierpont Morgan upon the settlement of his father's estate has found himself able to honor the memory and execute the purposes of his father by presenting to the Museum a large part of the collection, including more than 3,000 objects.

"The gifts of the father, and of the son in memory of the father, with the exception of some articles which proper classification requires to be arranged elsewhere, are to be exhibited henceforth by themselves in a wing of the Museum to be called in memoriam The Pierpont Morgan Wing. An enumeration of these gifts in general terms is recorded as a part of this minute.

Gave Museum New Impulse.

"Incalculable in value as are these gifts, they should not obscure the memory of Mr. Morgan's service to American art and American education in art as President of the Museum. When he came to the Presidency the Museum had passed through the period of early struggles and local significance, and the point had been reached when the question was to be determined whether the original impulse was to spend itself, satisfied with a local and provincial success, or whether, on the other hand, the institution was to be developed into one of the great museums and educational influences of the world. Mr. Morgan's Presidency decided that question. His sure knowledge of the field, the largeness of his instinctive methods, his dauntless courage, his vision, and his faith, breathed into the institution a new life, communicated to it a new and tremendous impulse, and inaugurated a new period of development, which, so far as we can judge, makes certain a future of power and usefulness for which our country and all the people in the New World who love art and the influences of art will owe honor to his name."

The brief review of the Morgan gifts contains paragraphs under the following heads: Ancient art, including Assyrian, Egyptian, Greek, Etruscan, and Roman; Gallo-Roman art; Byzantine and Mediaeval; Renaissance, including sculpture, enamels, metalwork, jewels, ceramics, furniture, arms, and armor; seventeenth and eighteenth century art of all types, Oriental art and paintings of the American school, the British, Dutch, Flemish, French, German, and Italian.

PLEDGE TO WIN WAR ON LUSITANIA DAY

HONOR MEMORY OF CHOATE

Roosevelt Calls for Army of 10,000,000 if Needed, and Warns of Coming German Peace Drive.

Determination to fight to the finish against Prussianism was expressed by all the speakers and shouted uproariously by the audience at the Win-the-War mass meeting held last night at Carnegie Hall by the American Defense Society and American Rights League. The sentiment of a line in one of the vocal offerings of the Four-Minute Song Men, "We're out to lick the Kaiser if it takes us twenty years," was popular with the audience.

The meeting was also an anniversary memorial to the victims of the Lusitania, and Charles S. Fairchild, former Secretary of the Treasury, who presided at the meeting, declared that "from the moment the Lusitania was sunk this country was at war with Germany." Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma also denounced the sinking of the Lusitania as the token of the German spirit which finally made the people of America realize what they were facing.

"This should be a penitential day forever for America," said Colonel Roosevelt. "When the Lusitania was sunk we still failed to prepare, and the fact that we thus failed showed that our unpreparedness was as profound in the soul as in the body. Let us humbly thank our God that our people at last have awaked. It was the eleventh hour, but not the twelfth.

"If we had not waked, never after the close of this war would an American have been willing to look the citizens of another free nation in the face. Thank heaven, we have won the right to walk with heads erect, but I want to see at the end of this war Americans deserving to be greeted in England and France as the representatives of the armies of Great Britain and France are greeted here. We must not confine ourselves to applauding others in a war that is as much ours as theirs.

Wants Army of 5,000,000 Men.

"No American has a right to feel satisfied until we have in France so many million fighting men that the strain will have been taken off the French and the English Armies and transferred to us, for we deserve to bear it. I hope to see immediately provision for an army of 5,000,000 men, and tell the War Department that if they need them another 5,000,000 can be had on top of that.

"We have a gallant but small army on the other side. We have for the last six weeks been sending troops rapidly across, but perhaps most of them have as yet only been able to take the places of the English troops that have been sent to the front. That is not enough."

He demanded a speeding up of industrial work in support of the army and denounced profiteering by rich and poor. "If any riveter in a shipyard," he said, "drives only sixty rivets where he could drive 120 he has driven sixty for freedom and left sixty undriven for the sake of the Hohenzollern. There is only one way to get peace, and that is to bring the Hohenzollerns to their knees."

Colonel Roosevelt warned against the lure of the next German peace offensive, and declared that no tempting terms as to the west should induce the Allies to assent to a peace that would leave Germany in control of Eastern Europe and the Balkans. Freedom for the Czecho-Slovaks, the Jugoslavs, the Armenians, the Jews in Palestine, the Arabs, and the Syrian Christians and liberation of all the countries overrun by Germany during the war were demanded as essentials of a lasting peace, and the Colonel did not overlook the opportunity to call for a declaration of war on Turkey and Bulgaria.

Honor Memory of Joseph H. Choate.

Mr. Fairchild, opening the meeting, referred to the services of Joseph H. Choate in awakening American sentiment in the period during which we were coming into the war, and at his request the audience stood for a moment as a tribute to Mr. Choate's memory.

Mr. Fairchild plead for economy by all citizens, and said that the late James Stillman, returning from France last November, had told him that he (Mr. Stillman) had been so impressed by the economies and sacrifices which the people of France were making and expected to make for many years after the war, because France needed it, that he had himself given up all of his automobiles and every expenditure except what was necessary for his living expenses in order to have all his resources available.

Senator Owen referred to the careers of the monarchs who are said to be the Kaiser's favorites in history, and said that Frederick the Great had set Prussia on its way. "Frederick made all his wars for profit," said Senator Owen. "They were organized murder for property belonging to other people. The Hohenzollern policy has been to organize strong armies, to prepare themselves thoroughly, to pounce upon the unsuspected and take whatever is available. Viewed as a moral proposition, it is organized military robbery and murder for profit."

He read a resolution he recently submitted in the Senate for an absolute economic boycott of Germany by the world until she submitted herself to international law. The very stringent measures suggested were applauded vigorously by the audience, but Colonel Roosevelt, referring to them in his speech later, said: "Senator Owen's proposals will remain a scrap of paper until we smash the military power of Germany."

Signaler Tom Skeyhill of the Australian Army told of the harm done by unpreparedness in various stages of the war. Music was provided by Warren Proctor of the Chicago Opera Company, the 71st Regiment Band, and the Four-Minute Song Men.

CALLS IRELAND TO WAR AT LUSITANIA SERVICE

The third anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania was commemorated by a memorial service held yesterday afternoon at Trinity Church, at which the rector, the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, declared that it was the Lusitania episode which really opened the eyes of Americans to what Prussianism really meant, and that the men of the allied nations now fighting against the Germans were "in very fact and truth soldiers of the cross." Representatives of a number of patriotic societies attended the meeting, besides several survivors of the sunken liner, and the auditorium was filled by a congregation in which were many men in uniform and many women in mourning.

Dr. Manning declared that no distinction could longer be drawn between the German rulers and the German people. "Those things which the rulers planned," he said, "are carried out because the people are willing to have it so. They stand unredressed and unrepented, crying out for the judgment of God and the execration of all true men.

"There are those who tell us that we must not dwell on the wrongs which Germany has done; that we must not feel hatred toward these deeds nor anger toward those who still commit them. This is not Christianity; it is religious Bolshevism, a cold pacifism, which is unwilling to see any difference between right and wrong or to take sides between good and evil."

After declaring the necessity for war to the end against Germanism as it has been manifested, Dr. Manning said: "We shall give not support, not sympathy, but stern and unqualified condemnation to those men in Ireland or any other country who will so far forget their duty to mankind and the cause of freedom as to refuse to take their places in the ranks. This is no time to dwell on old grievances or on past wounds. There is only one issue now; the man who is not the enemy of the Kaiser is the enemy of freedom. We call now upon all men of Ireland, without exception, to join with their brave countrymen who have fought so magnificently in this war, and with their brethren here in America, who are so nobly answering the call.

"The act which sent those men and women, and children on the Lusitania to their deaths," said Dr. Manning, "was not an act of war. It was in violation of all those rules of war which have been accepted by civilized men. It was the treacherous blow of an assassin.

"The sinking of the Lusitania, the shooting of Edith Cavell and Captain Fryatt, the dastardly spy system and secret propaganda carried on in all lands, the firing on helpless sailors in their life boats, the forcing of women and children to walk as a screen for advancing troops, the hideous cruelties practiced on prisoners of war, the unspeakable treatment of women, and the wholesale enslaving of men; those awful scenes in Belgium, the full horror of which we shall not know until the war is ended; these and similar things have revealed to us the Prussian mind and soul.

"We pledge ourselves afresh to give our time, our strength, our money, all that we are and have, to crush and destroy this foul and monstrous Thing which has arisen in the earth, which bears the name of Prussianism, and to put an end to it forever. We will not hear from any source whatever any word or suggestion of peace until the Prussian military machine is crushed and broken."

The Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield, pastor of the Old First Presbyterian Church and a voluntary chaplain in the army, like Dr. Manning, read the Scripture lesson. Among the other clergy present were Bishop Frederick Courtney, the Rev. Dr. C. L. Goodell, and the Rev. Dr. George F. Douglas. In the procession of clergy and choir the British and American flags were carried with color guards of American soldiers and sailors, and Canadian soldiers, and the military atmosphere was emphasized by the hymns, which were the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," "The Star-Spangled Banner," and "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

EMPHASIZE GERMAN GUILT.

London Papers Recall Brutality of the Lusitania Sinking.

LONDON, May 7.—The Lusitania anniversary is commemorated by the newspapers today with big headings and special articles recalling the crime which the British public is not likely to forget.

The Daily Graphic, in an editorial, laments that the public apparently is becoming dulled to the horror of the Lusitania atrocity. It asks why there is not a commemorative procession this year, as there was last year. If there is not, it adds, will its absence not be proof of the extent to which Germany's many crimes against humanity have deadened the world's sense of tenderness? It says:

"It is because the torpedoing of the Lusitania summed up in one cold-blooded act the savage ruthlessness of the German race that the anniversary of that foul deed should be celebrated when every other commemoration is forgotten."

"Germany has not changed since then," says The Daily Mail. "That is the important thing for all of us to remember. The 'repentant' Germany of which our pacifists prattle simply does not exist. She still glories in the sinking of the Lusitania and the butchery of women and children and will repeat that and every other atrocity again at the first profitable opportunity. That is only one of one hundred reasons why the war must go on until she is hammered into sanity."

In connection with the National War Bond campaign, Baron Rhondda, the Food Controller, who, with Lady Mackworth, his daughter, was aboard the Lusitania when she was torpedoed three years ago today, has sent the following message to the National War Savings Committee:

"Today is the third anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania. Many events and many emotions have come upon us since then. One's memory is laden with incidents that [illegible] stirred the surprise and anger of the civilized world.

"It still will keep in remembrance the tragedy of the Lusitania, a tragedy enacted by an Emperor and a people who flung to the winds all restraint of honor and chivalry. The Kaiser will be known in time to come as the Herod of the twentieth century, who caused Rachel to weep for her children.

"Worse even than the sinking of the vessel was the sinister way in which it was planned and the shouts of exultation that afterward swept through Germany. A medal was struck—a medal in commemoration of a crime. To rejoice in doing evil is surely the depth of degradation.

"The sinking of the Lusitania made the world see plainly the inherent criminality of its foe. On the brow of Prussia was the mark of the beast.

"You will recall your first emotions on the news of the sinking of the Lusitania. Germany has not changed since. Let us not relax our efforts until we have destroyed the evil spirits who planned and rejoiced in such a crime."

BONNET ROUGE CASE NEARING ITS CLOSE

PARIS, May 7.—M. Duval, the director of the defunct Socialist and Germanophile newspaper Bonnet Rouge, who, with a number of other persons is on trial for treason, sprang a surprise on the prosecution when today his attorneys produced an affidavit, taken before the French Consul at Geneva and signed by Mrs. Ahmerd, proprietress of the International Hotel at Geneva. The affidavit set forth that Duval had stopped at her hotel in June, 1914, which was opposed to the contention of the prosecution that Duval's first trip to Switzerland was in May, 1915.

Efforts are being made to induce Mrs. Ahmerd to come to Paris, but apparently she is opposed to so doing. Police Inspector Faralicq is now in Geneva further to investigate an apparent discrepancy in Mrs. Ahmerd's original deposition, as compared with her latest testimony.

Among the witnesses today was M. Dumas, Chief of the Bureau of General Information at the Prefecture of Police, who twice gave Duval missions to Switzerland to collect information from Germany, paying him 200 francs for each report, although Dumas was aware that Duval had obtained funds for the Bonnet Rouge and knew that M. Marion, assistant manager of the Bonnet Rouge, who was introduced to Duval, had been condemned for swindling.

Lieutenant Bryant, attached to the General Headquarters Service for the Prevention of Propaganda Among the Troops, testified as regards the demoralizing character of the Bonnet Rouge at the end of June, 1917, when, he said, serious cases of lack of discipline occured in the army. His services were frequently demanded, he said. A closer censorship of the Bonnet Rouge was requested, he added, but Jean Leymarie, former Director of the Ministry of the Interior and later head of the Secret Service, never satisfied the request.

Interest in the trial is increasing, and M. Duval seems to grow in importance as the trial progresses. The authorities have decided to hold a sitting Thursday, which is a legal holiday with the object of ending the trial and arriving at a verdict on Saturday.

LIEUT. BAKER WINS FRENCH DECORATION

NOW WOUNDED IN HOSPITAL

News has just reached this country that Lieutenant Charles D. Baker of the 165th Infantry, formerly the 69th Infantry, N. G., N. Y., son of Stephen D. Baker, President of the Bank of the Manhattan Company of 40 Wall Street, has received the Croix de Guerre in recognition for his "bravery and presence of mind" while serving under fire with his command in the trenches. Lieutenant Baker, first came to public notice in the war when the story of his work on board a transport laden with mules for the American forces which almost foundered in a gale in the Atlantic was brought back to this country by a sailor on that ship.

Lieutenant Baker, who is now convalescing in an American hospital somewhere back of the lines, was wounded just two weeks after he had joined his regiment. It was on this occasion that he received the decoration. He was in the first-line trenches, in command of a sector, when the Germans started bombarding the Americans. For three days the enemy hurled nine-inch shells at the men of the 69th, who stuck grimly to their task. Lieutenant Baker, when the cannonade first started, was everywhere within the narrow limits of his command, encouraging his men to stand firm, at the same time warning them against being foolhardy.

He was in the trench when one of the shells burst near him, puncturing his eardrum. Through those three days, and suffering intense pain, the young officer stayed with his men, and neither the discomfort of his injury nor the entreaties of his men could persuade him to go to the rear.

"I know the men and they know me," he said. "I think they will be better off, perhaps, if I stick here. I am not going back."

When relief finally came, Lieutenant Baker's command showed a surprisingly small casualty list. His men were cheerful, in spite of the grueling fire which they had been standing up under for seventy-two hours. The citation which he received from the French read, briefly:

"First Lieutenant Charles D. Baker showed presence of mind and bravery during a heavy bombardment of nine-inch shells. Went calmly to his post in the trenches despite a destructive fire, assuring the safety of his men and locating the enemy's mortars which were firing on the positions."

Lieutenant Baker was graduated from Princeton in the class of 1913, and came to New York, where he entered the employ of the Bankers Trust Company. Two years later he decided that he should know something about the military, so he enlisted in Squadron A. He went with the squadron to the border, returning as Sergeant in 1917.

On his return he was commissioned First Lieutenant and assigned to the "Fighting Sixty-ninth." He went with the regiment to Camp Mills after the mobilization last Summer, but was detached shortly after to a Southern port, whence livestock, horses and mules, for battery and transport service were being sent abroad. Here Baker got his first taste of the bitter disappointments and hardships of military service.

While his regiment went to France with the Rainbow Division, he was put in command of a detachment of men who were to take care of 1,600 mules and horses on a transport. He found himself the ranking military officer on the vessel, and, as such, was responsible for the welfare of every soldier and every animal on board. The ship had misfortune, missing a convoy in one port and then being damaged and rendered unseaworthy by German agents while waiting for another. During the voyage a coal port, the bolts of which had been removed by German agents in a home port, got loose and the ship started leaking. Several hundred of the animals were drowned, and for a time it looked as if all hands would be lost.

On this occasion the coolness of the young officer and the care he took of his men attracted the attention of the ship's crew. One of them said that the young man came on board a quiet, unassuming chap, and left it with every man on board ready and eager to lay down his life for him.

When they finally got to France, Lieutenant Baker's quality of endearing himself to his men came to the fore more strongly than ever, and it is stated that his company made living up to the young officer's strict ideas of discipline a habit and a pleasure.

Lieutenant Baker has been extremely modest through every one of his adventures, so much so, in fact, that his family here have obtained practically all their news of him through letters from his brother officers, and men who returned from the front.

"I heard from Charles sometime in February," said Mr. Baker last night, "and in that letter he mentioned the fact that it had been a mighty rough trip going over. But I never had the faintest conception of what he had been through until I heard from one or two of the men who had been on the ship and who have returned.

"An officer who just came back told me that my son had been in the trenches and had been wounded, and a few days ago I got a letter from him. In this letter he told me that he had had an operation and come through it successfully. He didn't say that he had been decorated. I didn't know about that until I saw it in the papers, but he wrote mainly about the wonderful care they had given him in the American hospital. He says that doctors and nurses have been efficient in every case. He says also that the American hospitals for our men in France are equipped with the most modern appliances and are as comfortable as any at home."

Lieutenant Baker's younger brother, Stewart Baker, also a graduate of Princeton, is an Ensign in the Naval Reserve.

WILL REBUILD MURRAY HILL.

New Hotel Will Be 32 Stories, Surmounted by Tower.

The B. L. M. Bates Corporation, of which John McE. Bowman of the Hotel Biltmore is now President, announced yesterday that a thirty-two-story hotel, topped by a distinctive tower, would be erected on the site of the old Murray Hill Hotel, which passed into the control of Mr. Bowman on Sunday. Work will not start until the new Hotel Commodore has been put in operation.

According to the plans sketched yesterday by a representative of the company, land in Fortieth Street, now owned by Mr. Bates, will be added to the Murray Hill plot. There will be five underground floors, connected with corresponding floors of the Belmont, and it is contemplated to operate both hotels with central kitchens and lighting, heating, laundry, and ice plants.

The plans call for restaurants on the main floor and top floor. The grand ballroom will also be on the top floor, with a roof garden near by. The tower will be surmounted by a structure in the form of a small temple with pillars, to house, it is said, an observatory and several clubs. The new Murray Hill and the Belmont will also be joined by a bridge. The two will be connected with the Biltmore, the Commodore, and Manhattan Hotels by the subway.

NIEMEYER TAUNTS VICTIMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 7, (via London.)—THE TIMES correspondent learns on excellent authority that one of the twin brothers Niemeyer, commandants of the prisoners' camp in the notorious 10th Army Corps, which persistently refuses to remove prisoners' grievances, and for which reason reprisals are being taken in England, now boasts of having been in America since the war began and of having escaped disguised on the ship on which Count von Bernstorff returned. Niemeyer of the 84th Regiment brags: "You cannot escape. I know all about escapes and managed to evade the English and Americans."

In 1900, it appears, the twin brothers lived in Bremen, where they acquired notoriety for having erected a large, pretentious double house in a big park, but after a subsequent quarrel they built an enormous wall separating the houses and the park.

STILL LAMPOONS GERMANS.

PARIS, April 20, (Associated Press.)—The German administrators in Belgium have suffered another bitter disappointment in their efforts to rid themselves of the secret Belgian newspaper, La Libre Belgique, which has stung, ridiculed, and laughed at them ever since they occupied the territory of the brave little kingdom.

With every evidence of pleasure, the Germans announced recently that they had arrested three Belgian priests, Delee, Denis, and Martin, and three civilians, and that they had behind the bars the editors, publishers, printers, and distributers of the secret paper. One of the priests, Denis, was condemned to death, according to information received by the Belgian Government. The others received prison sentences aggregating many years.

Next morning a brand new copy of La Libre Belgique was in its usual place in the letter box of Baron von Falkenhausen, Governor General of Belgium, and the publication has appeared irregularly since. The death sentence upon Father Denis was commuted to life imprisonment.

GIANTS RETURN HOME TO RE-ENGAGE PHILLIES AND GARNER ONE MORE VICTORY

PHILS STILL TRYING TO HALT THE GIANTS

It begins to look as if the only way to make this National League race close will be to handicap the Giants by spotting the other clubs several runs before the games start. McGraw's club came back to the Polo Grounds yesterday for a little exercise before going west. The Phillies furnished the counter-irritant at the rehearsal, and the Giants won, 7 to 3. It was the first time this year that the Phils have been able to score on the Giants, so it can be seen that they are improving.

This was the seventh straight victory for the Giants and the seventh straight defeat for the Phils. The mystery of the early season is how Brooklyn happened to take that one game which the Giants dropped. Manager Pat Moran of the Phils has the reputation of being a man who does not stretch the truth, but when he sent forth the tidings a few weeks ago that he had a real ball club he showed that he would be a great hand to tell fish stories.

Defensively, the Phils were as porous as a mustard plaster. The Giants didn't have to hit hard to win. They just let the Phils throw the ball around until they made scoring easy. The Phils nicked Jess Barnes for a dozen hits, but made poor use of this batting investment. Barnes made up with his bat what he lacked in pitching, for with his two hits he drove in a couple of runs and set a fine example.

Umpires Are Questioned.

Charley Moran, the new umpire, had a crowded afternoon on the bases, and Charley Rigler, behind the bat, did not get through the afternoon unquestioned. You would think that Umpire Moran would have some sympathy for Pat Moran, being of the same name, but when the umpire called Wilhoit safe at first in the seventh Pat took exception to the ruling, and when he came out in the next inning to continue the discussion the umpire sent him back to the players' coop.

Rigler called Heinie Zimmerman out on strikes in the fourth, and Zim could not refrain from emitting several opinions of the umpire he has been entertaining for some time. The controversy resulted in the usual way, and Zim was put out of the game. If the miracle should ever happen that a ball player wins an argument with an umpire, said player ought to be the subject of a life-sized marble out in centre field, where all the world could gaze on a truly great figure of the Caucasian race.

Pat Moran has collected a crowd of players with phoney-sounding names. McGaffigan sounds like a good baseball name, and the lad who owns the title can play second base in fine shape. Two members of the Up family also belong to Moran, Pick Up and Tine Up. Before the season is over Pat may sign the other two brothers, Slip and Cut. Moran used up every player on his bill of fare in trying to beat the Giants, but it now looks as if they would have to wait until next season to do it.

The Phils took a three-run lead in the first four innings, and actually believed they were going to win. Such optimism! Bancroft beat out an infield hit in the first, and was forced by McGaffigan. Mac stole second, and scored on Cravath's crack to right. Stock opened the fourth with a single, and Cravath flied to Fletcher. Whitted singled, and when Luderus banged another hit off Barnes, Stock scored and Whitted went to third. Meusel got another hit, and Whitted creased the plate. Ordinarily, a volley of four hits would entitle a pitcher to a free ticket to the clubhouse, but not so with Jess Barnes. Burns and Hogg were easy outs, and after that the Phils did not get a run.

Phils Toss Away Game.

The Giants showed no sign of consciousness with the bat in the early innings, but they let the Phils start to throw the game away in their half of the fourth. Kauff walked in this tableau, and Burns rolled a bouncer to Bancroft. Banny then committed a double-barreled error, first fumbling the ball and then throwing it wild to McGaffigan. This put Kauff on third. After Zim fanned, a proceeding to which he so strongly objected that he was dismissed, Rodriquez died at first, while Kauff scored.

Holke was safe on McGaffigan's error in the fifth, and McCarty was hit by one of Hogg's rampant tosses. Barnes sacrificed the pair along, and Ross Young pushed them home with a singing single to centre. Kauff singled to left, sending Young to third, and when Meusel threw the ball to the grand stand Young registered.

It was easy sailing after that. With one out in the sixth, Fletcher got an infield hit and Holke walked. After McCarty fanned, Barnes sent Fletcher home with a single. Young walked and filled the bases, but Benny Kauff tried so hard to make a home run that he struck out.

In the eighth Holke opened with a two-bagger to left, and McCarty was safe on Stock's high toss to first. Again Barnes delivered a timely tap and scored Holke. Young walked and filled the bases, Kauff facing a full house for the second time. This trip Benny hoisted a sacrifice fly to Tincup in right, and McCarty tallied.

PITTSBURGH, May 7.—Pittsburgh again won from Chicago today with the score 2 to 1. Miller, pitching for the Pirates, was steady and kept the visitors' hits scattered, the only Chicago run being due to an error by Caton. The latter, although charged with three errors, played a brilliant game.

BROOKLYN BLOWS UP WITH A LOUD BANG

BOSTON, May 7.—Taking three games in a row from the Phillies evidently was too much for Wilbert Robinson's Brooklyn Dodgers. Today at Braves Field they were the victims in the major league's biggest setback of the early campaign, the Braves rising in their downtrodden wrath and peppering Larry Cheney and Dick Durning to their hearts' content for a 16-to-0 score.

Pat Ragan, an erstwhile Superba himself, enjoyed the matinée hugely. The eight hits registered against him were well scattered, and Robbie's men never were in the game after Johnston, in the first inning, foozled in his attempt to bring in a starting run or two with men on third and second bases.

Seventeen hits for a total of twenty-four bases was the extent of the Braves' walloping. Fourteen of the bingles were made against Cheney, who worked six innings, and the others against Left-hander Durning, who only a week ago was pitching for the Portland Naval Reserves against Harvard. The Braves got five runs against Durning and the others from Cheney.

The game marked the entry of Zack Wheat into the Brooklyn lineup, the first ball pitched after his advent being walloped out to him by Ed Konetchy. Zack got a base hit and seemed in trim for regular work.

WOMEN'S TOURNEY IN JUNE.

Local Feminine Golfers to Have Four-Day Meet at Apawamis.

Arrangements have been completed for the Red Cross tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, which is to take the place of the annual championship of that organization this season. The contest, which is to be a match play affair with an eighteen-hole qualifying round and match play for as many sixteens as are entered, will be held at the Apawamis Club, Rye, N. Y., June 10, 11, 12, and 13. This tournament is expected to be the leading event for the local women this season and most of the best feminine players already have signified their intention of playing.

The women's season will begin at Arcola, Friday, with a one-day tournament, in which the season's trophy will first be contested for. The best net and best gross will earn a leg on the cup. The one-day event, which was to have been played at Siwanoy June 20, has been postponed until the Fall, since the annual Westchester County championship for the men is to be played over that course in June.

Along with these changes Mrs. William A. Gavin has announced another handicap exhibition match for the Red Cross, to be played at Scarsdale June 2, with Jack Dowling, the diminutive professional at Scarsdale, as opponent. Mrs. Gavin will receive a handicap of nine strokes in this match.

LOVE'S CURVES LURE MACKMEN TO DEFEAT

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—An excusable error by Frank Gilhooley at Shibe Park today prevented Slim Love from ringing up his second shutout over the Mackmen within ten days, but could not keep the big southpaw from registering his third victory within the same period. Slim set the Quakers down with three scattered hits, and breezed along to an easy triumph by a score of 9 to 1.

Love allowed the minions of McGillicuddy exactly the same portion of safe slams that they drew from his flinging at the Polo Grounds last week. It was a double and two singles then, and this was the extent of their hitting this afternoon.

Not until two members of the home team had been set down in the seventh inning did a hit bound from a Mackian cudgel, and neither this blow nor either of the two which followed figured in the run-getting.

It required pitching of the near-hitless variety to hold the Mackmen down, for the lanky southpaw was a profligate in his gifts. He handed out two passes in the first inning, filled the bases on passes in the fourth, and added two more in the sixth and seventh innings. In the eighth he grazed George Burns's ribs with a pitched ball. But all this Santa Claus work failed to produce anything worth while because of Love's great pitching in the pinches and Hannah's unerring aim when the Mackmen attempted to steal. The big catcher nullified three of Slim's walks by turning back prospective base stealers.

The Yankees bunched their punches in three innings, and were helped along in another by some loose playing on the part of the home team. A colossal clout by Hannah in the sixth inning dispelled the last hope of the home rooters that the Mackmen would be able to cut down the Yankee lead. With the Yanks four runs in front and Bodie on second base Hannah hit into the left-field bleachers for a home run.

Huggins's men began their scoring in the first inning, pushing a run over without a hit. Gilhooley walked, reached second on a fumble by Shannon, and third on a poor throw by Jamieson after the latter had snared Baker's line drive. Pratt's sacrifice fly to Jamieson sent the run over.

Gilhooley launched another drive in the third with a single to right. He moved up a base on Peck's sacrifice and counted on Baker's single to right. Pratt's out moved Baker along to second, and Pipp's single to centre sent him home.

Pratt opened the sixth with a double, Pipp sacrificed, and Bodie singled, another run resulting. After Miller drew a pass and was caught off first base, Hannah hit into the bleachers, and two more runs drifted across.

The Mackmen escaped a shutout in the sixth. Kopp walked, raced to third on a wild pitch, and Gilhooley dropped Burns's fly in the sun field with two down, Kopp scoring.

In the ninth the Yanks added three more runs on Love's single, passes to Gilhooley and Peck, Baker's sacrifice fly, Shannon's error, and Pratt's single.

TROTTING CASES REVIEWED.

Knotty Amateur Problem Presented to National Association.

For the first time in its history, extending over a generation, the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association was asked yesterday to pass final judgment on a case developing out of an amateur race meet. The knotty questions involved had puzzled the League of Amateur Drivers, and the decision of that body had failed to please the man who made the protest or the owner whose horse was protested. At the close of the session in the Murray Hill Hotel yesterday the case had not advanced. The Solons were not quite sure whether they hold jurisdiction, and briefs are to be submitted this morning on that question.

Local horsemen are concerned in the case, which also involves the status as an amateur of Jesse Smith, who for years has handled the horses of James A. Murphy of the Nassau Driving Club. At the meeting of the Junior League of Amateur Drivers, held at Boston last Fall, Smith drove Mr. Murphy's Marion Toddington, 2:10, to victory over J. M. O'Sullivan's Linden Hall. A protest was entered by Mr. O'Sullivan on the ground that Smith did not comply with the conditions that called for amateur drivers.

The amateur league's ruling on the question was that Smith was a professional, but that the protest was filed too late. Mr. O'Sullivan appealed to the Board of Review as a court of last resort, and this was followed by an appeal by Mr. Murphy against his driver being classed as a professional. Provided the board accepts jurisdiction, the matter will be cleared up with other less notable cases at today's session.

BOXING OFFICIALS NAMED.

New Jersey Commission Appoints Referees and Inspectors.

The first boxing licenses under the new Hurley law in New Jersey were issued yesterday at the weekly meeting of the New Jersey State Athletic Commission in the State House at Trenton, N. J. Three were acted upon favorably. These included the Penns Grove A. C. of Penns Grove, the Troxler Institute of Newark, and the Eastern Athletic club of Long Branch.

Other business of the commission included the selection of inspectors and the appointment of referees to officiate at bouts. Fifteen officials were appointed, including nine referees and six inspectors. Two of the referees, Frank O'Brien and John R. Echardt, are from Philadelphia, the first named being connected with the Olympia A. A. The other ring arbiters selected included Patsy Kline, the former featherweight boxer of Newark; Frank Bruggy, Elizabeth; John Hall, Elizabeth; Walter Campbell, Newark; Henry Lewis, Newark; Howard Smith, Elizabeth, and Jim Sroogh, a former heavyweight boxer of Newark. The inspectors included Daniel Smeidler, Atlantic City; James J. Whelan, Newark; James J. Rush, East Orange; Lewis R. Wallace, Newark; Dr. C. Whitney Merrill, Elizabeth, and William K. Devereaux, Asbury Park.

ANGLE TITLE TO FRISCH.

Harry Frisch won the Metropolitan three-cushion billiard championship last night at John Doyle's Academy when he defeated Henry Frantzen in the final night's play for the title by a score of 51 to 36. The score for the two night's play was 100 to 86 in favor of Frisch.

In the final contest Frisch employed safety play to good advantage, and Frantzen did likewise except for this difference, that the safety was employed against himself rather than against Frisch. Many times after completing a carrom Frantzen found himself in an impossible position for a continuation.

CRESSON RUNS AWAY FROM YOUNG RIVALS

PIMLICO, Md., May 7.—Harry Payne Whitney's Cresson again proved her worth this afternoon when she tiptoed her field from end to end and won the Driving Park purse for two-year-olds without the semblance of an effort. It was merely an exercise gallop for the daughter of All Gold-Bonnie Star, which had proved herself Queen of the juveniles in her previous races here and on the other Maryland tracks. Unless some other owner quickly develops a youngster of merit, Mr. Whitney is likely to strike the New York tracks with the credit of having the best young filly in today's winner and the fastest juvenile gelding in Blue Laddie.

The Elkridge Steeplechase for four-year-olds resulted in a stunning surprise in the defeat of Melodrama and Gold Bond, which last year were among the leaders of the three-year-olds. Byers rode J. E. Widener's Nutmeg with consummate skill, and the Garry Herrmann gelding was able to stall off the belated rush of Melodrama and gain the verdict by half a length.

A field of ten smart sprinters appeared for the Parkville Handicap, which carried $1,000 in added money. Rice rushed Mrs. R. L. Bresler's Jock Scot into the lead at the break, and kept him there, to win cleverly from S. Ross's The Porter, which was shuffled back at the start, but came within half a length of the winner in a strong finish through the stretch.

I. W. W. RECEIPTS INCREASED

Prosecution Attributes Bigger Revenues to Disloyal Campaign.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Counsel for the Government in the trial of 112 Industrial Workers of the World, charged with seditious conspiracy, introduced evidence today by which, they said, they expected to prove that membership of the organization increased and that its monetary receipts showed a corresponding gain following the declaration of war, as the result of the alleged conspiracy to obstruct the selective draft.

A statement prepared by R. H. Bailey, expert accountant in the employ of the Government, and introduced today as evidence showed that from early in April, 1917, until September 1, the period covered by the indictment, total receipts at I. W. W. headquarters amounted to $271,220.50. A gradual increase was noted from $25,948.51 in April to $86,809.26 in August. From $5,439.25 in April the initiation fee receipts mounted to $20,670.25 in July. Income from "other sources" was set down in the statement as $11,139.74 in April and $44,103.02 in August. This increase, the Government contends, was due almost wholly to an alleged disloyal campaign, which the defendants are charged with prosecuting.

An attempt characterized by the prosecution as "the third and last trump card of the defense" to disqualify as evidence tons of printed matter seized at I. W. W. headquarters in the Government's raids last Fall was blocked late at today's session. A motion by George F. Vanderveer, chief counsel for the defense, that the huge mass of matter be barred as evidence was overruled.

Boneless Shad

ANSONIA RESTAURANT

It is almost a trite expression—"so fond of shad, but those bones!" As by magic the bones are removed, the rich, solid meat remains to be enjoyed as this choicest of fish has never been enjoyed before. Planked Boneless Shad, a la Ansonia, is worthy of a pilgrimage from anywhere.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

An advance in the rate on call loans to 6 per cent. yesterday had no appreciable effect on the demand for stocks, which resulted in much broader activity on a rising scale. As in Monday's dealings, the steel shares again led the list, with numerous other industrials following with substantial gains. United States Steel was far and away the most active stock in yesterday's brisk market and advanced with surprising ease in view of the volume of selling that was absorbed. The issue closed at 103⅜, which was the best price of the day and a new high for the year, with a net advance of 3⅜ points, making a total advance for the first two days of the week of 6¼. The other steel issues were relatively as strong, Republic moving up 2¼, Bethlehem 3, Bethlehem B 3, and Crucible 1½. The railway shares were irregular and less active, but some of the equipment issues moved sympathetically with the steels. The market's tone was much better than at any time since the beginning of the Liberty Loan campaign, with some noticeable increases in the business offered by outside buyers. The professional traders showed less enthusiasm over the rise than the public.

To what extent the marked increase in activity and the higher prices reflected a natural relief over the satisfactory closing of the Third Liberty Loan campaign it is difficult to estimate. Experienced traders have been pointing out for weeks past that the technical condition of the market after the display of firmness it gave during the early weeks of the German drive was favorable to an upward move, and it would not have taken much stimulation in the form of pool orders to bring out a following among those who have ben waiting for the first sign of an awakening market before taking on stocks. The steel issues have been rather slow to reflect the favorable showing made in the reports for the first quarter of this year, and the assurance of capacity production for some months to come on the basis of Government orders now in hand.

Sentiment over the progress of war preparations has been improved measurably in the last few days with the successful performances in the shipyards and the apparent inability of the Germans to repeat their gains in the secondary offensive. The market of the last two days has been built very largely upon the demand for steel issues. It remains to be seen whether the movement will broaden to include other industrials which have not advanced proportionately with the market leaders. A reflection of the greater demand made by brokers' loans was an advance in call money to 6 per cent. for most loans yesterday.

LONDON MARKET IS FIRM.

Scarcity of Home Securities Restricts Business.

LONDON, May 7.—Money very plentiful, and demand quiet. Discounts quiet.

The stock market was firm throughout. There was a scarcity of home securities, which restricted business. Mining shares were buoyant under the leadership of Cornishings. Russian descriptions received increased attention. Mental industries were in good demand. Otis steels advanced 5 points. Oils ruled active and higher. Rubber shares quiet.

Trading Active on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, May 7.—Trading was active on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 58 francs 70 centimes for cash. Exchange on London 27 francs 15½ centimes. Five per cent. loan 87 francs 55 centimes.

BETHLEHEM PAYS DIVIDENDS

Owners of Common Stock Get Regular 2 1-2 Per Cent. for Quarter.

Like the United Steel Corporation, the Bethlehem Steel Corporation has provided for its war income and excess profits tax payments by purchasing Treasury certificates. This information, given by Eugene G. Grace, President, after the Directors' meeting yesterday, ended rumors that the company might need to borrow money for its taxes. The Directors declared the usual quarterly dividends of 2½ per cent. on the two classes of common stock, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 15.

Mr. Grace said the corporation's steel plants made a record output in March and that the plants at present were working from 90 to 95 per cent. of capacity.

"At our shipyards," he stated, "about half the work is for the navy and the remainder for the Emergency Fleet Corporation. We have just passed the 50,000 mark in the number of employes at the yards, and by July we expect to have at least 60,000 men employed in the shipbuilding branch alone. We are doing everything in our power to give the best we have."

Trading in New Liberty Bonds.

In view of the many inquiries that have been made relative to trading in the new 4¼ per cent. ten-year bonds of the Third Liberty Loan, it is understood that the New York Stock Exchange authorities will issue a statement on the subject today. Although no official announcement has yet been made, the impression is that dealings in the new bonds will not begin before Friday, the day following the payment of the initial installment by the banks. It is understood that when trading does begin it will be restricted to the so-called "cash bonds" in denominations not higher than $10,000 that have been sold over the counter during the last three weeks of the loan campaign. In this district these cash sales aggregated about $135,000,000, and the total for the country is said to be about $235,000,000.

New York City Bonds Active.

Since the closing of the Liberty Loan campaign the market for New York City 4, 4¼, and 4½ per cent. bonds has been active and strong. It was reported yesterday that several large blocks were dealt in over the counter in addition to transactions on the Stock Exchange. The 4½s of 1963 sold yesterday at 96½, to yield about 4.69 per cent. compared with 93, the price quoted two weeks ago. The 4¼s, which a fortnight ago sold at 87¾, changed hands yesterday at 90 to 90½, the yield at the latter figure being 4⅜ per cent. The 4s sold yesterday at 87½ compared with 85 bid, two weeks ago, their yield being 4.72 per cent. The advance in the price of New York City bonds is ascribed to the demand for tax-exempt securities and to the reports that this municipality was not likely to put out any long-term bond issues this year. The supply of tax-exempt bonds, dealers say, appears to be limited, while there is a considerable demand for them on the part of individuals, estates, and institutions.

A Survivor of Pioneer Days.

A reminiscence of an earlier era is contained in the birthday celebration a few days ago of A. H. Rosenheim, 154 West Seventy-fifth Street. Mr. Rosenheim, who is 99 years old, is the only living purchaser of the first stock issue of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

Northern Pacific's Lifeline.

The Northern Pacific last year had a sheet-anchor to windward, as disclosed in its annual report, which for this one year at least was as effective in counterbalancing rising expenses and taxes and falling revenues as their coal businesses were to the Reading, the Lackawanna or the Delaware & Hudson. This was the 10 per cent. extra dividend declared last August by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, in which the Northern Pacific owns practically a half interest. Despite a loss of $3,524,182 in operating income, the Northern Pacific came out at the end of the year with $2,554,674 more net income than in 1916, and one glance at the report shows whence the money came—$5,385,635 more dividend income than the year before, the exact amount of the road's share of the Burlington "melon." The report of the Great Northern, which received the other half of it, will be eagerly looked for.

South Dakota Bonds Taken.

Harris, Forbes & Co. of New York and the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank and Halsey, Stuart & Co. of Chicago have purchased $2,425,000 State of South Dakota bonds. Of the total issue, $1,750,000 are 5s, dated April 15, 1918, and maturing $100,000 annually April 15, 1928 to 1937, inclusive, and $750,000 maturing 1938. There are $675,000 of 4¾ per cent. bonds, dated April 15, 1918, and due 1938. Both issues are optional on and after 1923. The 5 per cent. bonds are offered to yield 5 per cent. and the 4¾ per cent. bonds to yield 4.90 per cent.

Sugar Acceptances Go Well.

The initial offering of $6,958,000 of acceptances drawn under the $100,000,000 Cuban sugar credit was made yesterday by the selling syndicate composed of the National City Company, Bernhard, Scholle & Co., Salomon Brothers & Hutzler, and F. S. Smithers & Co. All the bills were sold in the open market in less than two hours. Applications from purchasers exceeded the amount available. The acceptances were sold on the basis of 4 3-16 per cent. discount for prime member banks in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Boston, with the rate a shade higher for the private banking houses and for the smaller out-of-town institutions.

Taxes on Loaned or Borrowed Stock.

In response to a request from Francis M. Riley, Special Agent of Internal Revenue, the Stock Exchange yesterday sent a letter to the members, calling attention to the returns to be made in respect to taxes on loaned and borrowed stocks. The Department of Internal Revenue, the letter stated, had ruled that no extension of time in filing reports on these taxes for the period from Dec. 1 to March 31 would be granted after May 15. The returns cover the lending and borrowing of stocks both on the Stock Exchange and the Curb. Mr. Riley has sent notice to the members of the New York Produce Exchange that the report of transactions for each month, including April, are now due and must be in by May 15.

They Must Have Steel.

An echo of the recent meeting of steel men, at which J. Leonard Replogle obtained pledges for the devotion of all their facilities to Government work, has come from the shipbuilding men at Philadelphia, and incidentally may explain why Mr. Replogle went at the steel men as he did. One of the big new yards in the Philadelphia district has keels laid on every way, but is only able to keep men working regularly on two-thirds of them, though the force is organized, and everything, so far as can be done at the yard, ready for full speed ahead. The one thing that is holding them back is the lagging steel shipments. Shipbuilders say that to obtain the fullest speed of production on the fabrication plan they must have a reserve of material in the yard at all times equal to ten complete ships, whereas most of the yards have now virtually no reserve at all.

The New Discount Company.

It was announced yesterday that the new discount bank which is being organized by the leading banks and trust companies in this city would be called The Discount Company of New York. The institution, it was said, would have a capital of $5,000,000 and a surplus of $1,000,000. It has not yet been decided whether banking institutions outside of the city would be invited to become stockholders. The President and other officers of the company have not yet been selected. Among those interested in the new venture are the Guaranty Trust Company, the Bankers Trust Company, the National City Bank, the National Bank of Commerce, the First National, the Mechanics and Metals' National, the Chase National, and J. P. Morgan & Co.

Shipping Discouragement.

The shipping shares generally failed to respond to the enthusiasm around them yesterday, several actually losing fractionally, apparently a symptom of disappointment regarding the operating terms the Shipping Board is giving the big companies. Even Marine preferred, with all the "pool" talk that is once more rife, gained only a quarter of a point on the day. Conversely, such shipbuilding shares as are on the market, notably American Shipbuilding, looked up in sprightly fashion.

Spot Cotton Hanging On.

The wide variations in Southern spot cotton quotations continued yesterday, but business looked up, New Orleans selling nearly 9,000 bales at 28.50. Other markets like Savannah retained their quotations at 32.50 or similar figures, but did no business. People who do not follow cotton very closely are puzzled to account for these wide discrepancies. The point is that all cotton exchanges are required by law to make their quotations on actual sales by producers, on spot cotton, and cannot recognize sales at second hand. If the farmers won't sell their cotton at less than a certain price, that is the official quotation, even if nobody will buy it at that price.

CAUSED BY ALASKA STRIKE

Net Surplus on Dec. 31 Was $8,596,443—$7,150,000 of $16,000,000 Short Term Notes Retired.

The Kennecott Copper Corporation's report for 1917 showed in its income account when issued yesterday the adverse effect of last Summer's strike in Alaska. The operating revenue of $16,026,105 was $12,726,752 less than the year before, and the net from all sources, before providing for interest charges and depreciation, amounted to $19,283,481, a drop of $9,269,126. The surplus available for dividends was $11,745,419, equal to $4.14 for each share of stock. In 1916 the balance reached a total of $27,661,713, equivalent to $9.92 for each share.

The heaviest charge against income was $6,036,036 for depletion of ore reserves. The report showed that 78,211,429 pounds of copper and 933,573 ounces of silver were received at the smelter during the year, of which 56,904,650 pounds of copper and 681,641 ounces of silver were sold. The carryover of 21,306,779 pounds of copper and 251,932 ounces of silver was inventoried at the cost of production.

Other income.........	7,466,285	6,092,069
Interest and taxes...	1,818,579	867,985
Surplus	1,233,754	12,341,430

The aggregate surplus on Dec. 31 was $20,148,981, from which $11,552,538 was taken to cover the depletion of minerals during the year 1916, leaving a net surplus of $8,596,443. During the year the management retired $7,150,000 of the $16,000,000 short-term notes issued in March, 1917, for purchasing stock of the Utah Copper Company. The amount of Utah shares acquired was 182,000, bringing the total holdings in this company up to 616,504 shares as of Dec. 31.

At the annual meeting yesterday the reading of minutes of Directors' meetings showed that in November 10,000 Utah shares were bought for $843,675, and the purchase of 10,000 more was authorized at a price no higher than $80 a share. The annual statement showed that 1,041 shares of Braden Copper stock were bought through the issuance of Kennecott shares for them. At the end of the year the corporation owned 2,565,891 of the total outstanding issue of 2,590,700 shares of the Braden Company.

"In common with other mining districts," said the report, "the labor situation in Alaska was critical. A marked shortage developed in April and May, when the fishing industry, prospecting, Government railroad at Anchorage, and numerous small mining properties still in the development stage drew heavily on the available supply. On June 16 the men employed at the Jumbo and Bonanza mines at Kennecott went out on strike after giving forty-eight hours' notice of a demand for an increase of wages. By the end of July some 200 men, most of them unskilled in mining work, had been brought in from Cordova and Anchorage, and the strike was broken. On Aug. 2 the strike was declared off and conditions gradually improved, although the average efficiency was still below normal at the end of the year."

Costs advanced substantially because of high prices for materials and labor, the report stated, and certain extension work on plants was held back. It was suggested that the Braden Company would need additional funds to complete its 10,000-ton plant, and for this reason, among others, the Directors decided to conserve cash by lowering the dividend in the final quarter.

At the annual meeting C. T. Ulrich, Secretary, was elected a Director to succeed Thomas Cochran. The retiring Directors were re-elected.

The Braden Copper Mines Company, controlled by the Kennecott, earned a gross operating income of $13,041,924, an increase of $343,813 over 1916. After adding in outside earnings and deducting interest and depreciation, a surplus of $2,863,111 remained, compared with $6,945,764 the year before.

NORTHERN PACIFIC HAS PROFIT OF $29,502,685

Net Corporate Income, with Gain of $2,554,674, Equivalent to $11.90 a Share.

The annual report of the Northern Pacific Railway Company for the calendar year 1917, issued yesterday, shows an increase in the net corporate income of $2,554,674, to a total of $29,502,685, equivalent to $11.90 a share on the $248,000,000 of capital stock outstanding. Of this sum $17,360,000 was paid out in dividends, and the remainder, $12,142,685, transferred to the surplus account.

The increase in the net income of the Northern Pacific, however, was accomplished in spite of a decline of $3,524,182 in the net operating income of the railroad, due to a loss of $2,121,199 in net revenues and an increase of $1,405,604 in taxes. The gross revenues of $88,225,726 showed an increase of $7,944,382, and were the largest in the history of the road, but wages, maintenance of equipment, material, &c., increased by upward of $10,000,000.

The net income was increased by the various outside sources of revenue which the Northern Pacific possesses, notably its large interest in the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, remaining from the days of the Northern Securities merger. The Burlington last year, after a long wait and many petitions from the minority stockholders, declared a 10 per cent. cash dividend out of its very large surplus, and the Northern Pacific's share of this was $5,385,635, sufficient in itself to counterbalance the loss in operating revenues. The total increase in non-operating income was $6,110,396. The road during the year spent $11,447,673 out of capital account, $5,211,021 for additions and betterments, and drew on capital account for $2,273,850 of an expenditure of $4,239,615 for new equipment.

President Hannaford states that the terms of the Railway Control act, when applied to the Northern Pacific, will be sufficient to pay expenses, taxes and all fixed charges, maintain the 7 per cent. dividend, and provide a substantial margin besides.

HOCKING VALLEY EARNINGS.

Railway Has Net Income of $1,933,912, an Increase of $557,785.

The report of the Hocking Valley Railway Company for the calendar year 1917 shows a net income of $1,933,912, equivalent to 17.63 per cent. on the capital stock of $11,000,000, and representing an increase of $557,785, or, roughly, 40 per cent., over the net income for 1916. The gross operating revenues during the year increased by $2,496,014, or 30 per cent., to a total of $10,696,434, and net operating revenue, despite heavy increases in expenses, increased by $684,780, to a total of $3,287,311.

The largest item in the increased revenue of the Hocking Valley, as in that of the Chesapeake & Ohio, was the increased return on bituminous coal and coke. The road during the year transported 10,674,854 tons of coal and coke, as against 9,209,490 tons the previous year, and 4,191,981 tons of other freight. Increases in wages during the year amounted to about $625,000.

OIL SHAREHOLDERS ENJOY LOVE FEAST

OLD DIRECTORATE RESIGNS

Suggestion of Committee That Mistakes of Past Be Forgotten Accepted by Resolution.

The adjourned meeting of Metropolitan Petroleum Corporation stockholders, called to untangle the company's financial affairs, developed yesterday into a love feast. The special purpose of the meeting was to receive a report prepared by a committee headed by Judge Delavan A. Holmes, which had examined into the relation of the Metropolitan and the Island Oil and Transport Company. Judge Holmes reported that the old Board of Directors had acceded to a demand to resign and had been succeeded by a new board representing holders of substantial amounts of stock.

The committee's report recounted the history of the corporation from its formation to the time when a part of its Mexican oil leases were sold to the Island Oil and Transport Company. On this land a great oil well was developed after the arrangement for the sale was made, and this development caused much ill feeling on the part of stockholders toward Richmond Levering, who organized both companies.

"It is clear to the committee," said the report, "that the reason the Metropolitan Petroleum Corporation of Delaware could not go ahead was the failure of Richmond Levering & Co. to complete the arrangement made on Nov. 27, 1915, to purchase $3,000,000 of the company's debentures."

In commenting on the committee's findings, Judge Holmes said that it was not to the best interests of shareowners to lay too much stress on the mistakes and failures of the past. The investigation showed, he stated, that A. B. Leach & Co. had raised $1,000,000 for the Island Oil and Transport Company, and with these funds a pipe line from the great gusher to seaboard at Tampico had been completed. The Metropolitan owned seven producing wells, which could be connected with the pipe line, and the Judge gave it as his opinion that the corporation had valuable assets. He asked the stockholders to bury the hatchet and co-operate to the end of building up the property.

"It frequently happens," he added, "that when people venture into the stock market and get their fingers burned, they raise a cry of fraud. I know because I have been there myself. I suggest that the Directors be empowered to negotiate with the Island Oil and Transport Interests over the matters in dispute, and if these should come to nothing then it will be time for litigation. It will be for your interests to avoid litigation if it is possible."

The suggestion was accepted by the shareowners in the form of a formal resolution. The Directors were empowered to carry on the negotiations and report results to the stockholders at a later date. The new board consists of Austin Brockmeyer of the Stock Exchange firm of Shippee & Rawson, Forrest Kaltenburg, Howard D. Ross of the Stock Exchange firm of Markoe, Morgan & Co., John Tutules, and H. W. Getting, Secretary of the corporation.

APPEAL TO RAILWAYS TO GUARD SECURITIES

National Association of Owners Sends Letter to Directors of Roads.

Committee Desires to Co-operate with Any Agency Seeking to Produce Satisfactory Contract.

The National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities has issued a letter to the Directors of railroads, now under Government control and operation, calling to their attention the fact that they now have the responsibility of representing all classes of securities issued by their respective railroads as the contracting parties on behalf of the owners of the properties, in the execution of the proposed contract which each railroad is to make with the Government.

The sub-Executive Committee of the association has held several conferences with railroad men and financiers, as a result of which there has been appointed a special committee representing owners of railroad securities, the same consisting of S. Davies Warfield, President of the Continental Trust Company, Baltimore, Chairman; Gordon Abbott, Chairman of the Old Colony Trust Company, Boston; James Brown of Brown Brothers & Co., New York; Frederick H. Ecker, Treasurer of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, New York, and John J. Pulleyn, President of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, New York. Samuel Untermyer and B. H. Inness Brown, the latter of the firm of Hornblower, Miller, Garrison & Potter, have been named as counsel to the committee.

Chairman Warfield made yesterday an announcement of the purposes of the committee.

"A tentative draft of contract has been submitted by officials of the Government," the announcement says, "under which the railroads are to be controlled and operated as provided in the Railway bill passed by Congress, for a period which 'shall not exceed one year and nine months' after the war. This contract deals with questions concerning both the operations of the railroads and the conditions under which the owners thereof are to secure compensation for the use of their properties during the period mentioned. This draft of contract has been considered by a committee of lawyers representing the Railways Executives Advisory Committee.

"Upon the final terms of this contract depends the condition of credit generally, as pointed out by President Wilson in his address to Congress giving reasons for governmental operation of the railroads. The President then said:

"'One of the strong arguments for assuming control of the railroads at this time is the financial argument. It is necessary that the values of railway securities should be justly and fairly protected. * * * In the hands of many thousands of small investors in the country, as well as in national banks, in insurance companies, in savings banks, in trust companies, in financial agencies of every kind, railway securities, the sum total of which runs up to some ten or eleven thousand millions, constitute a vital part of the structure of credit, and the unquestioned solidity of that structure must be maintained.'

"To afford the opportunity for the pression of opinions on questions which will necessarily arise affecting not only the actual owners of railroad securities, but also having relation to the conditions necessary to maintain the solidity of the structure of credit, this committee has been composed of representatives of various channels for the investment of the funds of the people—savings banks, life insurance companies, investment bankers, large estates, and financial institutions. Several members of the committee also serve on Boards of Directors of railroads, and are familiar with the general railroad conditions and credit, but none are operating railroad executives.

"This committee desires to co-operate with the Government in the framing of the provisions of this contract, and to be helpful especially in the directions named by President Wilson.

"It is the desire of this committee to also co-operate with any agency which is aiming to produce a contract satisfactory to the various interests involved."

PACKING PROFIT $3,614,530.

The California Packing Corporation reports an operating profit of $3,614,530 in the year ended Feb. 28, 1918, and a total income, counting in the proportion of profits accrued from holdings in the Alaska Packers' Association, of $6,147,940. After deducting the preferred stock dividend, a balance of $5,555,672 remained, equal to $16.89 a share of common stock, compared with $9.36 in the preceding year.

J. K. Armsby, President, said in the annual statement yesterday that $1,570,244 was expended for new properties during the year and $440,667 was written off for depreciation. As the result of transportation delays an inventory of $5,927,430 and accounts receivable totaling $6,266,934 were carried into the current year. Notes payable, amounting to $4,871,350 outstanding at the close of the fiscal year, said Mr. Ormsby, have since been reduced to $1,544,000. During the year 2,261 shares of preferred stock were acquired for the sinking fund and good-will amounting to $306,116 on properties acquired was charged against the book value of the common stock.

THE COTTON MARKET

Close Barely Steady—Prices Range from 14 Lower in May to 6 Higher in July.

May cotton was in some demand at the opening of the local market yesterday, apparently by some of the short interests who, despite their recent successes, still retained disturbing memories of their disastrous experiences in covering short contracts in the spot month earlier in the year. They had no great difficulty, however, in finding all they wanted right after the call, while all the later months were fairly easy as a consequence of the continually improving weather and crop news.

The market was characterized by many followers as a "weather market" pure and simple. After the early decline there was a good rally toward the middle of the day, but it appeared to be founded upon nothing more substantial than short covering in a narrow market, and later prices were weakening again, with the close barely steady, ranging from 14 lower in May to 6 higher in July, most of the new crop months practically unchanged on the day. Spot cotton was quoted at a slight advance in sympathy with the demand for near positions and the unyielding character of Southern markets.

Liverpool sold to a notable extent, while one large Wall Street house with Western connections was reported a good customer, with many orders apparently for covering purposes. At its lowest point, the market was from 39 to 47 points off, but at this level was obviously overbought. It was a trading market, with no other features.

No exports were reported yesterday. Southern spot markets were from 25 points higher to 50 points lower, generally unchanged.

CENTRAL'S EARNINGS GROW.

The earnings statement of the New York Central Railroad for the month of March, made public yesterday, shows operating revenues of $20,120,436, an increase of $2,962,372, compared with the corresponding month last year, and operating expenses of $15,436,221, an increase of $2,713,120. For the month the net income amounted to $1,543,481, an increase of $378,476.

The statement for the three months ended March 31 shows operating revenues of $50,197,277, an increase of $3,503,521, and operating expenses of $44,270,849, an increase of $7,946,787. The gross income amounted to $7,347,727, a decrease of $4,948,058, compared with the first quarter in 1917, while the net deficit for the period was $3,409,718, a decrease of $4,946,342, compared with the surplus for the corresponding three months last year.

GRANTS BOND HEARING.

An application by the New York and Richmond Gas Company for permission to issue $2,214,400 in bonds was refused by the Public Service Commission in February. Later the commission won a legal battle against the company, which had failed to obey an order for an extension of its mains to New Dorp and Grant City. Then the company asked for a reopening of the hearing on the bond issue application on the ground that unless it had the money it would not be able to meet the expenses of laying the new mains.

Yesterday the commission granted the rehearing to begin on May 20. In refusing the original application the commission reported that the company had not proved its claim that the money was needed in part to refund an expenditure of $1,500,000, which had been spent for needed improvements.

COAL CONCERN PUNISHED.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—For supplying a Belgian relief steamer and other ships with a grade of coal that exposed them to the submarine menace, instead of a smokeless coal, the New York and Philadelphia Coal and Coke Company was ordered by the Fuel Administration today to contribute $1,000 to the Belgian Relief Commission and suspend operation for five days, beginning May 9. It will also refund $1.35 for each short ton of the low-grade fuel delivered.

Under a regulation issued April 1, the Fuel Administration directed that only low volatile or smokeless coal be furnished naval and other ships leaving Atlantic ports likely to pass through the submarine zone. The Administration announced that the company had violated this order in furnishing coal to the Belgian relief steamer President Bunge and other unnamed ships.

THE CORN EXCHANGE BANK
NEW YORK CITY

We desire to report to the depositors and friends of The Corn Exchange Bank that the individual and corporate subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan made through us numbered 138,776 and amounted to $32,422,300 at close of business May 7th.

This hearty co-operation by the people is a magnificent exhibition of patriotism and we tender one and all our sincerest thanks.

Even more gratifying than the amount in dollars is the wide distribution of the bonds among the general public. The average of our subscriptions is $233. This is equivalent to a wholesale and widespread enlistment of the people in the forces of the United States, and is a sure sign of coming Victory.

Once more our officers and clerical force have given their services to the cause and are entitled to the highest praise for their labors and patriotism.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 10,235 packages. The market became strained before the close yesterday and with very much lighter buying today prices declined about 1c. The secondary grades suffered even more than the finer qualities. No change in renovated, ladles, or packing stock. COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

It is expected that the Government report on the Winter wheat crop, giving the percentage of condition, will show a considerable improvement over last month, when the percentage was 78.2.

Two prominent private reports issued last week made the condition 83.4 per cent. and 86.3 per cent., respectively, with indicated yields of 577,000,000 to 600,000,000 bushels. Last year's final crop was 418,070,000 bushels. The average loss in acreage during the Winter for the last ten years has been 10.9 per cent., and private estimates have made the loss 10.1 per cent. to 12.1. Last year's loss was a record one, amounting to 31 per cent. The acreage sown last Fall was 42,170,000 acres, or the largest on record, slightly exceeding 1915, when the crop was 655,000,000 bushels.

RYE.

The local rye market was dull and nominal. In the West Chicago declined 7c to $2.50, while Minneapolis was 2c lower at $2.60.

CORN.

The corn market was again weak, the July position closing with net losses of 1⅝c. At the low point of the day July sold at $1.45¼, or 3⅝c below the high point of Saturday. The visible supply showed a decrease for the week of 358,000 bushels, and the total was 16,111,000, compared with 5,525,000 last year. In the local cash market kiln dried No. 3 yellow was quoted at $1.55; No. 4 yellow at $1.4?, cost and freight, New York.

OATS.

The oats market was weak and lower, closing only slightly above the lowest, with net losses of ⅝@2⅝c. There was heavy pressure in the May position, which reflected weakness in cash markets. The visible supply showed a decrease of 1,198,000 bushels for the week, but it was thought that much of these oats is now in transit. The local cash market was weaker; natural quoted at 83@84c, and clipped white at 85@88c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

There was only a moderate volume of business in the market for hog products, and net price changes were comparatively small and irregular. Lard was somewhat lower, while ribs and pork were steady. The decline in grain had a tendency to discourage buying. This was offset by firmness in the hog position and reports that the Government will shortly place export orders. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 25,000; estimated for Wednesday, 25,000. Kansas City received 9,000 and Omaha 15,000 hogs.

COFFEE.

Operators in the market for coffee futures yesterday were very limited and mostly confined to the December position, although there was a trade or two in September. Local trade interests seemed to be covering, while this demand was supplied by speculative interests. The market opened at advances of 3 to 4 points and closed irregular, 1 point net lower to a net advance of 4 points. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The Cuban weekly statistics showed a decrease in exports of about 12,000 tons, but exports north of Hatteras were fairly liberal. The Sugar Committee reported sales of 21,500 bags Cubas, prompt shipment, at 4.985c, cost and freight; 140,000 bags Porto Ricos, May shipment, at 6.005c, cost, insurance, and freight, and 11,800 bags Santo Domingos for Canada, afloat for New York, at 4.740c, cost, insurance, and freight. Conditions show two or three refiners making daily distribution on new business; others withdrawn for the time being.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Monday ....6 " " "

Leather Goods Called For.

Leather goods of all sorts, and particularly traveling paraphernalia, are in very great demand, according to reports from a number of dealers in this city. Week-end bags and suit cases, both large and small, are wanted, and black or tan is usually favored. Cases for toilet articles and so-called comfort kits are among the leading items in the Spring business. Though prices are high, the best qualities seem to be the most sought. Small patent leather shopping bags for women are also very popular.

Glass Trade Fairly Active.

There has been an unusual demand for heavy tumblers and packing jars in the glassware trade this year, and supplies have become very scarce, according to reports here. Mills are said to be from three to six months behind on orders, though they are gradually catching up. Household glassware and fancy shapes are fairly well sought, and cut glass is wanted in some sections, though the Fall of the year is the normal season for these lines. Blank shapes for cutting are also moving in liberal quantities. The uncertain future of alcoholic liquors has curtailed buying of barroom glassware very considerably.

Fall Business in Suits.

More manufacturers of coats and suits for women are coming out every day with early Fall lines, and it is said that there are more buyers in town now looking for Fall merchandise than there has ever been before so early in the year. Though the amount of business actually placed at this early date is, of course, not large, orders are nevertheless being taken. At this time, however, new styles and novel features are not as much in demand as the staple lines. Though buyers sometimes complain of high prices, they seem to feel that further advances later on are not improbable, and accept the present quotations without much haggling.

Navy Blue Hose Much in Demand.

Two things stand out in the current demand for women's silk hosiery of the better kind. One is the steady increase in the demand for navy blue hose, and the other is the improvement in the quality of the goods that are now being purchased by the so-called popular-priced stores. Several of these stores, which four or five years ago would not have taken a chance on merchandise of this kind that retails above $1.50 to $2, are now buying freely of stockings that will cost the ultimate wearer from $3 to $5 a pair. On the other hand, there has been rather a drop in some of the higher-priced stores in the consumer demand for hosiery that retails above $5 a pair.

A Popular Combination.

Taffeta or satin used with crêpe de chine is said to be one of the most popular combinations of two materials in dresses for Spring and Summer. Black satin is very effectively used in some of the best selling models with wide front and back panels of green crêpe de chine. Following out the color scheme, the waist part of the dress is sometimes embroidered in flower designs with green silk. Other colors are frequently used instead of green, such as lavender, blue or old rose. In one such model seen, several bright colors were used, and the general effect was very pleasing. Buyers are said to be favoring such garments as those for the late trade.

Weather Helps Fabric Sales.

The coming of warmer weather has had a marked effect locally in increasing the retail sale of all kinds of seasonable merchandise, chiefly the kind that is used by women. One thing in particular that it has done has been to increase the business done by the fabric departments. On Monday the cotton dress fabric department of one of the best-known local stores did a business that, in money, was at least 33 1-3 per cent. greater than that of the corresponding day a year ago. A wide variety of merchandise shared in this trade, including ginghams, calicoes, fancy voiles, &c. Proportionate gains were also shown by the silk and by the wool dress goods departments of the same store. Among the active silks were foulards, ginghams, and fancy effects that are used in lining capes.

Object to Special Orders.

Not a little objection is being raised by local manufacturers of several kinds of merchandise, including suits, coats, skirts, shoes, &c., against the growing practice on the part of buyers of requesting the making up of single articles. Sometimes this is asked because the buyer wants the merchandise for himself or herself, or some relative, but there is an increasing number of demands of this kind growing out of requests made of buyers by retail customers for a specially-made garment or shoe. If the customer is a good one, his or her business is held by passing the burden on to the manufacturer. Not only does the making of a single article of any kind increase its production cost, but it is said that to have half a dozen "specials" going through the shop at once disrupts the work on larger orders to considerable extent.

Will Set Questioners Right.

One of the many things the recently organized United Waist League of America intends to do is to raise the public's estimation of the waist industry and the men who are engaged in it. In other words, it is going to show the public that there is nothing of the "sweat-shop" in the industry today, and that the manufacturers of this merchandise are every bit as worthy of a high standing in the commercial world as makers of automobiles, furniture, or other things. Not a little of the misunderstanding on this score in the past is attributed to the lack of knowledge on the part of the average person concerning the waist industry. To "educate" the public in this respect, the league intends to make salient facts known through the daily papers, fashion journals, trade publications, &c., as well as to supply information concerning styles, service, and other things of interest.

Gray Goods Prices Picking Up.

Second hands continued to dominate the local gray goods market yesterday as sellers, and in some cases they obtained better prices for their offerings than have been paid for quite some time. For instance, Northern spot lots of 38½-inch 64-60s sold from second hands at 18 cents, while similar goods in the South brought 17½ cents from the same sources. Second hand business was also done on this construction, Southern make, for October-December delivery at 17 cents. July lots of Southern 39-inch 68-72s sold from second hands at 18½ cents, and half a cent more than this was paid for spots of the same construction in the North. Twenty-two cents was paid for June-July shipments of 37-inch 3.95-yard drills during the day, the sellers again being second hands. Mill asking prices on print cloths closed this way:

AMERICANS REBUKE FRENCH SOCIALISTS

PLAN NOW PROBABLY DEAD

Paris Believes That American Common Sense Has Prevailed Over the Desires of Misled Frenchmen.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 7.—The American labor delegates left for a visit to the French front this morning after having administered to the French official Socialists a sharp but much needed lesson. The French Socialists, as a party, have all through the war displayed a persistent desire to resume contact with the German and Austrian Socialists through the medium of an international conference in order, as they profess, to be able to convince the enemy Socialists by argument of the necessity of accepting allied conditions of peace and overthrowing Prussian militarism.

The British Labor Party has twice definitely refused to admit the feasibility of this proposal, and resolutely holds aloof from all contact with the Kaiser's Socialists. The arrival of the American labor delegates here was eagerly looked forward to by the French Socialists, who had great hopes of being able to convert their American colleagues and rope them into the movement to bring pressure to bear, especially on the French Government to secure the consent of the allied Governments to the holding of an international conference with the enemy Socialists.

This was the basic idea of the French representatives at the conference yesterday between the American labor delegates and the members of the Confederation Generale du Travail, the great French revolutionary labor organization. M. Jouhanx, General Secretary of the confederation, made the proposed international conference practically the sole note of his speech. France, he asserted, had no hatred for the German workers themselves, and he pointed out that if the conference took place it could have only one of two results. Either the workers in the enemy countries would refuse to join in the efforts of the workers of the allied countries for the liberation of the world's peoples, in which case the war must continue, or they would accept the allied view of what was right and would act with the allied peoples for the good of humanity.

"We don't hate the German workers any more than you do," he said in so many words, "but to give them our hand now would be looked upon by them only as a sign of weakness."

After reminding the congress of the hypocritical professions of the German Socialist Party before the war, Mr. Frey said flatly he entirely agreed with Samuel Gompers that American labor men would refuse to meet the German delegates under any circumstances so long as Germany was ruled by an imperialistic Government.

Mr. Frey's blunt words left Albert Thompson practically without a word to say. M. Thomas urged the same arguments as Jouhaux, but all the satisfaction the French labor men got was a promise from James Wilson, President of the American delegation, to report the matter to the American workers when he returned home.

The Americans' straight pronouncement has left the official Socialist journal l'Humanite absolutely dumb this morning as to yesterday's conference, so much so that the editorial on the conference confines itself to regrets at the present differences between the American Socialist and labor parties. Not a word of comment is printed on the definite refusal of American labor to be dragged into useless discussions with the enemy Socialists.

On the other hand, in his paper Victoire, Gustav Herve, before the war a revolutionary Socialist and anti-militarist of the deepest dye, but now a pro-war patriot of undoubted sincerity, scores the assault by Albert Thomas "against the pure and strong conscience of American labor men" as nothing short of shameful.

American labor, in the opinion of Paris this morning, has finally scotched the unwholesome hankering of French Socialists to meet their boche brethren and plain American common sense has once more swept away a difficulty that has troubled many French patriots.

LONDON, May 7.—George H. Roberts, Minister of Labor, speaking at Norwich yesterday, declared he was still strongly opposed to any conferences with the laboring class in Germany. He mentioned the presence in England last week of representatives of the American Federation of Labor. These men, he said, had come to England with definite instructions to resist every manoeuvre to bring them into contact with enemy citizens.

The Minister said he had been criticised because he opposed attempts to arrange conferences with the German Socialists. He could not differentiate between one class or party in Germany and another. He knew the German Social Democrats and they changed according to the course of the war. When things seemed to be going well for the Germans they talked of indemnities, but when things were less hopeful their stomachs contracted, and their consciences expanded, and they began to talk of peace. Mr. Roberts said he had made this declaration to his friends from America:

"Stand firm. Do not be lured into any conference where Germany is represented, because if any German Social Democrats are allowed to attend a conference you may be sure they simply are there as representatives of the Kaiser. I would sooner go to visit the Devil in Hell than to meet them."

Victory, Mr. Roberts concluded, must rest with Great Britain and her allies as assuredly as the tides would continue to ebb and flow.

SEES LIVES STAKED ON SHIPPING OUTPUT

E. A. Filene Demands Maximum Production In Order to Supply Our Soldiers.

An appeal to make our shipbuilding program 100 per cent. efficient was made yesterday afternoon by Edward A. Filene, Chairman of the War Shipping Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. He declared that we are shipping men overseas without sufficient shipping to meet a crisis, but that in the staking of the lives of our boys he was confident America would respond to the demand and supply the necessary shipping. Mr. Filene spoke at a luncheon in the Bankers Club, 120 Broadway, given under the auspices of the Merchants' Association.

There were present fifty persons, representing shipbuilders and commercial organizations. William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants' Association, was toastmaster, and Bainbridge Colby of the United States Shipping Commission also spoke.

Mr. Filene said that in his opinion ship production will not exceed the U-boat destruction of shipping before next Spring, and that in the meantime we must speed up. It takes four tons, he said, to supply every single man in the field, and that would mean in the case of 1,000,000 men 4,000,000 tons. We have not that tonnage, he said, and 5,000,000 men at the front would mean 20,000,000 tons.

BURGLARY SUSPECT KILLS OLD POLICEMAN

John McGuire, one of the oldest members of the Pelham Manor Police Force, was shot and killed yesterday morning while trying to arrest a negro, whom he believed to be implicated in the recent burglaries at Pelham Manor and Pelham Heights. Herman Rokohl, a wealthy cigar manufacturer, was badly beaten with the butt of a revolver by a burglar who had entered his home.

Several hours after Mr. Rokohl had reported the attack on him Lieutenant McGowan of the New Rochelle police force arrested a young white man, who gave his name as John Brennen of New Rochelle, and who was later identified by Mr. Rokohl as the burglar who had attacked him. Brennan, the police think, was a member of the gang which invaded the Pelhams, which include at least four men, and divided their operations.

Mr. Rokohl, who is 74 years old, though badly battered by the other burglar, was able to tell a complete story of the visit of the intruder to his home. His sister, Mrs. Fredericka Wedemeier, was asleep on the second floor, when she was suddenly awakened by a flashlight. She screamed and the burglar ran out into the hall, where he ran into Mr. Rokohl, who had been aroused from his sleep. Despite his advanced age Mr. Rokohl put up a plucky fight, and wrestled about the hallway for some time, but the burglar drew his revolver and pounded his victim over the head. Though badly hurt Mr. Rokohl kept up the battle until he was knocked down. Then the burglar ran downstairs and out the kitchen door.

MEMORIAL FOR MEN OF 69TH

A reception for the members of the old 69th Regiment, incorporated in the 165th Infantry, and other soldiers of the Rainbow Division sent back to this country by General Pershing to aid in the Liberty Loan campaign was held in the Hotel Astor last night by the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick. Ex-Governor Benjamin B. Odell, ex-Senator James A. O'Gorman, John McCormack, Chauncey Olcott, and others praised the men for their valor and urged all Americans of Irish birth to support the war.

Ex-Governor Odell said that he favored a plan to erect a tablet or some other memorial at one of the entrances of Central Park to the members of the regiment who had died in battle. His proposal was greeted with enthusiasm, as was the announcement that Lieut. Col. William N. Haskell, the regular army officer who commanded the 69th in the border service, had been assigned to his old command in France.

QUOTES FROM GIBBS IN PATRIOTIC DRIVE

AUTO TOUR TO THE PACIFIC

Woman Seeks to Foster a Better Understanding of the Part Our Allies Are Taking in the War.

Under the auspices of the National Security League, and co-operating with the Bureau of Education of the Department of the Interior in its nation-wide campaign of Americanization, Mrs. Edwin C. Arnold of this city, accompanied by her husband, who is connected with the Council of National Defense at Washington, is making an automobile tour from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast to Americanize enemy aliens, newly arrived immigrants, and such Americans she finds along the path of her travel who need the beneficent influence of home propaganda.

Mrs. Arnold started her tour from Pleasantville, N. Y., passing through this city, and had reached Washington yesterday. With her husband, who was formerly the advertising manager of the Methodist Book Concern, she is making the tour at her own expense.

In connection with her addresses before American audiences Mrs. Arnold is making use of the dispatches of Philip Gibbs to THE NEW YORK TIMES from the British battlefront, because, she says, Mr. Gibbs's articles serve better than anything else she knows one of the purposes of her trip, the fostering of a better understanding of the part our allies are playing in the war, at the same time countering anti-British feeling where it exists due to incomplete instruction. Before she came to New York some time ago Mrs. Arnold was a high school teacher in Fremont, Neb. She is the founder and first President of the Society of the Daughters of Nebraska in New York.

"The Bureau of Education has recently outlined a national program for the Americanization of all aliens in our midst," Mrs. Arnold said, "and this immense work is to be carried on in connection with every force available and through every possible channel. Thus far we have been our own worst enemy through neglect in this field, and should we lift one finger to turn from us the great industrial forces of foreigners among us the Kaiser could call the work completely his own. Un-American labor falls far short of the ideal; we have talked and preached enough. Now we must go out and do.

"Just because a person has the rights and privileges of American citizenship does not prove his right to the title. Among us it has been said there are many persons who have grown up with an ill-conceived animosity to all things British. The thoroughbred American of the present generation and even the oldest inhabitant who grew up with the average American common school education is now experiencing the uprooting of this subtle prejudice, which has no more cause for existence in this day than has a belligerent feeling between North and South.

"The obliteration of this prejudice, where, of course, it exists, is being effectively accomplished as Americans more and more comprehend what the British have done and are doing for humanity in the world conflict. Out of this war there has come the best possible corrective, naturally adapting itself to our present needs. The panoramic glimpses of the British part in the great struggle, with their frequent lapses into details of human interest, which come from the pen of Philip Gibbs, both hearten us to our own part in the fight for humanity, and, without intent, lend themselves to the doctrine which we ourselves are preaching—the gospel of hearty and generous co-operation with our allies.

"Though other British writers often touch our sympathy, I do not think there is any one who will dispute that Mr. Gibbs is entitled to first honors in striking home here in America with the first real and best effort to depict British character at its fighting best, struggling side by side with our own soldiers for the cause of the entire world. I have been making use of his dispatches on my tour, quoting here and there from them in emphasis of a point or stressing by citations from his articles reasons for genuine and whole-hearted co-operation. If I am heckled by discontents when speaking from the automobile, I frequently refer to the dispatches, some fifty or more clippings of which I always carry in a portfolio."

In her tour Mrs. Arnold makes it a point to visit factories employing aliens to disseminate information on American citizenship and the purposes and aims of the United States in the war.

"If every American would donate a little individual effort toward the Americanization of aliens," she says, "there would be no need of a centralized movement. Americans can do this at little expense of effort."

HURLEY AND SCHWAB TO SEEK BIGGER FUND

House Committee Today Will Hear Their Plans for Expansion of Our Shipbuilding.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board; Charles M. Schwab, Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and other officials will appear before the Appropriations Committee of the House tomorrow and present a schedule of the moneys needed for shipbuilding in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919. It was stated today that the schedule would call for a large expansion of the shipbuilding program as contemplated when the original estimates were made, but no definite statement could be obtained concerning the amount which would be asked.

That a large sum of money would be requested was forecast recently after Major Gen. Goethals, representing the War Department, made unexpected demands on the Shipping Board for tonnage to carry men and munitions to France. At the same time Mr. Schwab and Mr. Hurley pledged themselves to put through the program outlined if the resources of the nation could be assembled.

The capacity of tonnage under contract will be increased where this can be done without causing delay and additional contracts will be let. Two and three shifts of men will be put at work in every yard where this is possible. Mr. Schwab, who is Chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, has expressed the belief that the steel can be supplied for the expanded program and he has been in touch with the steel interests on which the nation must depend.

JAS. A. OSBORNE PROTESTS.

Use of His Name in Bribery Attempt Unauthorized, He Tells Court.

In the criminal branch of the Federal District Court, Harry Walters, the former National Guardsman, who is the Government's chief witness against Dr. Philip Becker of 145 West Eightieth Street, charged with conspiring to aid men to avoid military service, testified that he had been offered $1,000 by a man named T. C. Belt, who represented himself as an agent for James W. Osborne, Dr. Becker's counsel. Walters didn't say what he was asked to do for the $1,000, and stated that he didn't believe Mr. Osborne or Dr. Becker had authorized Belt to make any such proposition to him.

Mr. Osborne jumped to his feet when Walters gave this testimony, and objected to its introduction as having no bearing on the case. Judge Rufus E. Foster ruled that Mr. Osborne himself had opened the way for such testimony by asking Walters if the Government, through any of its agents, had promised him anything for his aid in entrapping Dr. Becker. The jury was sent from the room while the bribe offer was discussed.

"That is ridiculous," said Mr. Osborne, after the jury had left. "I positively never told Mr. Belt to make any such offer, nor did my client. Mr. Osborne admitted that he had employed Belt as an investigator. When the trial was resumed Walters said that after being discharged from the army as physically unfit, he became a party to Dr. Becker's plan to get drafted men out of the service by giving them drugs that would produce apparent symptoms of Bright's disease. He did this, he said, "for the money in it." The trial will be continued today.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon Is 82.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Ex-Speaker Cannon of Illinois was 82 years old today, and the occasion was made subject for a demonstration by his colleagues when the House convened at noon. Representative Madden of Illinois, Republican, called the attention of the House to the birthday anniversary, and afterward Mr. Cannon spoke for ten minutes, declaring he was more convinced every day that American patriotism was not confined to one party.

WILL HONOR DR. GRANT.

Church of Ascension to Celebrate 25 Years' Service of Its Pastor.

On Ascension Day, Thursday, May 9, the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant will complete twenty-five years of service as pastor of the Church of the Ascension, Fifth Avenue and Tenth Street, and a special service will be held on Thursday evening to celebrate the event. Bishop Greer will deliver an address on "Progress in the Church in the Last Quarter of a Century," and he will also officiate at a confirmation ceremony. George Gordon Battle will speak on "Progress of Religious Thought Among Laymen in the Last Quarter of a Century." Dr. Grant will speak on developments in the parish during the last twenty-five years, and Joseph S. Auerbach will address the meeting "For the Neighbors."

Dr. Grant took charge of the church in 1893. The annual income at that time had shrunk to $25,000; today it approaches $90,000. The church buildings and the grounds are now valued at close to $35,000, and the church has an endowment fund of $221,000, the annual income from which is $10,000, and the contributions from all other sources amount to $47,000, but the church has not been able to pay annually $2,500 for the interest on mortgages and floating debts, the indebtedness being $57,000. It is purposed to raise a fund of $100,000 on Ascension Day to pay off this indebtedness and to add an appreciable sum to the endowment fund.

A Recruiting Party

TO U. S. OFFICERS

AT the commencement of the present war, Cox & Company's Bank established a subsidiary in France under the name of Cox & Co. (France), Ltd., through which Officers in uniform can cash checks on Cox & Co., up to the equivalent of £5 (about $25) at any one time, without the formality of establishing identity and signature—a convenience which no other Bank can offer, and which obviates the necessity of carrying ready money or easily-lost letters of credit in the war zone.

To cover the whole of France, a special arrangement was made with the Bank of France, whereby the same privileges were extended to Officers in uniform by all the many hundred Branches of that Bank in places where no branch of Cox & Co. (France), Ltd., existed. The same facilities were also provided throughout Italy, at all branches of the Banca Italiana di Sconto.

These facilities, of which practically all British Officers and a number of United States Officers already in Europe avail themselves, are now accorded to all Officers of the American Expeditionary Force, Military, Naval and Air Services, who open banking accounts with Cox & Co.

Founded in 1758—thirty-one years before George Washington became the first President of the United States—Cox & Company's Bank has been inseparably associated with British military enterprise ever since; it has held the appointment of Bankers and Official Agents to the entire British Household Brigade, as well as to the bulk of the Cavalry and Infantry, from the time of the Battle of Waterloo up to the present day.

BEFORE SAILING FOR EUROPE, instruct your Banker to give you a draft or to cable you a transfer to Cox & Company, Charing Cross, London. Current accounts are conducted without charge, and interest at prevailing rate is allowed on deposit accounts. International exchange at finest rates.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The Railroad Wage Commission, of which Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, is Chairman, issued its report today, in which its recommendation was made that approximately $300,000,000 be added to the annual payroll of the transportation lines under Government control in order to bring the wages of the more than 2,000,000 employes to a level to meet the increased cost of living.

The report has been submitted to W. G. McAdoo, Director General of Railroads, and it is generally believed that it will be adopted with alterations. The increases are to be made as of Jan. 1, 1918. They are figured on a sliding scale of from 4.56 per cent. to 43 per cent. of the wages received by employes on Dec. 31, 1915, and this increase is to be added to the wage received by the employe at that time.

Increases granted since Dec. 31, 1915, are to be included as part of the increases now granted. The largest increases go to those who receive the lowest wages, and on this theory all of the findings of the commission are based.

Labor Disturbance Averted.

The report hints strongly at the fact that a serious disturbance of labor, which actually threatened to hamper the transportation lines, was faced when the Government took control last December, and that this danger may have been a factor in bringing action at that time. Employes made heavy demands then upon the railroads under private ownership. How heavy these demands were the commission does not say, but it gives some inkling by admitting that the employes had laid requests before the commission which if granted would have added not less than $1,000,000,000 to the annual payrolls.

It is generally accepted here that the Railroad Administration will ask for increased freight rates and possibly a substantial increase in passenger rates, to meet the wage increases and the reduced earnings of the transportation lines since the Government assumed control. This drop in earnings has been heavy, due in part to the weather conditions in January and February. Earnings for April, it is said, will show a decided improvement, however.

The wage increase report was exhaustive. The commission brought prominently to the front a statement that it believed an increase was deserved by the railroad employes and that those receiving low wages should receive the major part of the benefit. It also recounted the details of an investigation into the increased cost of living, which had determined that the purchasing value of a dollar had dropped to about 7. cents.

"It has been a somewhat popular impression that railroad employes were among the most highly paid workers. But figures gathered from the railroads disposed of this belief. Fifty-one per cent. of all employes during December, 1917, received $75 per month or less, and 80 per cent. received $100 per month or less.

"Even among the locomotive engineers, commonly spoken of as highly paid, a preponderating number receive less than $170 per month, and this compensation they have attained by the most compact and complete organization, handled with a full appreciation of all strategic values. Between the grades receiving from $150 to $270 per month there is included less than 3 per cent. of all the employes, (excluding officials,) and these aggregate less than 60,000 men, out of a grand total of 2,000,000."

The advances range from 4.56 per cent. to those receiving a monthly wage in December, 1915, of $239.01 to $240, to 43 per cent. to those then receiving from $46.01 to $50. All who were then re-

Corner Turned in Shipping in Two Weeks More, Says Sims

LONDON, May 8.—Vice Admiral Williams S. Sims, commander of the American naval forces in the war zone, in replying tonight to a toast to the United States Navy at a dinner given in honor of the officers and men of the United States forces, said:

"We know the submarine campaign reached its highest point in April of last year. It has since been going steadily down. In the meantime, the new tonnage constructed by the Allies has been gradually increasing until the corner has nearly been turned, and we hope within the next fortnight the construction in the aggregate will beat the rate of destruction. We feel that the time of our recovery has come."

Czechs Withhold Food from Germans and Hungary Also Refuses Aid.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Serious disturbances in the Austro-Hungarian fleet have caused changes in the high command, a dispatch today from Switzerland said. The crews, composed largely of Slavs and men of Italian descent, have made a great deal of trouble, and the disturbances were put down with difficulty.

COPENHAGEN, May 8.—In letters to the Neue Freie Presse the Burgomasters of Bohemia describe the food situation as desperate. For several weeks Innsbruck and other cities have been without wheat. The bread, made of maize, and meat rations have been reduced, and it is often impossible to get even these small rations.

From the letters it would appear that from January until April most of the cities in Bohemia had no potatoes and for weeks hospitals have been without eggs and milk. The Czech peasant population has sufficient food but refuses to deliver any of it to the Germans.

The letters say that it is impossible to persuade Hungary to change her unfriendly attitude on the food policy.

LONDON, May 8.—The latest separatist program in Austria, according to a dispatch to The Daily Mail from The Hague, quoting advices from Vienna, is to create a State to be named Greater Moravia, which would include Silesia and the Slovene districts of Hungary, with the capital at Olmütz. Vienna newspapers of Saturday received at The Hague, it is added, show that the internal situation in Austria-Hungary is greatly strained.

ABSOLVES STIELOW, WHO WILL BE FREED

ALBANY, N. Y., May 8.—Charles F. Stielow, whose execution for a double murder in Orleans County in 1915 was stayed three times by executive and court orders, and whose death sentence later was commuted to imprisonment for life, was declared today not guilty of the crime by a Special Commissioner appointed by Governor Whitman to make an investigation.

Governor Whitman announced that he had commuted the life sentence of Stielow and also the sentence of Nelson I. Green, a brother-in-law of Stielow, who was implicated in the case, and who was sentenced to serve a term of twenty years in prison. Both men will receive their freedom within a few days. Stielow is now imprisoned at Sing Sing and Green at Auburn prison.

George H. Bond of Syracuse, who at the request of Governor Whitman was appointed a Special Deputy Attorney General to conduct the investigation, reported that he was convinced that Charles B. Phelps and Margaret Wolcott, the persons slain, did not meet their death at the hands of Stielow or Green, nor did the latter have guilty knowledge of the crime. On the other hand, the special investigator reported that he was convinced that the fatal bullets were fired by Clarence F. O'Connell, a convict at Auburn prison, and that Erwin King, the peddler who had previously confessed and later repudiated the confession, aided him in committing the murder. Governor Whitman, in a statement issued tonight, said:

"After careful study of Mr. Bond's report, and after mature reflection, I have reached the conclusion that had the evidence which Mr. Bond has developed been presented to the trial court at the time Stielow was tried, such evidence would necessarily have resulted either in a direction of a verdict for the defendant or his acquittal by a jury. In other words, the character of the new evidence is such that at least a reasonable doubt of Stielow's guilt would necessarily have been created in the minds of the members of the jury.

"Believing as I do, and there being no provision of law under which a new trial can now be had, I have reached the conclusion that it is my duty to commute Stielow's sentence and permit his discharge from custody."

ARMY'S EXACT SIZE HIDDEN

But Secretary Says His Prediction Has Already Been Surpassed

TIDE OF MEN MOVING FAST

NO MACHINE GUN SHORTAGE

Secretary Declares There Is None Either Here or Abroad, and None in Prospect.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—More than half a million American soldiers have been sent to France. Secretary Baker today authorized the statement that his forecast to Congress in January that 500,000 troops would be dispatched to France early in the present year now had been surpassed.

Mr. Baker dictated the following statement:

In January I told the Senate Committee that there was strong likelihood that early in the present year 500,000 American troops would be dispatched to France. I cannot either now or perhaps later discuss the number of American troops in France, but I am glad to be able to say that the forecast I made in January has been surpassed.

As a result of a personal investigation of machine gun production during the last few days, the Secretary announced that there was no present shortage of light or heavy types of these weapons either in France or in America, and no shortage was in prospect.

Brownings Coming Forward.

Mr. Baker said there had been no question brought up as to the supplies of light type Browning guns, which were coming forward in quantities. He would not say whether shipment of these guns to France had been started. As to the heavy Brownings, he said:

"Early manufacturers' estimates as to the production of the heavy type perhaps were more optimistic than was justified. The estimate of the Ordnance Department in January has been met and is being met. Some of these heavy guns have been produced, and there is every indication of forthcoming production in increasing and substantial numbers."

The Secretary chose his words about the troops in France with utmost care. He would not amplify the statement in any way and specifically asked that the press refrain from speculation as to what precise figures his guarded remarks covered or as to what possibilities of early further increase in the force on the other side there might be.

There have been repeated official announcements, however, that the Government is bending every energy to rushing men across to back up the allied lines in France, and officers directly in charge of the transportation have expressed satisfaction with the progress being made. There is no doubt that the present force of American troops abroad represents only a small part of the total strength that will be available for employment by General Foch before the Summer fighting ends.

Every Man Fully Equipped.

There are indications, too, that the War Department has adhered strictly to its policy of equipping fully before his departure every man sent across. That is the first consideration in checking off supplies of clothing and arms.

Mr. Baker's recent study of the whole ordnance program was founded on his desire to see just what the situation was in this slowest element of the war preparations.

His conclusions as to machine guns follow on the heels of pessimistic statements by members of Congress in this regard. In the discussion of the production of Browning machine guns, contracts for other types, both here and abroad, apparently have not been considered. These contracts preceded the placing of orders for the Brownings, and that supply was designed to meet the emergency until the new gun was available in quantities.

The present practice of brigading American units with French and British divisions, it is pointed out, makes the artillery question less pressing as an immediate independent supply. The allied divisions to which the Americans are assigned already have the artillery necessary, and the fact that American infantry is added to them does not mean a proportionate increase in guns. It is man power that is being supplied by the new arrangement, and additional gun power will be necessary only where independent American divisions or army corps are formed.

Today's statement regarding the movement to France is the first official utterance indicating even indirectly the number of men sent abroad. The first force to go was never described except as a division, although as a matter of fact it was constituted into two di-

SENATORS ASSAIL GUN PRODUCTION

SAY MONTHS WERE WASTED

American Ingenuity Failed to Improve Designs Received from Our Allies.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Investigation of the production of field artillery for the United States Army by a sub-committee of the Senate Military Affairs Committee has disclosed a condition which, to quote one member of the sub-committee, "is comparable only to the failure of the aircraft program."

The sub-committee, of which Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska is Chairman, has been at work quietly for nearly two weeks. Members today said it had discovered that production to date of the most important three pieces of field artillery—the 9.2-inch heavy guns, 8-inch howitzers, and 6 inch howitzers—had been "pitifully small."

In the case of the 9.2 guns, the heaviest weapon with which the American Army is to be provided, the sub-committee has been told that not one of these pieces will be delivered in time to be of use in France this year. With regard to the others, deliveries would be so small this year, sub-committee members said, as to be negligible in figuring the means at the army's disposal for turning the tide against Germany.

The investigation was inspired partly by the knowledge that a huge expansion was to be proposed in the American Army, and a desire to learn how well equipped the Ordnance Department was to meet the demand for more field artillery, and partly by disturbing reports reaching various members of the committee that things were not progressing favorably in production of artillery.

Reports Depressed Members.

These reports were backed to some extent at recent conferences of committee members with the War Council at the War Department. At a recent conference frank statements concerning ordnance filled committee members with gloom. The statements made by the War Council members did not coincide with the optimistic view of Secretary Baker, repeated often, that "things are coming along well" in the manufacture of ordnance.

Subcommittee members said today that the outstanding fact was that months were wasted in absolutely futile attempts by American ordnance experts in trying to improve details of British, French, and Italian gun carriages. The carriages being made today, it was said, were essentially the British, French, and Italian designs. American ingenuity, even at the sacrifice of months of precious time, failed to improve them sufficiently to warrant adoption of the American model. Therefore, the Ordnance Department finally went back to the European plans, upon which it might have begun manufacturing shortly after the United States got into the war in April, 1917.

American tools, jigs, and dies were of obsolete types, unsuited to modern needs, the sub-committee learned, according to members. The Ordnance Department had a large appropriation for making jigs, tools, and dies, but apparently did not have the new ones ready in time.

The most disturbing feature of the whole situation, sub-committee members said, was the fear that with the American Army greatly expanded the Allies might not be able to fill their agreement to provide General Pershing's armies with all the field artillery needed this year.

The committee has not yet completed its work, which will go into every angle of the manufacture of light and heavy ordnance. The manufacture of the American adaptation of the French 75's, the sub-committee has been informed, was proceeding well, and within a few months these guns, which are practically the American three-inch field pieces, will be delivered in quantity.

Delay on Gun Carriages.

Long delay was caused in beginning quantity manufacture of these weapons because the French carriage, conceded to be one of the best in existence, did not meet the unqualified approval of American experts. France had given up all her secrets on this carriage and its brake—secrets she had guarded jeal-

RALLY TO LLOYD GEORGE

UNIONISTS WITH CABINET

Asquith May Not Press for Vote if the Government Presents a Strong Case.

PREMIER'S REPLY FORECAST

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, May 9.—The prevailing opinion is that the Government will win a decided victory in the House of Commons tonight. The Irish Nationalist members are not returning and it is believed in political circles that Lloyd George will be able to present a most satisfactory case for himself and Bonar Law in reply to General Maurice's allegations that they made misstatements about the army in Parliament.

The general idea is that when the Prime Minister makes his statement Asquith will not take the responsibility of forcing a division. Should a division be pressed, the belief in the Commons is that with the assistance of the Unionists, who have been dissatisfied with the recent course of events, the Government will obtain a vote of confidence by a handsome majority.

Forecast of Premier's Reply.

The Morning Post's political correspondent understands that the Premier's answer to the three specific points raised in General Maurice's letter will be something like this:

1. That an extension of the British line was agreed on between the British and French Generals and that another and larger extension was actually discussed at Versailles but was not decided on and never took place.

2. That the comparative figures of the army's strength on Jan. 1 of this year and last year were supplied by the War Office through the department of which General Maurice was a prominent member. Lloyd George intends, it is asserted, to read all his memoranda.

3. That the Maurice statement as to the proportion of white troops in the eastern theatres of war was true on the day on which the Premier's speech was made, but that Lloyd George anticipated facts by adding a number of men who had been or were immediately to be dispatched.

The Daily Chronicle's Parliamentary correspondent writes:

"In ministerial circles the debate is being anticipated with equanimity, so great is the confidence in the Government's ability to make a complete reply to their assailants.

"The Unionist War Committee had a prolonged meeting Wednesday afternoon to consider the situation. Some members of it, including, I am told, Carson, urged that in order to avoid a division on the main question a shelving motion should be submitted. This appealed to that section of the Conservatives which has affiliations with the military caste, but the general sense of the meeting was hostile to the idea. No resolutions were submitted and in the end it was decided to await the Prime Minister's speech before taking action.

"All the probabilities are that the Unionist War Committee will support the Government in the division lobby. I am informed that strong feeling was manifested at the meeting against the suggestion of an inquiry into a purely parliamentary matter by two judges.

"So far as can be gauged the Government are able to rely on an almost solid conservative vote, but there may be a few Tory abstentions. In addition they will get the support of between forty and fifty Liberals and about a dozen Labor members. The Irish Nationalist M.P.s do not propose to leave Ireland yet awhile. Unless, therefore, some dramatic change in the situation takes place as a result

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 8 (Associated Press.)—An American patrol on the Toul sector fell victim to a silent enemy ambush some time last night. The Germans evidently used bayonets and the butts of their rifles.

The Americans went out early in the evening and nothing further was heard of them until another patrol happened to cross the spot where the others had been ambushed.

Not one shot was fired during the encounter, as far as was known.

The first German-American to be caught spying on the Americans is safely in custody.

Behind the characterization of traitor to his country, contained in the report of his arrest, is the story that he aided a German prisoner to escape. Both men donned American officers' uniforms and entered the line from the rear in the late afternoon.

They said that they were studying the ground between the lines with a view to using tanks and asked to be allowed to cross the lines.

The officer to whom they made the request soon discovered the ruse and ordered them escorted to the rear. There it was found that one of the men was a German and that the German-American was his accomplice.

From a Staff Correspondent.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, May 8.—"The Americans will certainly make good at aviation if the boys with us are a fair sample to judge by," said a French officer to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today.

As commander of one of the four squadrons of the famous "Stork" group, the finest French air unit, which has accounted for over 300 German machines, he was able to speak with authority. His remark was made casually in discussing the performance of the "Storks'" newest ace, Sergeant Frank L. Baylies, an American, who in the last three weeks, despite bad flying weather, has jumped his official score from two to six, of which the last two were downed on successive days, May 1 and 2.

Last Sunday M. Dumesnil, the Air Minister, in pinning the two latest of the four palms on the War Cross ribbon which Baylies wears next to his Military Medal, said that he was delighted thus to emphasize the recognition by France of what Baylies's countrymen would do when they had equal opportunity. The Minister added: "The Allies are counting greatly on America's aid in air warfare. It is by performances like yours that we know we shall not be disappointed."

Parsons's Victory Against Odds.

Another American, Edwin Parsons of Springfield, Mass., one of the heroes of the old Lafayette Squadron, signalized his arrival in the "Stork" group, which took place only a week ago, after several months' absence from the front, by downing a German biplane yesterday after a fierce fight against odds. Parsons left the airdrome with two comrades, who lost him in the clouds. While circling to get in touch with them again he was attacked by five enemy machines.

True to Fonck's system, which it is a point of honor for the "Storks" to follow, of never declining combat, no matter what the odds, and defeating one's opponents by superior manoeuvre, Parsons dived sideways as if to abandon the unequal struggle and enticed a German monoplane after him. Then the American turned suddenly on his pursuer and delivered a point-blank volley. For a moment the German attempted to reply with badly directed fire; then, as the distance between the planes lessened, he abruptly swung around and dived headlong for his own lines.

As often happens during such a duel the rest of the Germans had scattered and were each circling above in the hope of getting an opportunity for a deadly swoop on Parsons from behind. Without hesitation the latter rushed his Spad upward, almost vertically, against the nearest German. Again the manoeuvre took the foe by surprise. Before he could decide how to repel the attack he was swept by a stream of bullets. As Parsons swung aside at the last second to avoid a collision he saw the enemy machine flutter for an instant like a wounded bird and then fall over and over, to crash 6,000 feet below, just behind the German front line, where its de-

BIG GUNS THUNDER ON BRITISH FRONT

AUSTRALIANS SCORE AGAIN

German Roads, Assembly Places, and Batteries Kept Under Heavy Fire.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Wednesday, May 8.—In spite of the great gunfire last night and early this morning there seems to have been no infantry action on any large scale along the British front, though I hear of a small enterprise by the Australians, who again pushed forward their line near Morlancourt, and also of a hostile attack on about a two-mile front south of Dickebusch Lake, where, according to early reports, the enemy gained a footing in the forward defenses.

The continual rumbling of great guns—the loud, persistent, thundery beating of the air from various sectors of the front—was last night so oppressive to the nerves that it was impossible to avoid the thought that it was the prelude to another immense battle. And again this morning after dawn those awful guns were at work, as they had been murmuring for hours through one's sleep, and one wakened with the belief that this day was to be one of terrific conflict.

Yet no news came over the wires, or any how. Questions were asked along all sectors: "Anything doing with you? Any attack in your parts?"

"Not guilty. Quite quiet about here today."

Quite quiet, but with the loud noise of the fire from many British heavies doing their usual routine work of straffing the German roads and assembly places, and ammunition dumps and batteries.

Meanwhile there are wonderful May days after the heavy rain, and the fields of France this side of crater land are a song of color, with the tapestry of all the flowers that Ronsard put into his poems in the May days of French history before high explosives had been invented.

AMERICA GETS FIRST OF JAPANESE SHIPS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Four of the Japanese ships which were chartered by the United States Shipping Board arrived yesterday at Pacific ports and will be rushed through the Panama Canal. They will be the first ships manned by Japaness and flying the flag of Japan to go into service in the Atlantic since the war began.

In all the Shipping Board has chartered 150,000 tons of shipping from Japanese and purchased another 100,000 tons. These ships will follow the four to the Atlantic as rapidly as possible. Some of them will be equipped with guns and gun crews and put immediately into the overseas service to carry men and supplies to France. Others will be used in the coastwise and South American trades.

Contracts also have been let to Japanese shipbuilders for 380,000 tons of shipping, including fifty cargo carriers.

BRITISH TRENCHES ENTERED

FRENCH ADVANCE LINES

ANZACS WIN ON THE SOMME

Push Germans Back 500 Yards Near Sailly and 300 Yards West of Morlancourt.

LONDON, May 8.—In what Field Marshal Haig describes as "a strong local attack" and an unofficial report as one of "divisional strength" the Germans this morning gained a footing at several points on the Allied front, midway between La Clytte and Voormezeele, north of the Kemmel region.

At all other points of their attack, which covered the five-mile stretch between the two villages named, the Germans were repulsed. The fighting for the centre positions continues.

On the Amiens sector, between the Sommo and the Ancre Rivers, Australian troops last night made short advances in three localities, taking several prisoners.

This morning the enemy launched a strong local attack against French and British troops holding the sector between La Clytte and Voormezeele, and in the centre his attack succeeded, after heavy fighting, in entering the front line of the allied positions at certain points. The fighting continues in these localities.

At all other points the enemy's attacks were repulsed.

By successful local operations the French troops advanced their line during the night south of La Clytte and captured a number of prisoners.

On the remainder of the British front there is nothing of special interest to report.

The afternoon statement reads:

As the result of successful minor operations carried out last night our line between the Somme and Ancre Rivers has been advanced a short distance in three localities. We captured several prisoners.

The hostile artillery has been active during the night between Locon and Robecq, and in the neighborhood of St Julien. Early this morning the enemy's artillery developed increased activity in the Meteren-Kemmel sector.

The official statement on aerial operations tonight says:

Flying again was impossible Tuesday until after 5 o'clock, because of the pouring rain. The weather then cleared suddenly, and machines were sent out. Four hundred bombs were dropped on different targets all along the front.

Twelve hostile machines were brought down in air fighting, eight of which were accounted for in a big encounter in the neighborhood of Douai. A German observation balloon was brought down in flames. None of our machines is missing.

LONDON, May 8.—"After a heavy bombardment on a wide front in Flanders the German infantry this morning launched an attack south of Dickebusch Lake, which lies between Ypres and Kemmel," says Reuter's correspondent at British Headquarters.

"The attack apparently was only in divisional strength, but it may develop larger proportions. The enemy seems to have penetrated our front line between the lake and Ridge Wood, and some parties of Germans are reported in the eastern part of the wood itself. The fighting continues in fine weather and under good visibility.

"We still hold the major part of the wood and also Kleine Vierstraat.

"The technical objective of the enemy operation seems to be an attempt to clear the way for a thrust toward Scherpenberg from the northeast, and it may prove to be the beginning of further fierce fighting in this region."

Australians Advance 500 Yards.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 8.—(Associated Press.)—The Australians last night made another advance, pushing forward their lines 500 yards along a front of 900 yards near Sailly-le-Sec, in the sector of Amiens. They also pushed back the Germans 300 yards along a front of 500 yards west of Morlancourt, just above Sailly-le-Sec. Notwithstanding a heavy machine-gun barrage, the Germans were unable to prevent their advance.

It was high ground the British were after, and they improved their positions greatly.

HOLDING TILL OUR MEN COME.

Churchill Announces That as the Allied Policy on the West Front.

LONDON, May 8.—The Anglo-French front in France will stand firm and husband its strength throughout the Summer while waiting for aid to come from the United States, says Winston Spencer Churchill, Minister of Munitions. In reply to a resolution of the executive of the National Brass Workers and Metal Mechanics' Union. The resolution exhorted all workers at home to help the soldiers in the trenches, not only by sympathy, but by doing their utmost to increase the supply of war munitions and to swell the fighting forces. Colonel Churchill, in his reply, after expressing appreciation of the worthy part played by the metal workers, says:

"Although the crisis is grave, and will continue so for many weeks, I have profound confidence that we shall not be beaten down; that right and freedom will not be beaten down.

"In the present battle the Germans are attempting to destroy armies nearly as numerous as their own and quite as well armed. We are seeking only to maintain ourselves against them, which is a very different thing. I do not believe the German reserves are sufficient for their ambitious program.

"Although the German commanders declare their readiness to sacrifice a million men, or, if need be, a million and a half, the French and British armies will not be overcome. They will maintain a firm front throughout the Summer, using their deadly weapons upon the German masses and husbanding their own strength. Meanwhile, our kith and kin from the United States are coming to our aid as fast as ships can steam; our navy is coping with the submarines, and our airmen see mastery of the air in view.

"If we hold, we win. If we win, the cruel system which let loose these horrors on the world will perish amid the execrations of those who are its dupes or slaves. Then, and then only, will there be lasting peace."

LOCAL ACTION, BERLIN SAYS.

Brief Reference to Kemmel Attack—Says Allies Failed on Somme.

BERLIN, May 8, (via London.)—"There were local engagements south of Dickebusch Lake," says the evening report from Army Headquarters. The German official communication issued today says:

On the Flanders battlefield and on the Lys the artillery battle was revived at Mont Kemmel and near and to the west of Bailleul.

During forefield engagements on the Somme battlefield English and French prisoners were taken. On both sides of the Corbie-Bray road, after strong mining preparations, the enemy unsuccessfully attacked. Troops which were kept at readiness were effectively caught by our fire. On the occasion of a further attack in the night south of the road we drove back the enemy in counterattacks.

GERMAN ONRUSH STOPPED.

That Is Premier Orlando's Belief After a Visit to France.

LONDON, May 8. (via Ottawa.)—Premier Orlando of Italy, interviewed by a Reuter correspondent on the Italian front on his return from France, said that he had found all the military chiefs convinced that the German onrush had been stopped. The Germans, he added, could neither reach the Channel ports on the north nor separate the British and French armies.

"General Foch," the Premier said, "is a master at the game."

The Premier emphasized the fact that Italy had associated herself intimately with the military and political union between the Entente nations. The Abbéville conference, he said, had recognized the unity of the front from the North Sea to the Adriatic as a concrete reality.

PARIS, May 8.—Great artillery activity north and south of the Avre, on the Amiens front, is reported by the War Office, but no infantry action.

Both artilleries were active north and south of the Avre, but there was no infantry action.

There was very great activity of the artillery on both sides during the night north and south of the Avre.

Raids attempted by the enemy west of Montdidier and in the regions of Thennes and Grivesnes were broken up by the French, who took prisoners.

Lieut. Williams Dies of Injuries.

Mrs. J. H. Williams of this city was notified yesterday of the death of her son, Lieutenant Earl P. Williams, of the 301st Field Artillery, at a hospital in Northampton, Mass., last night. Lieutenant Williams, who was stationed at Camp Devens, Mass., was visiting friends in Northampton Monday when he was fatally injured by a limb blown from a tree in a storm. He was graduated from Yale in 1910, and, before entering the Officers' Training School at Fort Niagara, was Vice President of J. H. Williams & Co. of Brooklyn and Buffalo, manufacturers of drop forgings.

Preston Davis, Jr., Killed.

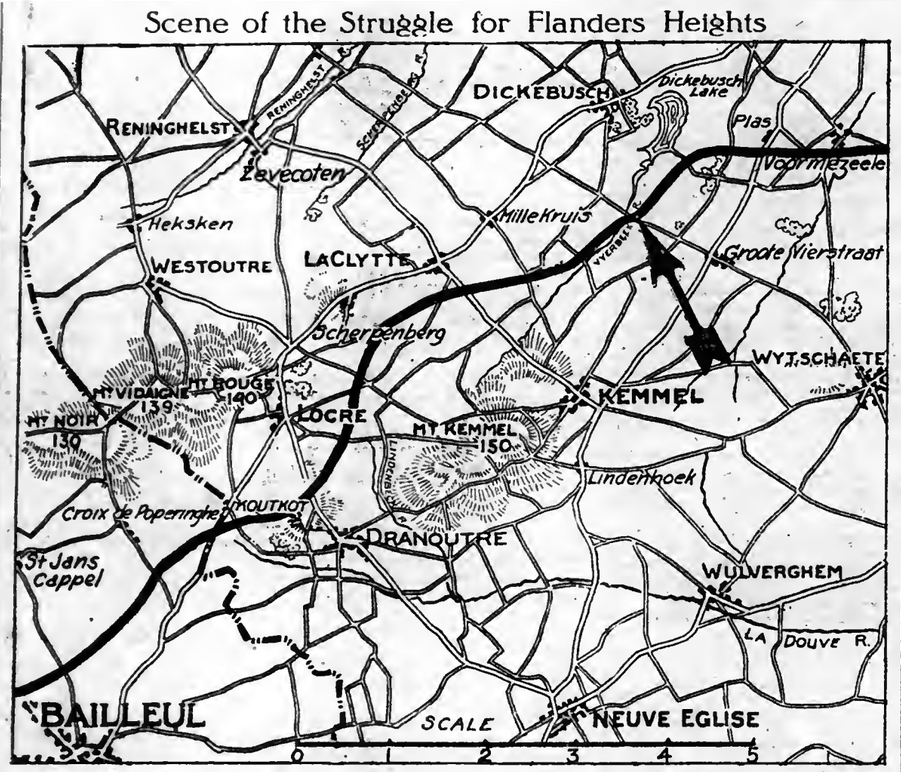
WASHINGTON, May 8.—Preston Davis, Jr., six-year-old son of Lieut. Col. Preston Davis of Tuxedo Park, was killed this afternoon by an automobile near the Washington residence of Colonel Davis, 2,620 Connecticut Avenue. Colonel Davis came to Washington from New York to engage in war work. He is an officer of the Quartermaster Reserve Corps.

Poets' Ambulance Presented.

BOLOGNA, Italy, May 8.—In the presence today of high Italian military officials at the Villa Baruzziana a military oculist ambulance, given by American poets, was presented to the Italian Army. Nelson Gay, an American author, living in Rome, made the presentation.

Scene of the Struggle for Flanders Heights



After several days of relative immobility German infantry on the Lys-Ypres front yesterday morning attacked the British and French positions between Voormezeele and La Clytte, apparently in preparation for a new drive against Scherpenberg and the rest of the high ground west of Mont Kemmel. The fighting, which was still in progress when Field Marshal Haig filed his night bulletin, gave the assailants some footing in the Allied front line south of Dickebusch Lake, but elsewhere the Germans were repulsed. The only other change reported on this front is a slight advance made Tuesday night by the French south of La Clytte.

The Germans during the last week have been playing a game with the Allies that seems to have them considerably worried. First there was a heavy bombardment along the Lys River and a reported concentration of forces on the Flanders front. The Allies, knowing that at some time or another Germany must attack, that it was on the cards and must happen, assumed that the drive was going to be renewed in this quarter. Then the scene of artillery activity changed to the Somme front, and it was assumed that this front would receive the blow. Now, however, there has been heavy firing for two days between the Somme and the Avre and along the latter river, and it seems as if this section were to be attacked. The result has been that each section of the front has been made to feel at one time or another that the heavy concentration was being made against it and that the attack which was known to be coming would fall there. It has been a thoroughly worked-out and carefully executed bluff which has left the Allies somewhat in the dark. There are excellent reasons why the attempt to continue the advance should be made in any of the three sectors mentioned.

In Flanders the German position is extremely difficult. It is a most difficult battle line to supply by reason of the low country over which all supplies must pass, particularly in view of the fact that the Allied artillery is posted on hills overlooking this low land from both sides. The entire plain is under continual observation at all times and it is almost, if not quite, impossible to move any considerable bodies of troops across or within the angle without the fact of the movement becoming at once known. The salient, moreover, is a dangerous one by reason of its great depth and narrow base.

The Somme front presents attractive possibilities, because through a successful attack along the Somme the Albert position, which is the hinge on which the line to the south swings, would be forced, and the high ground thus obtained would enable the Germans to make the British positions about Bucquoy, which guard the southern approach to the Arras defenses, practically indefensible.

Farther south along the Avre, the last of the sectors to receive the attention of the German artillery, a successful advance means an approach directly on Amiens. This sector is for this reason probably at the moment the most important of the three from the standpoint of German success, since the blow of the loss of Amiens, while it has been in a measure discounted by preparations for this event, which have been made since March 21, would nevertheless be a severe one. Generally the terrain here favors the Allies. North of the Avre the Allies hold a considerable portion of the plateau of Villers-Bretonneux, which was lost and later regained by the Australians about a week ago. From this village south, however, the ground falls away to the river, and once this is permanently lost, the local advantage passes to the Germans.

Just south of this position, however, there is another plateau, between Cachy and Gentelles, which extends southward almost to the banks of the Avre, where it descends steeply to the floor of the river valley. On this section of the line a retirement can take place without material disadvantage, at least as far as this plateau. South of the Avre the same situation is duplicated. Back of the Allied line there is another plateau in this heavily rolling country, the centre of which is Rouvrel, due west of Morisel. A yielding of ground here will make no material difference between certain limits.

There is, however, one point at which the Germans may attack and cause trouble, and that is directly along the Avre itself, moving up both banks. This would involve Hangard and Thennes, which the French have held on to most tenaciously, and on the east bank of the river would bring the Germans up against the valley of the Luce, which has been a German stumbling-block ever since it was reached. The going would be hard and would be accompanied by heavy losses, but if successfully carried through the movement would turn both of the plateaus and flank the Allies in both cases. But this advantage would be but temporary, as in a very short time the Germans on the east bank would be drawn into the angle between the Avre and the Noye Rivers, where they would experience considerable difficulties.

The advantage of an attack here, however, lies not in the character of the terrain, because this, of purely local interest while the battle for such positions is under way. It is in the fact that at this point the Germans are nearest victory. The nose of the wedge they have pushed in is at Castel on the Avre, at which point the German lines straddle the river. This point is fixed as long as the Hangard defenses hold out. But if in a sudden attack the point is extended westward, the defense of the Luce will have to be abandoned before the opportunity comes to strike back. This will widen materially the apex of the entire salient, and to this extent open the way for a more general advance.

The weather in the battle zone has been broken, and the air is perfectly clear. Airplanes are very active again, so that conditions are not unfavorable to attack. It may be that the German effort is about to crystallize.

GERMAN PEACE AGENTS ACTIVE IN HOLLAND

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, May 8, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—For some time German agents in Holland have been busily engaged in spreading reports privately to the effect that Germany was inclined to conclude peace. It is beyond all doubt that the German people are longing for peace, being convinced, in spite of all the assurances of the Pan Germans and the boasting allegations of the military and Junker parties, that the Central Powers will never be able to gain the victory.

Moreover, well informed political and military circles in Berlin and Vienna are well aware, as I have been repeatedly informed, that the military power of the United States cannot be underestimated and that it will steadily increase.

In these circumstances, the world will not be astonished to learn that the Central Powers are striving to the utmost of their ability to secure peace on the best terms obtainable. Some reports which are being circulated purport to give Germany's peace proposals in detail, but I have good reason to believe that these reports are spread merely with the object of ascertaining the sentiment in pacifist circles in Entente countries and of helping the pacifists to embarrass their Governments.

Germany is also endeavoring, by means of intrigues, to cause discontent with the war in England and France and to bring about the downfall of the Governments of Lloyd George and Clemenceau. For these reasons, much attention should not be paid either to apparently favorable peace terms proposed or purporting to be proposed by Germany or to the German rumors about preliminary peace deliberations at Berne between representatives of the German and French Governments.

GAVE NO BASIS OF PEACE.

Austrian Conversations Futile, Says French Deputies' Committee.

PARIS, May 8.—The Committee of Foreign Affairs of the Chamber of Deputies has completed its investigation into the Austrian peace move, and adopted the following resolution:

"The committee, after examining documents and hearing witnesses concerning peace conversations engaged in and pursued by Austria-Hugary in 1917-1918, finds that these conversations at no moment offered an opportunity for a peace acceptable to France and her allies."

UKRAINE'S NEW MINISTRY.

By ARTHUR RANSOME.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, May 7.—The fate not only of Ukraine but also of Russia depends on the allied decision during the next few days. The events in Ukraine have whirled to a startling climax, which amounts to a declaration of German plans for dealing with the whole of Russia.

President Golubovitch, in the Bourgeos Rada lately, said the German Government did not intend to interfere in the internal affairs of Ukraine and that General Eichhorn's proclamations would not be upheld by Berlin. A general protest was made against Eichhorn, with a demand for his withdrawal. It is pointed out that Ukrainian regimenta have been disarmed. This was defended by the Rada Ministers. The next day the Rada was held up by Germans, the Deputies disarmed, and the Ministers arrested.

The day after a manifesto of the new Government was issued in Kiev by the self-appointed Hetman of Ukraine, Pavlo Skoropauski. He is a Russian Octobrist and a member of the first Duma. He begins his proclamation with expressions of profuso gratitude to the Germans, and proceeds to declare himself to all intents and purposes absolute monarch, with the right to appoint and dismiss Ministers, forgive offenses, &c. All power, at least temporarily, is in his hands, though he promises that presently a Ukrainian Diet will be elected as the legislative body.

His first Cabinet Ministers are the following: Premier and Foreign Minister, Ustrimovitch; Internal Affairs, Prince Golutze; War Minister, Prince Vasialsky; Finance Minister, Kjenetzky; Communications, Putilin; Education, Sokolov. There is not one Ukrainian name. This is a great Russian Octobrist Ministry and as such is an invitation to the propertied and privileged classes of Russia.

RESTRICT LONDON TRAVEL.

Passenger Service in District Will Be Reduced 40 Per Cent.

LONDON, May 8.—Sir Albert Stanley, President of the Board of Trade, announced in the House of Commons today the decision of the Government to place great restrictions on travel in London and vicinity, which will be extended later throughout the country.

Passenger train service, he said, would be reduced by 40 per cent., and it will be necessary for every one to show that his proposed trip has an adequate reason.

struction was immediately corroborated by French artillery observers.

Fonck, who has brought his score from thirty-three to thirty-six in five days of flying in the past fortnight, was one of the first to congratulate Parsons on his exploit. The "ace of aces" also spoke highly of the two latest American recruits to the "stork" group, Sergeant Bentley Hoeber of Nutley, N. J., and Jasper Brown of New York, now a Lieutenant in the American army.

WAS IN AMBULANCE SERVICE.

Defective Vision Barred Him from Our Army, But Not from French.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 8.—Sergeant Frank L. Bayles, of this city, is 22 years of age, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Bayles. He attended the public schools in this city, and later went to the Moses Brown School, a Quaker institution in Providence. He was an expert automobile driver, and his ability enabled him to enlist as an ambulance driver in France, where he served from February, 1916, until the following October. Afterward he served in Serbia and Macedonia, with Section 3 of the Ambulance Corps, and then offered himself for service in the American Aviation Corps. He was rejected because of defective vision, but was accepted by the French Army.

The latest news from Bayles received by his parents was in a letter dated April 13, in which, after mentioning that he had shot down three German airplanes, he said that his commandant in the Lafayette Squadron had proposed him for the War Cross, and that he expected to be made an adjutant.

Y. M. C. A.'S AID IN WAR WORK

The work which the National War Council of the Y. M. C. A. is doing to increase war production in the mills and factories of the United States is revealed in a display of the industrial department of the association at the Textile Exposition, in the Grand Central Palace. The field in which the munition workers labor is depicted with the aid of an illuminated model of a Y. M. C. A. building. From this streamers run back to a panorama which shows how the association program is carried into the mills, shops, homes, churches, schools, clubs, parks, and playgrounds.

In another section charts show in detail the activities of association buildings peculiar to industrial workers and others how the Y. M. C. A. has endeavored to stimulate production.

EXPECT COMMONS TO AID CABINET

Different Counts of the Army.

"From all I hear the Prime Minister will have no difficulty in proving that every one of the ministerial statements that have been called in question was thoroughly accurate, and not merely technically so. A baffling thing is that two of the impugned statements were made on data supplied by the General Staff, of which General Maurice was a distinguished member. An honorable man and a high-minded soldier like Maurice would not be guilty of mis-statement, least of all in a public letter, in which he would be inviting contradiction. Hence, the conclusion is irresistible, that he had in mind one thing and the Prime Minister another.

"If Maurice was thinking only of the bayonet strength, for instance, it is probably the case that the infantry under Haig was not stronger on Jan. 1, 1918, than Jan. 1, 1917, but in this war of mechanism infantry is only one element of fighting strength. There are the heavy artillery, the R. F. A., the machine gun corps, the tanks, and the Royal Air Service. Taking all these elements together and excluding the labor corps, there is not a shadow of doubt that what the Prime Minister said on April 9 was absolutely correct—the military army this year was and is more powerful than it was a year ago."

Army Inquiry on Maurice.

The Daily Express Parliamentary representative says:

"The Army Council has sent General Maurice a letter asking him for an explanation of the move which he has made. His reply has not been received, but is expected without delay. When it is received it will be a question for the council to decide whether to bring him before a court-martial or take other measures. Although Maurice has vacated his post, he is assisting his successor to become thoroughly initiated into the work."

A dispatch to The Times from Dublin says:

"No whip appears to have been issued to the Nationalist members to attend the debate in the Commons. Their attendance is unlikely for two reasons. The Sinn Fein, with which the party is now in alliance, ignores Westminster, and Dillon probably realizes that a Nationalist attack on Lloyd George at this moment could serve only to strengthen the Prime Minister's position in the country."

The parliamentary reporter of the Westminster Gazette says:

"The Government are apparently confident that they can secure a good majority. A solid bloc of 100 members or so connected with the Government in one way or another can be relied on, but I am bound to say that in other quarters which usually support the Government there is no great confidence in a trial of strength on a direct vote of confidence. The Government have so arranged the Irish policy that a considerable number of Unionists are in revolt, and the whole Nationalist party is hostile. It remains to be seen whether Dillon will return with his supporters for the debate."

Decisive Majority Predicted.

Most of the political correspondents agree that the Government in all probability will secure a substantial majority if Asquith's motion is pressed to a division.

The Daily News says that the Government's present mood is that they wish for a division which, according to The Daily Express, is not likely to be insisted on. The latter paper says that there is little doubt that after Lloyd George and Bonar Law have offered full explanations the demand for any special form of inquiry will be recognized as needless and will flicker out. According to The Daily Mail, should Asquith's motion be defeated or withdrawn the Government will still be willing, if the House wishes it, to submit Maurice's allegations to a court of honor composed of two judges.

The Daily Telegraph, on the other hand, says that a division is believed to be inevitable, and adds:

"It is predicted that the Government will obtain a majority of at least two to one. Practically the entire Unionist Party will vote for the Government. The desire of the party to support the army will be emphasized during the debate."

The Times Speaks for Premier.

The Times in an editorial regrets the rejection of the proposed court of honor of two judges on the ground that such an inquiry, although it might not suit mere politicians, would be straightforward, quick, and decisive.

"As it is," says The Times, "we are threatened with one of those rambling and acrimonious debates, beloved of politicians but fraught with infinite risk to the nation, and perhaps with a division based on a series of speeches which in the nature of things are bound to be incomplete."

After declaring that the questions raised by General Maurice cannot yet be discussed in detail with any advantage to the alliance and that it is "our duty to settle our domestic differences at once," The Times proceeds:

"To speak quite frankly, we have infinitely greater confidence in the soundness of Lloyd George's direction of the war than in his capacity to expound it with conviction. A great part of the world takes him, curiously enough, to be adept at making the best of a bad case. We ourselves believe, on the contrary, that he constantly makes the worst of a case which is absolutely overwhelming. He is far too apt to arouse suspicion when no suspicion is justified, partly because he is badly served, which is his own fault, and partly because he can never resist the temptation to overstate a good point. He persists in giving unnecessary hostages to his enemies. Half his troubles come from hurried appointments and dismissals, most of them right in themselves, but made in the worst possible manner. The answers of the Ministers in Parliament are a byword for alternate indiscretion and obscurity. There has been want of coherence, both in administration and in official statements, for which Lloyd George is paying the penalty.

"That he is by far the best Prime Minister available we have not the very slightest shadow of doubt. His wholehearted enthusiasm for the great cause at stake is beyond all possible question. But the defects of his invaluable qualities, of his enthusiasm, breadth of mind, imagination, and Celtic courage make him a dangerous exponent of hard administrative facts. The risk that he runs this afternoon and all the more if he has right on his side is that he will be carried away by the very strength of his case into side issues which are better postponed."

The Times concludes:

"For months past the Government has been the target for a succession of attacks which have nothing whatever to do with administrative shortcomings, but quite openly directed against the policy of united military control. The affair of Maurice is now being turned into the latest of the series, and if his assertions are proven to the hilt, we shall only deplore the intolerable carelessness of the Ministers in giving so good a handle to their opponents. In that case they will assuredly have to go, but if they can prove themselves right and Maurice wrong, then there must be an end, once for all, of this insidious intrigue which has a deeper inspiration than all its agents realize.

"The House of Commons must choose one course or the other today. What it cannot be allowed to do is to prolong a campaign of recrimination which distracts the Government, exasperates the nation, and is a sheer source of weakness to the whole alliance."

Fears Inconclusive Verdict.

The Daily Chronicle says editorially this (Thursday) morning:

"The Government have withdrawn their own proposal for setting up a court of honor composed of two Judges, and have decided to resist Asquith's proposal for a select committee. This course is likely to give them a Parliamentary victory, but not to throw any substantial light on the justice or injustice of the charges under which they lie.

"There is little risk of their failing to get a majority, but no majority in itself will indicate anything more than the prevailing reluctance of the House of Commons at a moment of national peril to overthrow a Ministry while no definitely known and acceptable alternative Ministry exists. The vote cannot conceivably be a straightforward verdict on the merits of the case, and however effective the debating defense may be which the Ministers are able to put up, it is scarcely possible that it will answer the material questions in a way which will be conclusive to the people when they think it over.

"Ministers whose credit, justly or unjustly, has been already much shaken by the Robertson, Jellicoe, and Trenchard cases now have one of the gravest charges possible brought against them from a quarter which, however irregular its intervention may have been, cannot possibly be ignored. The desirable thing is that either the charges should be conclusively disproved or the Ministers affected should leave office. Neither result is to be anticipated from the debate. The Government will get their majority, quite possibly a large majority, and will continue in power, but will continue to be subject to an unresolved doubt of the gravest character in the minds of the public and the army."

Northcliffe Attack on Ex-Premier.

In case Lloyd George were defeated, who could take his place? Reference was made in yesterday's dispatches to reports about a possible Asquith-Milner combination. One section of the Northcliffe press puts the case as "Lloyd George or the old gang—a clear issue."

The Daily Telegraph's assumption that "an alternative government would be exclusively radical in its composition" is commented on by The Westminster Gazette, which says:

"Such an alternative is, on the contrary, extremely improbable. We are in times when the need of the country is for straight and capable men of whatever party. An idea that a new government would be confined to one party is wholly out of touch with the realities. The experience of the war has helped us to ascertain what men are strong and trustworthy, which have proved good administrators and which are trusted by the public. There are enough of them to make a powerful administration which would be trusted abroad and at home and possess character and staying power to carry us through the difficulties of the times and hold fast to the essential purposes of the war. The need of the country is, above all, for a government of character which will be trusted when it speaks and which will make an end of all this fiasco of doubt and suspicion into which the present administration has drifted."

Says Pacifists Incite Asquith.

As an example of methods of political controversy, the following extracts are interesting:

The Evening News, which is owned by Lord Northcliffe, says in its news columns:

"The brutal truth is that Asquith has been persuaded by his pacifist supporters to try to snipe and politically kill Lloyd George from behind General Maurice. The Prime Minister, much to the surprise of his enemies, is going to treat the Asquith motion as a vote of censure, and quite rightly calls upon the House of Commons to choose between him and Asquith.

"Asquith will have the support of every Nationalist and Sinn Feiner, every pacifist, every anti-war and labor member, and some of his old Ministry and followers. Lloyd George will have the support of half the Liberals and all the Unionists, although some of the Unionists will not vote because they feel sore over the Home Rule proposals.

"The Nationalists may not be able to get over to vote, but efforts are being made to hurry them over to vote against the Government. It sounds incredible, but it is true.

"The Prime Minister will not only defeat the present attempt to oust him and Bonar Law, but the division lists will show the danger of placing our destiny in the hands of the men who vote against him tomorrow."

Defends Asquith's Course.

The Westminster Gazette, which is edited by J. A. Spender, who is a close friend of Asquith, says:

"It is suggested in some ministerial papers that the infatuated partisans politely described as the 'old gang' are lying in wait for an opportunity to seize the succession. Nothing could be further from the truth. Critics of the Government in and out of Parliament have for months past incurred the reproach of being unwilling to take the responsibility for their action, and they have in fact stretched forbearance to the point at which it is widely construed as weakness.

"Certainly the very last charge which can even plausibly be made against Asquith is that he has exhibited any factious disposition toward Lloyd George's Government or shown the slightest eagerness to supplant him in the position which he grasped in December, 1916. Again and again Asquith has held his hand when he might have struck a serious, if not a fatal, blow, out of consideration for the burdens laid on the Government and the undesirability of a change if it could be avoided. But there comes a point where it is plainly contrary to the interests of the country that it should be supposed either here or abroad that we are without the elements of a strong alternative Government and are bound to tolerate everything for lack of them.

"The troubles of the present Government have not been made by their critics. They have been made by themselves. They have lost confidence through their own actions, not through any attacks on them. Every serious man must have watched with misgiving the successive acts of policy or impolicy which have apparently during the last few weeks been converging toward a total impasse."

COULDN'T KEEP LETTER OUT OF LONDON PAPERS

British Press Bureau Intimates It Might Have Done So Had It Been Consulted.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 8.—In reply to a question whether the British Press Bureau wished to give any explanation why General Maurice's letter was withheld from America on Tuesday morning, although it was printed in the London newspapers of that date, Sir Frank Swettenham, one of the Directors, said today:

"The letter was published in London without reference to the Press Bureau. It was printed by some newspapers, not by all. If it had been referred to the Press Bureau the question of its publication would have received consideration. That is the explanation why it was withheld from transmission to America for sixteen hours—not twenty-four hours."

MAURICE A STRONG FIGURE.

LONDON, May 8.—The most-talked-of man in England today is General Frederick B. Maurice, formerly Chief Director of Military Operations at the War Office.

If some volunteer General or some soldier who had graduated from politics or business into soldiering had defied and trampled upon all the laws and traditions of the British Army and all armies, he would not have excited such enormous surprise as has General Maurice in his letter impugning the veracity of the Ministry. Had some less well-trained officer written the letter it would have been put down to lack of respect for tradition and to a disregard of conventionalities by a citizen soldier.

But General Maurice, in his personality, his record, and his career, has been the personification of all that is conventional, austere, and correct in the professional soldier. His weekly and, recently, his bi-weekly conferences with American newspaper correspondents have impressed them with his wide knowledge, a passion for accuracy in details, and his personal aloofness as if he were performing a function that professionally he rather disliked and resented. Barring his uniform, he would readily pass for a typical Prussian Staff officer of the Moltke school.

His receptions to the correspondents have not been interviews, but lectures. The correspondents filed into the apartment at the War Office at the appointed minute. Any man who was late found the door barred against him. Military usage demanded promptness and General Maurice would not forgive or excuse a lack of it.

A tall, blonde man, with a fresh, pink complexion and a monocle, surrounded by maps of all sorts—contour maps, flat maps, maps of elevations—all marked with flags, numbers, and red, blue, and yellow pencil marks, faced the correspondents. General Maurice dealt with all those maps as Paderewski deals with the keys of a piano. He knew every detail of them.

"Good afternoon, gentlemen," was the greeting; never anything more. No word was wasted in gossip. Standing before the maps with a professional manner and in language so precise that his stenographer would not need to correct it, the General stated the military situation.

Having finished, the General paused for questions. All answerable questions were replied to promptly and incisively, with no elaboration. He was one of those "who suffer fools badly." Foolish questions occasionally were asked by amateur strategists. He crushed them quickly and curtly. He did not parry with them; he simply killed them with straight brutality such as Speaker Tom Reed dealt to his critics in years gone by in Washington.

"Good afternoon, gentlemen," he said, having finished; never anything more. The correspondents left with more real knowledge in their notebooks to digest than they were likely to get from days spent in reading the matter written by military experts for the newspapers.

General Maurice is rated as one of the most authoritative military historians and critics who write in the English language. He has made a deep study of and has confessed profound admiration for the strategy and general military achievements of Lee, Grant, and other celebrated Generals in the American civil war.

SEE LINK WITH ROBERTSON.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Close observers in diplomatic circles of developments in British Cabinet and Parliamentary circles which led up to the present crisis see a direct connection between the letter of General Maurice and the enforced retirement of General Robertson as Chief of Staff a short time ago.

In fact, General Maurice is said to have voiced openly the dissatisfaction of the British military party against interference by civilians in plans which General Robertson only expressed in the secrecy of the War Council. That General Maurice has offered himself as a sacrifice to save the British Army from what he regards as disaster, is the conviction of military experts well acquainted with the situation that has existed in England since General Robertson's retirement.

QUARREL OVER RUMANIA

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, May 8.—The signing of peace between Rumania and the Central Powers has brought into renewed prominence rumors of serious friction between Germany and her allies concerning the settlement of Eastern Europe. The situation is very obscure, but THE NEW YORK TIMES learns from a well-informed quarter that Bulgaria is greatly annoyed that she is not to receive Dobrudja, while Germany thinks Bulgaria has done so little in the war lately that she deserves nothing.

Berlin, it is known, has long wanted Bulgarian troops to strengthen her armies in the west, but Czar Ferdinand is quite content to keep them in cantonments along the Saloniki front without risking them in any other field of war.

Then Bulgaria and Turkey are on bad terms over territorial questions. They are traditional foes opposed by reason of race, religion and history, and Turkey, relieved from the pressure of Russia in the Caucasus is now disposed to look on Bulgarian aspirations much more harshly than a year ago. Consequently Bulgarian claims to the Adrianople-Dedagatch Railroad, which would give her access to the Aegean, are being keenly resented by the Porte.

Then the suggestion that Rumania is to get Bessarabia has not pleased Bulgaria. She has no wish to see her neighbor strengthened, and she regards the plan as almost treason to herself. The dissatisfaction of Czar Ferdinand with the policy of his allies it is now known is of considerable standing, and at least a year ago he was drawn strongly toward Vienna in its efforts to open negotiations with the Entente.

The Manchester Guardian today states that Kaiser Charles's famous letter to the French Government was followed by a second, in which he expressed confidence that he could induce Germany to accept peace, and offered to make a separate armistice with the Entente. Bulgaria, he then stated, agreed with him. This was followed in May last year by an attempt by Kerensky to get the Allies to make peace, but they refused in June.

On June 3, M. Ribot, then French Premier, announced that he would grant no passports for the International Socialist conference.

All this time negotiations with the Emperor were in progress. They were broken off apparently in July, much against the liking of Lloyd George and upon the insistence of Baron Sonnino and President Poincaré.

In July the German Government, via Belgium and Berne, invited peace discussions with Baron von Lancken in Switzerland. These overtures were rejected by the French, Italian, and British Governments without consulting Russia or the United States, though Belgium and Rumania were informed.

About the same time Austria tried again to bring about peace through the Revertera-Armand conversations, which seem to have lingered on till February of this year. [Count Revertera, Austrian Attaché at Berne, began conversations (unofficial) with a distant relative, Major Armand of the French Intelligence Department, in August, 1917.]

"Did the enemy overtures offer a possibility of peace?" asks the Manchester Guardian. "Our Paris correspondent says that Emperor Charles proposed the complete restoration of Belgium, of Alsace-Lorraine to France and the evacuation of occupied territory. On such a basis he and Bulgaria were prepared, if necessary, to break with Germany. The German proposal is said to have included Alsace-Lorraine for France, and Trieste and Trentino for Italy, to be balanced by a free hand in Russia.

"M. Ribot justified the rejection of the Emperor's offer on the ground that he had to choose between that and breaking with Italy. M. Poincaré, on the other hand, is asserted to have been against a negotiated peace on principle, and to have demanded the left bank of the Rhine in addition to Alsace-Lorraine. One may recall here Sir Edward Carson's extraordinary demand of the same kind at the time, and he is said to have invited Emperor Charles to compensate himself for ceding Trente and Trieste to Italy by taking Silesia from Germany.

"So much for the substance of the proposals and counter-proposals in the course of the negotiations, and of the manner in which they were conducted. It suffices to say that the whole matter was disposed of without consulting the American and Russian Governments, our Allies or partners in the war; that it was kept secret even from most of the members of the British and French Governments, and that of course the influence of public opinion was as securely eliminated as that of certain Allied Governments and Ministers. In this last connection it is necessary to point out that on Monday Mr. Balfour was anxious to render it clear that he was in America when the Austrian peace offer was made."

RUMANIA SHACKLED BY TREATY WITH FOE

AMSTERDAM, May 8.—The peace treaty signed by Germany and her allies with Rumania consists of eight clauses. The first restores peace, the second demobilizes the Rumanian Army, except ten divisions, two remaining as protection for the frontiers of Bessarabia and eight in Moldavia, the total not to exceed 20,000 infantry and 3,200 cavalry.

The third clause separates Dobrudja from Rumania and restores to Bulgaria Bulgarian territory which fell to Rumania by the treaty of Bucharest in 1913. Rumania cedes to the Central Allies that part of Dobrudja north of the new Bulgarian frontier line to the mouth of the Danube. The frontier is rectified in favor of Austria-Hungary.

State property in the land ceded by Rumania passes without indemnity to the States which acquire these regions. The inhabitants, however, are to have the right of option and emigration.

The fourth clause deals with indemnities, the signatories of the treaty renouncing any claim to reimbursement for the costs of the war, but special arrangements are to be made for damages caused by the war.

The evacuation of the occupied territories is taken up in the fifth clause, while the sixth provides for free navigation of the Danube, Rumania surrendering the right to collect tolls on ships navigating the river or entering ports. The Central Allies have the right to keep warships virtually anywhere on the river.

Equality of all religions in Rumania is provided for in Clause 7, while the eighth clause has to do with the economic relations of Rumania with the Central Allies. These will be regulated by separate agreements, which will go into force simultaneously with the peace treaty.

"Article 1.—Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey, on the one hand, and Rumania on the other, declare the state of war ended and that the contracting parties are determined henceforth to live together in peace and friendship.

"Article 2.—Diplomatic and Consular relations between the contracting parties will be resumed immediately after the ratification of the peace treaty. The admission of Consuls will be reserved for a future agreement.

"CLAUSE 2.—DEMOBILIZATION OF THE RUMANIAN FORCES.

"Article 3.—The demobilization of the Rumanian Army, which is now proceeding, will immediately after peace is signed be carried out according to the prescriptions contained in Articles 4 and 7.

"Article 4.—The regular military hurenu, the supreme military authorities and all the military institutions will remain in existence as provided by the last peace budget. The demobilization of divisions eleven to fifteen will be continued as stipulated in the treaty of Focsani signed on March 8 last. Of the Rumanian divisions one to ten, the two infantry divisions now employed in Bessarabia, including the Jaeger battalions which are the remnants of dissolved Jaeger divisions, and including two cavalry divisions of the Rumanian Army, will remain on a war footing until the danger arising from the military operations now being carried on in the Ukraine by the Central Powers ceases to exist.

"The remaining eight divisions, including the staff, shall be maintained in Moldavia at the reduced peace strength. Each division will be composed of four infantry regiments, two cavalry regiments, two field artillery regiments and one battalion of pioneers, together with the necessary technical and transport troops. The total number of the infantry of the eight divisions shall not exceed 20,000 men; the total number of cavalry shall not exceed 3,200; the entire artillery of the Rumanian Army, apart from the mobile divisions, shall not exceed 9,000 men. The divisions remaining mobilized in Pessarabia must, in case of demobilization, be reduced to the same peace standard as the eight divisions mentioned in Article 4.

"All other Rumanian troops which did not exist in peace time will at the end of their term of active military service remain as in peace time. Reservists shall not be called up for training until a general peace has been concluded.

"Article 5.—Guns, machine guns, small arms, horses and cars and ammunition, which are available owing to the reduction or the dissolution of the Rumanian units, shall be given into the custody of the Supreme Command of the Allied (Teutonic) Forces in Rumania until the conclusion of a general peace. They shall be guarded and superintended by Rumanian troops under supervision of the allied command. The amount of ammunition to be left to the Rumanian army in Moldavia is 250 rounds for each rifle, 2,500 for each machine gun and 150 for each gun. The Rumanian army is entitled to exchange unserviceable material at the depots of the occupied region, in agreement with the Allied Supreme Command, and to demand from the depots the equivalent of the ammunition spent. The divisions in Rumania which remain mobilized will receive their ammunition requirements on a war basis.

"Article 6.—The demobilized Rumanian troops to remain in Moldavia until the evacuation of the occupied Rumanian regions. Excepted from this provision are military bureaus and men mentioned in Article 3, who are required for the supervision of the arms and material laid down in these regions. The men and reserve officers who have been demobilized can return to the occupied regions. Active and formerly active officers require, in order to return to these regions, permission of the chief army command of the allied forces.

"Article 7.—A General Staff officer of the allied powers, with staff, will be attached to the Rumanian Commander in Chief in Moldavia, and a Rumanian General Staff officer, with staff, will be attached as liaison officer to the chief command of the allied forces in the occupied Rumanian districts.

"Article 8.—The Rumanian naval forces will be left to their full complement and equipment, in so far as their crews, in accordance with Article 9, are not to be limited until affairs in Bessarabia are cleared, whereupon these forces are to be brought to the usual peace standard. Excepted herefrom are river forces required for the purposes of river police and naval forces on the Black Sea, employed for the protection of maritime traffic and the restoration of mine-free fairways. Immediately after the signing of the peace treaty these river forces will, on a basis of special arrangement, be placed at the disposal of the authorities intrusted with river policing. The Nautical Black Sea Commission will receive the right of disposing of the naval forces on the Black Sea, and a naval officer is to be attached to this commission in order to restore connection therewith.

"Article 9.—All men serving in the army and navy, who in peace time were employed in connection with harbors or shipping, shall, on demobilization, be the first to be dismissed in order that they may find employment in their former occupations.

"CLAUSE 3.—CESSIONS OF TERRITORY OUTLINED IN ARTICLES 10, 11, AND 12.

"Article 10.—With regard to Dobrudja, which, according to Paragraph 1 of the peace preliminaries, is to be added by Rumania, the following stipulations are laid down: (A) Rumania cedes again to Bulgaria, with frontier rectifications, Bulgarian territory that fell to her by virtue of the peace treaty concluded at Bucharest in 1913. (Attached is a map showing the exact extent of the frontier rectification, with a note to the effect that it forms an essential part of the peace treaty.) A commission composed of representatives of the allied powers shall shortly after the signature of the treaty lay down and demarcate on the spot the new frontier line in Dobrudja. The Danube frontier between the regions ceded to Bulgaria and Rumania follows the river valley. Directly after the signature of the treaty further particulars shall be decided upon regarding the definition of the valley. Thus the demarcation shall take place in Autumn, 1918, low water level.

"(B.) Rumania cedes to the allied powers that portion of Dobrudja up to the Danube north of the new frontier line described under Section A; that is to say, between the confluence of the stream and the Black Sea, to the St. George branch of the river. The Danube frontier between the territory ceded to the allied powers and Rumania will be formed by the river valley. The allied powers and Rumania will undertake to see that Rumania shall receive an assured trade route to the Black Sea, by way of Tchernavoda and Constanza (Kustendje.)"

Article 11 says that Rumania agrees that her frontiers shall undergo rectification in favor of Austria-Hungary as indicated on the map, and continues:

"Two mixed commissions, the first composed of equal numbers of representatives of the powers concerned, are immediately after the ratification of the peace treaty to fix a new frontier line on the spot.

"Article 12.—Property in the ceded regions of Rumania passes without indemnification to the States which acquire these regions. Those States to which the ceded territories fall shall make agreements with Rumania on the following points: First, with regard to the allegiance of the Rumanian inhabitants of these regions and the manner in which they are to be accorded the right of option; secondly, with regard to the property of communes split by the new frontier; thirdly, with regard to with regard to administrative and juridical matters; fifthly, with regard to the effect of the changes of territory on dioceses."

Clause 4 deals with war idemnities, of which Article 13 declares that the contracting parties mutually renounce indemnification of their war costs, and special arrangements are to be made for the settlement of damages caused by the war.

The fifth clause relates to the evacuation of occupied territories, embodied in Articles 14 to 24, summed up as follows:

"The occupied Rumanian territories shall be evacuated at times to be later agreed upon. The strength of the army of occupation shall, apart from the formation employed in economic functions, not surpass six divisions. Until the ratification of the treaty the present occupation administration continues, but immediately after the signature of the treaty the Rumanian Government has the power to supplement the corps of officials by such appointments or dismissals as may seem good to it.

"Up to the time of evacuation, a civil official of the occupation administration shall always be attached to the Rumanian Ministry in order to facilitate so far as possible the transfer of the civil administration to the Rumanian authorities. The Rumanian authorities must follow the directions which the commanders of the army of occupation consider requisite in the interest of the security of the occupied territory, as well as the security, maintenance, and distribution of their troops.

For the present, railways, posts and telegraphs will remain under military administration and will, in accordance with proper agreements, be at the disposal of the authorities and population. As a general rule, the Rumanian courts will resume jurisdiction in the occupied territories to their full extent. The allied powers will retain jurisdiction, as well as the power of police supervision, over those belonging to the army of occupation. Punishable acts against the army of occupation will be judged by its military tribunals, and also offenses against the orders of the occupation administration. Persons can only return to the occupied territories in proportion as the Rumanian Government provides for their security and maintenance.

The army of occupation's right to requisition is restricted to corn, peas, beans, fodder, wool, cattle, and meat from the products of 1918, and, further, to timber, oil and oil products, always observing proper regard for an orderly plan of procuring these commodities, as well as satisfying the home needs of Rumania.

From the ratification of the treaty onwards the army of occupation shall be maintained at the expense of Rumania. A separate agreement will be made with regard to the details of the transfer of the civil administration, as well as with regard to the withdrawal of the regulations of the occupation administration. Money spent by the allied powers in the occupied territories on public works, including industrial undertakings, shall be made good on their transfer. Until the evacuation these undertakings shall remain under the military administration.

"CLAUSE 6—REGULATIONS REGARDING NAVIGATION ON THE DANUBE.

"Article 24.—Rumania shall conclude a new Danube Navigation Act with Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria, and Turkey, regulating the legal position on the Danube from the point where it becomes navigable, with due regard for the prescriptions subsequently set forth under Sections A to D, and on conditions that the prescriptions under Section B shall apply equally for all the parties to the Danube act. Negotiations regarding the new Danube Navigation Act shall begin at Munich as soon as possible after the ratification of the treaty.

"The sections follow: (A) Under the name Danube Mouth Commission, the European Danube Commission shall, under conditions subsequently set forth, be maintained as a permanent institution, empowered with the privileges and obligations hitherto appertaining to it for the river from Braila downwards, inclusive of this port. The conditions referred to provide, among other things, that the commission shall henceforth only comprise representatives of States situated on the Danube or the European coasts of the Black Sea. The commission's authority extends from Braila downwards to the whole of the arms and mouth of the Danube and adjoining parts of the Black Sea.

"(B).—Rumania guarantees to the ships of the other contracting parties free navigation on the Rumanian Danube, including the harbors. Rumania shall levy no toll on ships or rafts of the contracting parties and their cargoes merely for the navigation of the river. Neither shall Rumania, in the future, levy on the river any tolls, save those permitted by the new Danube Navigation Act."

Section C provides for the abolition after the ratification of the treaty of the Rumanian ad valorem duty of 1½ per cent. on imports and exports.

Articles 25 and 26 deal with Danube questions and provide that Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria, Turkey, and Rumania are entitled to maintain warships on the Danube, which may navigate down stream to the sea and up stream as far as the upper frontier of Austria's territory, but are forbidden intercourse with the shore of another State or to put in there except under force majeure or with the consent of the State.

The powers represented on the Danube Mouth Commission are entitled to maintain two light warships each as guardships at the mouth of the Danube.

Article 27 provides equal rights for all religious denominations, including Jews and Moslems, in Rumania, including the right to establish private schools.

Article 28 provides that diversity of religion does not affect legal, political, or civil rights of the inhabitants, and, pending ratification of the treaty, a decree will be proclaimed giving the full rights of Rumanian subjects to all those, such as Jews, having no nationality.

The remaining three articles provide that economic relations shall be regulated by separate treaties, coming into operation at the same time as the peace treaty. The same applies to the exchange of prisoners.

RUMANIAN PEACE FILLS KAISER WITH JOY

God Will Help Germany and Allies to End the War Victoriously, He Says.

BERLIN, May 8, (via Amsterdam.)—Emperor William replied to Chancellor von Hertling's congratulations on the conclusion of peace between Germany and Rumania with this message:

The termination of the state of war in the East fills me also with proud joy and gratitude. Thanks to God's gracious help the German people, with never failing patriotism, under brilliant military leadership and with the assistance of strong diplomacy, are fighting step by step for a happy future.

I cannot but convey my thanks on this occasion to you and also to your collaborators. God will help us to pass through the struggle which the hostile attitude of the powers, still under arms against us, has forced us to continue and to conclude it victoriously for the good of Germany and her allies.

Emperor William in a telegram to Dr. Richard von Kühlmann, the German Secretary for Foreign Affairs said:

The conclusion of peace with Rumania gives me an opportunity of expressing my joyful satisfaction that peace has now been given to the entire eastern front.

May rich blessings descend on the peoples concerned from the resumption of peaceful labor to which they can now devote themselves.

I thank you and your collaborators for the work done in loyal co-operation with our allies, and I confer on you as a sign of my appreciation the Order of the Royal Crown of the First Class.

BERLIN TO COLONIZE BORDER STATES

DEFENDS ACTS IN FINLAND

AMSTERDAM, May 8.—Friedrich von Payer, the German Imperial Vice Chancellor, in announcing to the Main Committee of the Reichstag the establishment of a special department to regulate Germany's eastern policy, said:

"We hope particularly for advantages relating to the safeguarding of our food supplies and then for what can be comprised under the general term of colonization. The relationship of border States to us shall and must furnish us with the military security of our frontiers against Russia, which security we cannot renounce.

"Besides this, however, there is also national sympathy with the Germans in these territories. That applies particularly to the Baltic provinces. The treatment of States must differ, according to their size, their economical and political conditions, their geographical situation, and further direct connection which is possible."

"We rejoice that by our intervention we insured to Finland her independence and freedom. But really our fundamental idea was to create in North Finland a final condition of peace, both military and political."

Charging the Russians with supplying the Red Guards with arms and ammunition, Herr von Payer said the entire staff of the 42d Russian Army Corps, consisting of twenty officers, recently was captured in Finland. This, he said, proved that Russia had attempted to rob Finland of her freedom. "Our intervention was solicited by the legitimate Finnish Government," he added.

Germany, Herr von Payer continued, had no desire to interfere in the internal affairs of Finland, and just as little was there need to do so. The method of Finland's future development was purely a Finnish affair.

The Vice Chancellor added that Germany had concluded treaties with Finland which corresponded to the interests of both parties to the contract, and which were calculated to strengthen the relations of an economic and political nature. By liberating Finland, he added, Germany also had performed a considerable service to Sweden by the creation of a protective wall toward the East.

Regarding Esthonia and Livonia, Herr von Payer said both countries must first clear up their relations to Russia. They must place their Governments of popular representation on a democratic basis. Germany would not interfere in this.

"The Lithuanians must establish their own Government," said Herr von Payer. "The consolidation and administration of this government can only take place in agreement with the German civil and military administration.

"Austria-Hungary and Germany have agreed not to interfere in the internal affairs of the Ukraine. That, however, is limited to the right of counter-march into the Ukraine for the restoration of order and out of regard for our troops."

LONDON, May 8.—There seems little doubt that a monarchy will be proclaimed in Finland, says a Stockholm dispatch to The Times, and that the German candidate, Duke Adolph Frederick of Mecklenberg-Schwerin, uncle of the Crown Princess of Germany, will be King.

A spirit of reaction has spread throughout the country, it is added, and the Finnish Constitution, which was the most democratic in Europe, is to be remodelled on more or less autocratic lines. The Socialists and Democrats are under the ban for having favored the rebellion. The natural reaction against all who with the aid of Russian Bolshevist soldiers created a reign of terror and anarchy, it is declared, is telling against those who still cling to principles of democratic freedom and who would vote for a republic.

Finland, The Times dispatch continues, is still far from being completely pacified. Deadly fighting with the rebels continues at many points.

STOCKHOLM, May 8.—Sweden, Germany, and Finland, it is announced officially, have decided to negotiate a treaty regarding the demilitarization of the fortification on the Aland Islands. The fortifications, the announcement says, were constructed during the war contrary to international conventions.

REDS' ENVOY SHOCKS BERLIN

Won't Meet Kaiser, but Gives First Dinner to Minority Socialists.

GENEVA, May 8.—Adolph Joffe, the new Russian Soviet Ambassador to Berlin, is shocking official diplomatic circles, according to The Tribune. He has hoisted the red flag above the embassy, and refuses to meet the Emperor.

He gave his first important dinner to the minority German Socialists, where he expressed opinions in strong language. Berlin never experienced such a strange Ambassador, according to The Tribune dispatch, and it is believed that measures will be taken to have him withdrawn.

OVER 500,000 TROOPS ABROAD, SAYS BAKER

visions soon after its arrival on the other side. The fact that more than 500,000 have gone this year also shows the accelerated rate at which the men have been moving forward since the Winter passed and eased the shipping and embarkation situation.

Effect on the Enemy.

The effect of Mr. Baker's announcement in Germany and Austria, if it is allowed to reach those countries, will be watched with interest. There is little doubt that the German General Staff has known that some hundreds of thousands of men have been sent across by the United States, but the size of the force has been carefully kept from the rank and file of the German Army, as well as from the civilian population.

When he appeared before the Senate Military Committee on Jan. 28, Secretary Baker said:

"Instead of having 50,000 or 100,000 men in France in 1917, we have many more than that in France, and instead of having a half million men whom we could ship to France if we could find a way to do it in 1918, we will have more than one-half million men in France early in 1918, and if the transportation facilities are available to us, and the prospect is not unpromising, we will have one and one-half million men who in 1918 can be shipped to France."

The force of more than half a million now in France his been safely convoyed there by the American Navy without the loss of a single convoy, or even of a single ship not convoyed. The only transport carrying troops from this country so far lost was the Tuscania, a British vessel, which was not under American naval convoy.

To date 1,227,000 Americans have been called to the colors, under the Selective Service act. Provost Marshal General Crowder today gave this figure as the approximate strength of the national army.

COLT PLANTS IN FULL BLAST.

No Explanation There of Reported Demand for Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 8. — With the Hartford and Meriden plants of the Colt Patent Fire Arms Manufacturing Company running at full capacity and deliveries apparently satisfactory to the Government, none of the persons connected with the company is able, so far as a cursory canvass showed today, to explain the reported demand in Washington for an investigation of the company.

The Colt Company, which before the war employed about 750 men, has erected three more factories, bought another site, and now employs about 6,500 men. All of the officials here refused to talk about the reported investigation, but from other sources it was learned that reports of unrest had been exaggerated.

So far as could be learned here today, the Colt Company is not obligated to deliver such a number as 3,000 heavy Browning machine guns by June 1. Besides the Hartford Colt plant, there are two plants making the heavy Brownings, which, it is said, are being produced on a quantity basis.

Still to Take Over $300,000,000.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Alien Property Custodian Palmer reported to the House Appropriations Committee today that German property in the United States still to be taken over would total $300,000,000. On that basis, he said, from $700,000,000 to $800,000,000 worth of enemy property will have been seized within the next two or three months. About three-fourths of the property taken over was seized in New York.

ously for years from every nation—and America tried to improve on this design, and was forced finally to admit failure.

The situation on Browning machine guns, about which a warm controversy had raged, was stated to be fair. Considerable delay was occasioned by changes necessitated by instructions from American ordnance experts with the army in France. These changes having been made, and better facilities for production having been provided than were at first obtained, the production of heavy Brownings is said to be approaching a stage which will soon admit of important shipments to the American forces.

It will be late this year, however, before production will attain a point which will relieve the Allies of the necessity of furnishing heavy machine guns to General Pershing. The exact date of real quantity production depends somewhat on material conditions in this country, but by the most optimistic estimates it will be so late that the heavy Brownings will not prove themselves in this Summer's campaign.

The Military Committee has not yet decided its procedure on the aircraft inquiry. Efforts are being made in some quarters to have the investigation conducted secretly, as the former one was. Most members of the committee, however, favor open hearings if they can be held without disclosing to the enemy information of value.

"What information can we give the enemy?" asked one member today. "He knows we have no airplanes."

Those favoring public sessions urge the importance of giving the American public some facts for a change. In the previous investigation two reports were issued, flatly contradictory. Great confusion, it is asserted, was occasioned in the public mind, and many members declare that further suppression of the facts will seriously impair the nation's morale.

OUR TROOPS IN ITALY?

The presence of "an American contingent" and a Bohemian legion on the Italian front is reported in a dispatch from Austrian War Press Headquarters, dated April 8, to the Berlin Tageblatt, a copy of which has been received here. The number of the supposed Americans, or to what arm of the service they belong, is not reported by the newspaper's correspondent, who adds that British and French auxiliary troops are no longer on the Italian front. The dispatch reads:

"On the Alpine and Piave front the Italians continue their preparations feverishly. A new army commander, General Morrone, recently President of the highest War and Marine Court, has appeared there.

"The British and French auxiliary troops have disappeared from the Italian front with the exception of various special troops and artillery.

"On the other hand, it has been ascertained that, in addition to an American contingent at Bormio, a Czech-Slovak legion is also present on the fighting line."

Bank of France Circulation Raised.

PARIS, May 8.—Under a decree published this morning in the Journal Officiel the limit of circulation of the Bank of France is raised to 30,000,000,000 francs. The previous decree fixed the maximum issue of paper money at 27,000,000,000 francs.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 7.—(Associated Press.)—"Jimmy" Hall is gone, and the whole American air service is mourning his loss. All are wondering whether he was killed or was able to bring his machine safely to earth after his battle in the air over Pagny-sur Moselle. Captain Hall was popular throughout the army and had won admiration by his daring, coolness and skill in handling his machine.

The Captain's flying companions are all certain he would have knocked out his opponent had it not been for a manoeuvre unheard of, so far as American and French pilots in this part of France are concerned. It has been considered dangerous to the last degree to bring up a machine sharply from a downward plunge, because the strain is almost certain to cause the collapse of some vital part of the plane. The German aviator whom Captain Hall was pursuing, being hard pressed, adopted this desperate expedient to escape death, and won. He was thus enabled to pour a stream of bullets into the bottom of Hall's machine.

Captain Hall's companions waited for several hours after the fight for him to returne to the hangar before giving him up for lost. They felt certain that unless some serious accident had occurred he could return, notwithstanding he was seen to plunge toward the earth The aviators all have the greatest confidence in him, and express the conviction that if he landed safely and was captured he will escape eventually.

Hall's Thrilling Fight.

The Captain, with two others, was patrolling this morning between St. Mihiel and Pont-à-Mousson. When they were over Pagny-sur-Moselle, ten miles north of Pont-à-Mousson, four enemy Albatross airplanes, painted with black and white stripes, were seen.

The Americans attacked, Captain Hall singling out one of the enemy and driving him downward while firing with his machine gun. The two combatants made a spiral dive from 6,000 metres to 4,000, when the German suddenly reversed his machine and started to rise. In a quick turn he poured a deadly stream of machine gun bullets into the bottom of Hall's machine. Captain Hall promptly came out of the spiral and made a dive for the earth. He was last seen attempting to complete this manoeuvre.

In the meantime the enemy machines that the other Americans had engaged dropped toward the ground. It is unknown what happened to them, but two of them apparently were in distress. No credit for a victory is given the Americans, because official verification of the destruction of the enemy was impossible.

Captain Hall's machine had painted upon its side the first American airplane insignia to appear on the battle line. It was in the form of a "hat in the ring" sign, showing a starry striped high hat, usually pictured on Uncle Sam, surrounded by a golden ring.

Despite the bad weather German machines were out in force. Alarm after alarm was answered by the Americans. Lieutenant Cunningham engaged one machine, when five more of the enemy joined in. The Lieutenant kept up the fight until his machine gun jammed, when he returned to the American lines with ten bullet holes in his plane.

The usual German game was to have a small number of planes appear near the American lines while a reserve of four or five machines remained out of sight until the Americans went into action. The reserves would then swoop down in an attempt to wipe out the Americans. The American aviators met this by answering alarms with twice the number of machines it was reported the Germans had.

Americans Use Nieuports.

American aviators used Nieuport pursuit machines as their fighting weapons. The Americans engaged in photography and artillery regulating work also had to fight. Two Americans protecting a photographing machine were attacked by two Germans. The fight lasted for half an hour and ended when one German went wobbling to the ground, about three kilometers within the German lines. The fight took place about two kilometers behind the German positions.

In view of today's activity, it is believed the Germans sent some of their best fliers to this sector to attempt to annihilate the American flying force.

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 8.—Flight Captain James Norman Hall, reported as missing in France, fulfilled an oft-repeated wish, for, after fighting under French and British colors, his final combat was as an American. Hall was 30 years old and his home was in Colfax, Iowa, where his parents live.

SEND AIR SQUADRONS TO 'STRAFE' AMERICANS

Germans Dispatch Pursuit Planes to Toul Sector—Our Artillerists Open Fire There.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 8—(Associated Press.)—At fewest, three new German squadrons of pursuit airplanes have been sent up to the American troops in the Toul sector to strafe them, according to information received today. The exact composition of the squadrons has not yet been definitely established. There was no aerial activity today, as it was raining heavily.

American heavy artillery was fired for the first time in the sector northwest of Toul. After several weeks spent in preparation the American artillerists, having picked out targets in the rear of Montsec, reported that they were ready to open fire a couple of days ago, but for reasons not disclosed the guns were not fired until today.

About forty big shells were sent over Montsec at the heavy German batteries composed of 26's captured from the Russians, which had been firing for some time, especially at the American battery positions.

ENTERPRISING PATROL WORK

French Report on an Exploit by Our Men in Lorraine.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES ON FRENCH FRONT, May 7.—The official French report of the patrol action in which American troops in the Lorraine sector of the battlefront carried out a brilliant little operation on May 5 in the vicinity of the hamlet of Ancervilliers shows the enterprising spirit of the American troops.

The report says the Americans, whose activity never relaxes and whose "audacity is remarkable," wanted to see what the Germans opposite them were doing.

At 3 o'clock in the morning of May 5, without artillery preparation, three American patrols left the village of Ancervilliers, which is in the allied lines. Two of the patrols took a position on the right and left flank, while the third, composed of eight men under command of Lieutenant Cassidy, executed a clever turning movement and entered Ancervilliers hamlet from the rear and fell upon the German advanced post.

The patrol fired only one shot and then attacked the Germans with trench knives. A fierce struggle ensued, the Germans using the butts of their rifles against the American knives. The fight ended with the death of two Germans and the wounding of their Corporal, who with three other men was brought back to the American lines. There were no casualties among the Americans.

'WAR CROSS OF THE DEAD.'

French Society Will Place It Over Each American Fighter's Grave.

PARIS, May 8.—Commemorating the American soldiers and sailors who have fallen in battle, La Cocarde du Souvenir, a patriotic society, plans to decorate the graves of all Americans who are buried in France. Decorated markers known as "the "War Cross of the Dead" will be placed over each grave.

A committee of the society, headed by Senator Poirrier, today called on Mr. Sharp, the American Ambassador, to make the preliminary arrangements. The Ambassador thanked the committee and informed them that he would discuss the plan with General Pershing.

Markers now decorate the graves of the French, British and Belgian soldiers. The marker to be used for Americans is a metal laurel wreath, about six inches in diameter, surrounding an American flag. It will be supplied to units in the army, the name of the soldier, his unit, and the date of his death to be placed on a metal strip hung from the marker.

Already 700,000 of the wreaths have been distributed among the Entente Allied troops. Ambassador Sharp said the incident showed the gratitude of France for the American war spirit.

LIEUT. GORDON A DOCTOR.

Missing Man Was a Medical Graduate from Michigan.

Lieutenant William H. Gordon of 464 Riverside Drive, who was reported missing in yesterday's casualty list, was a member of the Medical Corps, it was learned yesterday from his brother, Dr. R. E. Gordon, an interne at the French Hospital. Lieutenant Gordon was educated at the University of Michigan and was graduated from the medical school in 1916. He served as an instructor a short time after his graduation and enlisted in the Medical Corps in August. Dr. Gordon said that he had just received a letter from his brother dated April 12. Lieutenant Gordon was 27 years old.

Word was received at the offices of the Chevrolet Motor Company, Broadway and Fifty-seventh street, yesterday of the death in France from disease of John Grenling, the first enlisted employe of the company to die in service. Grenling was 23 years old and a Sergeant in the Quartermaster's Department. His home was in Toledo, where he enlisted May 31, 1917, and went to France in August.

OUR GUNS HARASS ENEMY IN PICARDY

DISCOUNT ALL FOE'S MOVES

Teuton's Letter Says His Comrades Live in Cellar and Dare Not Show Themselves.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 8.—(Associated Press.)—Except for artillery firing and patrolling, there is little new in Picardy. Every day the Americans become stronger. Apparently they are better intrenched than the Germans, who are being continually harassed, day and night. Despite the enemy's heavy expenditure in gas, he has obtained no advantage in this sector, the Americans discounting his every move.

The weather has been unsettled for several days, preventing much infantry activity. There have been some aerial encounters. One of the American patrols last night encountered an enemy working party. They shot the sentinel and rushed the enemy, but later retired owing to the Germans' superiority in numbers.

A letter, freshly written, found on the body of a German killed by the Americans in Picardy, discloses the effectiveness of the American fire against the enemy and the difficulties the Germans are having in bringing up supplies. The letter follows:

"Here we lie in a village which has been completely demolished by artillery fire. The village is near Montdidier. We dare not show ourselves. We live in the cellar. We have to go and get our food at night. Last night I went out with a detail which brought back food.

"We got a direct hit. A shell hit our party, which killed some men and wounded several. I hope we will soon be taken from the western army."

Premier Clemenceau visited the Americans Sunday afternoon and congratulated them on the fine showing they had already made. He expressed particular pleasure at the harmonious manner in which the French and Americans are working together. The Premier inspected the billets and kitchens, and talked with officers and men.

FORCED LEVY OF CLOTHING.

Berliners Compelled to Give Old Suits for War Workers.

AMSTERDAM, May 8.—The city of Berlin has been ordered to produce forthwith 40,000 complete second-hand suits for war workers, principally those engaged in railway and farming work. It is to be a "voluntary surrender against a small payment," but warning is given that if the clothes are not forthcoming they will be taken by force. This applies especially to persons whose social position warrants the assumption that their wardrobes are well stocked.

Monday was the first day for collection, and depositories were opened for the purpose. There was a rush of people laden with old coats and trousers who did not conceal their anxiety to get possession of a certificate handed to "voluntary" contributors, exempting them from official inspection of their wardrobe.

The result of the first day's contributions is said to warrant confidence that the required total will be reached easily.

ALLIES' FINANCIAL NEEDS.

Assistant Secretary Crosby, Back from Europe, Reports to McAdoo.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—A report on the future financial needs of the Allies was presented to the Treasury today by Oscar T. Crosby, President and American member of the Inter-allied Council on Finance and Purchases, on his return from Europe, where he has been since last September.

Mr. Crosby, who is still Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, will assist in working out a plan of extending greater credits direct to France, Italy, and other co-belligerents, instead of through Great Britain. This will relieve Great Britain of borrowing from the United States approximately the sums required for British loans to the Allies.

The financial branch of the council was organized in Paris about five months ago, and consists of representatives of the principal allied Governments. It has acted as a Board of Priority for American loans.

DEFYING U-BOATS TO FEED THE SWISS

Two Wheat Ships Now on Way Under Naval Convoy, Lansing Announces.

WORD IS CABLED TO BERNE

Note to American Minister Reveals American Determination Not to Tolerate Three Months' Delay.

WASHINGTON, May 8. — America's determination to feed the Swiss population despite obstacles interposed by Germany was made plain today when the State Department gave out a communication to the American Minister at Berne declaring grain ships were on the way under naval convoy, prepared to force passage through the submarine zone.

The note was sent for publication in Switzerland to relieve anxiety there as to the food supply. It disclosed that the United States decided to defy the submarine blockade after the German Government declined to guarantee safe passage for grain ships until three months had expired in which to notify submarine commanders. The note reads:

"It is not the fact that no wheat ships for Switzerland will leave the United States for the next three months. It is the fact that Germany has semi-officially announced that her proffered safe conduct for United States ships en route to Cette for Swiss relief cannot be effective for three months, since it will take this period to modify the existing orders to submarine commanders under which American ships carrying wheat to Cette for Swiss relief are to be torpedoed.

"This means, in so far as American ships are concerned, that Germany is still maintaining an armed blockade of Switzerland and that the American wheat on American ships heretofore tendered to Switzerland cannot go forward unless these ships are prepared to fight their way through the blockade which Germany has created and which even closes the supposed free passage to the port of Cette.

"This challenge the Government of the United States is prepared to meet. Two ships under the American flag, loaded with grain for Switzerland, are now en route to a French Atlantic port escorted by units of the United States navy.

"In addition to such measures of relief as can be afforded to the Swiss by the United States diverting its naval forces to insure by force of arms the receipt of grain by Switzerland, there still exists the possibility of receiving supplies on neutral ships, although this possibility has greatly diminished since the sinking by a German submarine of the Spanish steamer Sardinero, outside of the war zone limits, when engaged in carrying wheat for Swiss relief.

"The measures heretofore taken by the United States should, however, be a sufficient earnest of the intention of the United States to insure delivery of wheat for Switzerland, and it should be borne in mind that the extraordinary efforts which the United States has made, and will continue to make, will result in still further diminishing the supply of wheat for our own people, when exports already made to co-belligerents and to neutral countries have reduced domestic supplies to a point where the average per capita consumption of wheat in the United States is substantially below the per capita consumption of wheat in Switzerland."

BRITISH NOW AHEAD IN SHIP RIVETING

American Yards Out to Beat Total of 4,267 Rivets Driven in Nine Hours.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—An international contest in rivet driving has been started between American and British shipyards.

News today from London that a rivet gang there had driven 4,267 rivets in nine hours revealed that Lord Northcliffe recently cabled the Shipping Board asking for the records of American rivet gangs and details of their work to stimulate rivalry.

Officials of the Shipping Board were amazed today at the English figures. The American record of 2,720, which the British set out to beat in making their record, has been surpassed twice in the last two weeks. Edward Gibson and his gang at the plant of the Federal Shipbuilding Company, in Kearney, N. J., drove 2,919 three-quarter inch button-head rivets in a ship's floor in eight hours, and John Corrigan, assisted by three men, drove 3,415 three-quarter inch rivets in a plate floor on skids in nine hours at the plant of the Detroit Shipbuilding Company, in Wyandotte, Mich. Corrigan's record so far is the best ever made in an American yard.

CHICAGO, May 8.— In the International contest among shipbuilders at riveting, the record of William Hartz, who drove 3,065 rivets in nine hours at the Calumet River plant of the Chicago Shipbuilding Company last Monday, stands second only to that of John Corrigan of Detroit, who drove 3,415.

Frank C. La Marche, general superintendent of the plant, was surprised to learn of Corrigan's record, and as frankly amazed at that credited to Robert Farrant, a British riveter.

"I didn't think it physically possible, under the conditions of the contest, which we follow scrupulously, to exceed what Hartz did," said Mr. La Marche.

LONDON, May 8.—The record made by Charles Schock, who at Baltimore drove in 2,720 rivets in nine hours, has been beaten in London. The workmen of Fraser and Fraser, engineers and boilermakers, asked the management to give them an opportunity of beating Schock's record and the effort was made yesterday by a selected squad of riveters under Robert Farrant, aged 51. He is one of a family of eighteen, and his father, aged 67, is a riveter in the same yard.

The yard set out to do 2,850 rivets in nine hours so as to beat Schock's figures, but Farrant passed that total in six hours. Going on he hammered in 4,267 rivets in nine hours, an average of slightly less than 475 an hour, or one rivet every 7½ seconds.

Farrant looked as fresh at the finish as he did at the start. Representatives of the Ministry of Munitions and other departments were present.

War on Merchantmen a Big Blunder, Wemyss Tells Sailors.

LIVERPOOL, May 8.—Germany has made many mistakes in the course of the war, but never a greater one than in thinking that she could end the war by driving British merchantmen from the seas, said Vice Admiral Sir Rosslyn Wemyss, First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, at the annual meeting of the Mercantile Marine Association here today.

In a letter to the meeting, Vice Admiral Sir David Beatty, commander of the Grand Fleet, wrote:

"The officers and men of the Grand Fleet send greetings to their brother sailors in the mercantile marine and express admiration for their gallantry and devotion to duty. The importance of the part they are playing in the great war cannot be overestimated."

Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty, and others, sent similar messages, in which tributes were paid, not only to the dauntless courage of British and allied sailors, but also to those seamen of neutral nations who equally have refused to be intimidated by an unscrupulous foe.

SEES AMERICA READY "TO SAVE THE WORLD"

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 8.—M. Henry Berenger of the French Senate tells his countrymen not to try to balance the coming of America into the war with the defection of Russia, saying that there is no basis of comparison with Russia out and America in. The net gain for the Allies is tremendous, he asserts.

"Have we sufficiently realized," he asks, "that no comparison of the importance of these countries is to be established? The defection of Russia embarrassed us momentarily, but at the same time it freed us from a great burden. We furnished to Russia money, shells, powder, cannon, even rifles. America, on the contrary, brings us what we gave to Russia.

America furnishes us money, munitions, grain, and all the prime essentials of armament and food. She sends hundreds of thousands of soldiers to fight and die with our soldiers. The United States will go to Berlin, if necessary, to save the world."

M. Berenger adds a warning:

"The only problem now for America as for France," he says, "is not to spoil the great sacrifices by stinginess of organization. If our ports are too limited and the means of transport is insufficient for American cargoes, let them immediately remove all obstacles to enlarging the ports and increasing transportation.

"If America is too new at war to possess enough military chiefs of units or enough general staff officers capable of utilizing the army, let them immediately furnish officers and staffs, that we may have between the American and French troops the amalgamation indispensable to victory."

WARN NEUTRALS OF ATROCITIES

CIRCULATE IT IN SPAIN

ENUMERATE THEIR LOOT

WASHINGTON, May 8.—German propagandists in Spain are circulating a document dealing with what has been "accomplished" by the German armies, which would seem to convict the Germans out of their own mouths of many of the charges of violation of international law, cruel treatment of prisoners, looting of civilians, and reprisal against the civilian population in occupied France and Belgium, of which the Germans have been accused.

The document asserts that 50,000 British have been made prisoners and admits that 124,806 German prisoners have been taken by the British. The document was circulated before the recent German offensive in Flanders and Picardy began, and these figures regarding British prisoners refer to the total prior to the recent offensive.

Extracts from the document were made public by the State Department today in this form:

"The Department of State has received a copy of a circular which is being distributed by German propagandists in Spain, setting forth claims as to what has been accomplished by the German armies. The authenticity of the document as being of German origin has been established.

"The circular, which is in Spanish, states:

Summarizes Booty Taken.

Besides an untold amount of war material captured on the battlefield, the Germans have taken possession of incalculable booty in France and Belgium, including:

High-grade watches	147
Underwear	18,073
Embroideries and women's handkerchiefs	13,312
Umbrellas and parasols	3,705
Silver spoons	1,574
Bottles of champagne	523,080

These figures show a large increase over those of the campaign against France in 1870-71. In Belgium, besides many art treasures, they have confiscated old paintings valued at 3,000,000 pesetas.

Due to the treachery of Cardinal Mercier and other priests, who did their utmost to stir the priests against the good-hearted German soldiers, they were forced to teach a severe lesson to the Belgian and French Catholics.

Cathedrals destroyed	4
Rendered unserviceable	8
Churches destroyed	27
Rendered unserviceable	34
Total	73

In Poland also a large number of churches have been destroyed for military reasons. The figures concerning these have not yet been published.

As a result of the stupid stubbornness of the Belgian people in continuing the struggle after their bloody and final defeat on the battlefield, the German officers were forced, against their will, to impose punishments on many rich individuals and wealthy cities. This has contributed the following amounts to the German Treasury:

	Pesetas.
Punishments	87,000,000
Security	13,000,500
Reprisals	15,950,000
Forced contributions	4,320,850

Warning to Neutrals.

This amount includes a fine of 15,000 pesetas imposed on the Alsatian children who insist on speaking the French language and refuse to study the beautiful German language. These statistics are a most useful warning to the neutral countries. If there are any still thinking of siding with the Allies, let them take warning from the fate of the others.

When it is held that the Germans have occupied no English territory and that on the contrary they have lost all their African colonies, amounting to some 3,000,000 square kilometers, it must be remembered that the English, according to the declaration of their Ministers, are not intending to secure any extension of the British Empire; that they have entered the struggle with only the aim of helping the Belgians. That is to say, the English have practically pledged themselves to return the German colonies after the war, in exchange for the evacuation and indemnification of Belgium. The Germans, therefore, are to recover all that they have lost in Africa.

"It is claimed in this document that more than 50,000 British have been made prisoners, and in this connection the following statement is made:

Although to these figures the English oppose 124,806 German prisoners taken by them on the western front, it must be remembered the English treat their prisoners with notable kindness (blandura, notoria), while the regime imposed on the English prisoners by the Germans is one of extreme rigor; so that the Germans, with a small number of prisoners, have secured a much superior moral effect. Besides, to the 2,204 officers and 51,825 soldiers must be added the several thousand English prisoners that have died in consequence of disease, scanty food and other accidents in German concentration camps.

MANN DEPRECATES WAR FAULT-FINDING

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Representative James R. Mann of Illinois, the Republican leader, appearing on the House floor this afternoon for the first time in months, warned his colleagues against what he termed a too critical attitude toward the conduct of the war. He said the country needed to have patience and a realization of how great a task the executive departments of the Government had undertaken.

Mr. Mann is just out of a hospital, after a long illness. When he entered the Chamber he was greeted with a cheer, and his brief speech was in recognition of this. He announced to his colleagues that he intended not to remain in Congress work the rest of the session, but would take a rest.

"What we all need," he said, "is determination and patience. Humanity is not so made that you can evolve great organizations offhand. We are engaged in a struggle with probably the most efficient organization of people in the world.

"It is not unlikely that this war will be won, as most wars in the past have been won, by something entirely new which developed after the war began. We must keep our minds set on the determination never to quit without complete victory.

"We are appropriating here unbelievable sums of money. Mistakes will occur here and there. You cannot build up a great army and navy without mistakes. Let us help correct them, but never forget that they are natural and cannot be avoided. We must have patience. We must not be too hurried in our judgment. We must not condemn too quickly where mistakes have occurred. We must not forget that we have made mistakes, personally and legislatively.

"I know the feeling, I think, on both sides of this House. In this war there must be no partisanship. We stand as a united people, unwilling to let bickerings at home affect our determination to win abroad."

Mr. Mann said that he had noticed from outside that there had been a disposition to feed the people with rosy prospects of various programs. He said this was unnecessary, as the people had courage enough to know there must be mistakes and delays, and that their greatest efforts were required for victory.

ROOT URGES LOYALTY AS CONGRESS TEST

WANTS NO PARTY LINES

Tells Security League That the Only Thing Now Is to Win the War.

The unity of all loyal citizens in support of the Government was demanded by Elihu Root, Honorary President of the National Security League, at that body's annual meeting held last night at the Metropolitan Opera House. In districts where a disloyal minority threatened to defeat divided loyalist forces, he said that all patriotic citizens should unite, regardless of politics.

"I have been a Republican all my life," said Mr. Root, "but I count it as nought compared with this great issue. And I am proud of my lifelong associates in that old party, of the splendid loyalty with which they rallied behind a Democratic Administration to give all the best that was in them to support that Administration. And I challenge all Democrats, all Democrats whatsoever, to support their own Administration with the same loyalty of purpose, and if they can accomplish it, with more.

"We are going to elect a Congress this coming Fall. There is one great single predominant qualification for an election to that Congress, and that is a loyal heart. I don't care whether a man is a Democrat, or a Republican, or a Progressive, or a Socialist, or a Prohibitionist, or what not, he must have a loyal heart or it is treason to send him to Congress.

"There are probably from 20 to 30 Congressional districts in this country where there is a loyal majority, but where there is so large a disloyal minority that a division of the loyal majority may let a pro-German in. In every one of those districts, Democrats and Republicans and all loyal men should get together, and agree upon the loyal man of one party or the other who is the surest to carry the district, and all unite on him without regard to party.

"Any man who would not accept that idea and follow it I would want to five a hundred years to vote and work against. Human nature has not changed. There are going to be parties, going to be politics hereafter; but now they are subordinate, they are unimportant. The one thing is to win the war, and put men in Congress who will represent the driving power of the American people; the driving power that is behind Congress, that is behind the Administration, and that, God grant, may make itself felt behind the men who are puttering over contracts and lingering on the road to victory.

"The great thing is to make Germany feel that the hundred millions of America are going, as one man, to beat it; to make every American feel that all the rest of the hundred millions are with him in his mightiest efforts to beat the German."

Tribute to Joseph H. Choate.

Mr. Root began with a tribute to Joseph H. Choate, his predecessor in the office of Honorary President of the league.

"A year ago," he said, "there was set up in the place of Honorary President of this league that dear and noble friend, that new idea of a democratic gentleman, that pure leader of opinion, of righteousness, of idealism in America, Joseph H. Choate. He has gone to his rest, leaving not only a blessed memory, but leaving a lesson, for he gave the last remaining strength of his old age to the service of his country, as truly as the youth who falls in the trenches. I love to think that his spirit pervades this league, which we meet here tonight, that the sincerity of his purpose runs through all its efforts. It is a League for National Security.

"There are others, there are many other organizations most admirable and efficient, under various similar names, each doing noble service to the country in its own way, and leading toward the same result. For national unity, for Americanism, for public defense, for national security, whatever the name may be, whatever the names may be, they are all the working out of the patriotism of our American citizens, accustomed to individual enterprise and individual independence, seeking to bring the power of general universal organization to our dear country in the trial which has come upon it.

"Abraham Lincoln said that it had long been a grave question whether any Government not too strong for the liberties of people could be strong enough to maintain itself in the presence of a great emergency. That is the test which is being applied to us now."

Lenroot Wants Less Boasting.

Senator Irvine L. Lenroot of Wisconsin, another speaker, said that the best service America could render the world today would be to resolve that there should be no negotiated peace with the present Government of Germany; no peace until there was a Government responsible to the German people. Discussing America's war program, he said:

"We must have less boasting about what we are going to do and more doing of what we should do. When incompetency and waste are permitted to exist the force of public opinion is the only remedy."

Senator Lenroot advised that the study of the German Government should be substituted for that of the German language in our schools. "In the work I have tried to do," he said, "I have found nothing more valuable than the presentation of the German system of government as it is, comparing it with ours.

"I have addressed German audiences, largely pro-German in their sympathies, and I am sure there was not one in ten who knew the system of government that Germany has, and I am sure that there was not one in ten who would not be willing to fight to prevent the establishment of a similar system here."

The Senator defended the loyalty of Wisconsin, as proved by enlistments and contributions to the Liberty Loan, and predicted that next November the Socialist vote of last fall would be cut in half.

S. Stanwood Menken, President of the league, paid a tribute to the late Major Augustus P. Gardner, "to whose inspired oratory and power to fight by exact statement the league owes its origin," and to Mr. Choate.

Resolutions introduced by James W. Gerard and carried by the meeting recognized the national awakening to meet the German danger, favored universal military service after the war, and declared it to be the duty of all voters to see that only win-the-war candidates were elected to Congress this Fall.

Elihu Root was re-elected Honorary President of the league, Alton B. Parker, Honorary Vice President; S. Stanwood Menken, President; George Wharton Pepper of Philadelphia, Willett M. Spooner of Milwaukee, and Luke E. Wright of Memphis, Vice Presidents, and Edward H. Clark, Treasurer. New officers elected were James W. Gerard and Myron T. Herrick, Vice Presidents, and Franklin Remington, Secretary.

COMMENDS NAVAL HEROES.

Secretary Daniels Praises Six Men of the Ryndam.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Secretary Daniels today issued a statement commending six members of the crew of the Ryndam for their heroic work during a fire on board the vessel on April 20. The statement says that, "notwithstanding the smoke and the dangerous flames, these men went down in the forepeak of the vessel and brought on deck a yard workman who had collapsed and would have been killed by the fumes if he had not been promptly removed."

The men named are Carpenter Paul Troy, Chief Boatswain's Mates Philip Nolan of Salem, Va.; Storrey C. Clifford of Deadwood, S. D.; Leonard Muench of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Robert E. Partridge of Taunton, Mass., and Chief Carpenter's Mate Henry F. Gorman of Quincy, Mass.

Kangaroo is as soft and pliable as Kidskin and as tough and durable as Cordovan. It takes and retains a polish like a French waxed calf. Unlike Kid, it doesn't peel or scuff.

SCHWAB RAISES FEE TO SPEED UP SHIPS

DROPS COST PLUS BASIS

Over $2,000,000,000 More Is Asked for the Shipping Program of Next Year.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Charles M. Schwab, the newly appointed General Manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, informed the Senate Commerce Committee today that he had canceled the original cost plus contract under which the Submarine Boat Corporation of Newark, N. J., was to build ten 5,000-ton ships for the Government and had put into effect a new contract.

The new plan, Mr. Schwab told the committee in executive session, was an experiment to determine whether shipyards operating under lump sum contracts and accepting all responsibility for providing materials could make greater speed in construction than those operating with Government money, such as the Hog Island yards.

It was learned that the new contract was entered into for another reason growing out of recent reports that persons connected with the Submarine Boat Corporation had made contracts for materials which had not proved advantageous. The statement was made by Mr. Schwab that there had been reports that officers of the company were interested in the profits of other concerns which sell materials for shipbuilding. Mr. Schwab said that he had not confirmed these statements.

The Commerce Committee met today to begin an investigation of these and other reports, for the purpose of going into the work of the Submarine Boat Corporation as thoroughly as it went into that of the American International Corporation at the Hog Island yards. As a result of Mr. Schwab's testimony, Senator Fletcher stated that the committee would not now continue its proposed investigation. Mr. Schwab's action in substituting the new contract was heartily approved by the committee.

Under the old contract the Submarine Boat Corporation got $87,500 as a fee for building each 5,000-ton ship. This, with other costs, brought the total cost of each vessel to the Government to $787,500. The amount was divided thus: Material, $350,000; direct labor, $200,000; overhead, $230,000, and fee, $87,500.

Under the new contract, the company will get $260,000 for each vessel. The sum is divided thus: Material, $400,000; direct labor, $250,000; overhead, $230,000, and fee, $50,000.

Mr. Schwab explained that though the new contract price of the ships appeared high, the company would accept all responsibility for the mounting costs of material and labor, which, he said, would be higher the longer the war lasted. He figured into the new contract the increases in costs since the old contract was made.

He assured the committee that there was not now any labor shortage at the Government-operated shipyards.

"We are going out now to build ships—a lot of them," said Mr. Schwab.

The only public comment he would make on the new contract with the Submarine Boat Corporation was that it puts the company "on its own responsibility and initiative, and will make far greater speed in production."

In this Senator Fletcher, Chairman of the committee, agreed.

"Though the price looks high," said Senator Fletcher, "Mr. Schwab assures us that production will be speeded up, and that it what we want."

With a request for an appropriation of $2,223,585,000 for the 1919 program before the House Appropriations Committee, Chairman Edward N. Hurley and Charles M. Schwab, Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, took up the question today of rapidly expanding the nation's ship yards to meet the demands made by the War Department.

Of this total the board asked $1,784,100,000 for the construction of ships and $352,100,000 for the purchasing and requisitioning of plants and material in connection with its building program.

Mr. Schwab, it is said, thinks that actual work on the expansion of the yards should be started without delay, so that the task may be accomplished before the Winter. It is the intention of the officials, it is said, to so enlarge the scope of the work that yards in which considerably more than 10,000,000 tons of shipping can be constructed in a year's time will be available for the 1919 program.

The plans of the Shipping Board and Fleet Corporation were discussed also by Mr. Hurley and Mr. Schwab at meetings of the Council of the War Department, and at the conference of the War Council at the White House. It is said that all of the officials are encouraged by the accomplishments in getting troops and supplies abroad.

All the higher officials of the Submarine Boat Corporation, it was said yesterday at the company's offices, 11 Pine Street, were in Washington, having been summoned thither for a conference with Chairman Hurley and General Manager Schwab of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. It was said by other shipbuilding men in touch with the Government's program that the news of the change in the Submarine Boat Corporation contract did not come as a surprise, and that it represented Mr. Schwab's personal ideas in giving subordinate organizations free play, making them responsible for details in method, but holding them strictly accountable for results.

There has been considerable gossip in shipbuilding circles for some time regarding friction over details of management at the Port Newark yard.

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 8.—Eight large wooden ships under construction for the Government will be launched in Gulf Coast shipyards within the next ten days, the Southern Pine Association announced today. Five of them will be launched this week.

MARINE INSURANCE CUT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—As an evidence that the U-boat menace has been reduced Secretary McAdoo today directed that Government rates on marine war risks be cut to 2 per cent. This is less than one-third the rates charged in August, 1917, when the Government began to write marine insurance.

There has been a gradual reduction of rates in the fifteen months during which the Bureau of War Risks has been in operation. On Aug. 15, 1917, the rate was fixed at 6½ per cent. on hulls and cargoes going from American ports to the Atlantic ports of Great Britain and France. On Oct. 6 of the same year the rate was cut to 5 per cent. On Nov. 23, 1917, it was reduced to 4 per cent. On March 18, 1218, it was placed at 3 per cent.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—In a public statement tonight Postmaster General Burleson issued a challenge to Colonel Roosevelt as follows:

"Ex-President Roosevelt in the newspapers this morning made the following statement:

"'During the last year the Administration has shown itself anxious to punish the newspapers which upheld the war, but which told the truth about the Administration's failure to conduct the war efficiently; whereas it has failed to proceed against various powerful newspapers which opposed the war or attacked our allies or directly or indirectly aided Germany against this country, as those papers upheld the Administration and defended the inefficiency.'

"This statement, taken in connection with other published statements of Mr. Roosevelt, is manifestly aimed at the Administration of the Postal Service. It is either true or false. If true, I am utterly unworthy of trust and should be scourged from office in disgrace. If false, right-thinking men and women will form their own opinion of the man who uttered it. Its truth or falsity is easily demonstrable.

"I invite Mr. Roosevelt to name the papers or magazines which have 'upheld the war, but which told the truth about the Administration's failure to conduct the war efficiently' which have been 'punished' by the Post Office Department.

"I invite Mr. Roosevelt to name the newspapers or magazines, powerful or otherwise, which have opposed the war and attacked our allies or directly or indirectly aided Germany against this country in such manner as to violate the law which have not been proceeded against by this department.

"Failure on the part of Mr. Roosevelt to respond is to admit his inability to do so."

ARMY FIGHTS TRENCH FEVER

Dr. Opie Tells Atlantic City Convention of Tests on Our Men.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 8.—Trench fever was described as being the second biggest disability factor among the troops on the fighting front at the annual convention of the Association of American Physicians here today. Its toll is only exceeded by those suffering actual wounds from enemy attacks, it was asserted. The fevsr is spread by lice, or cootles, as they are known to the English soldiers.

If the American boys and their Allied comrades in the trenches can refrain from scratching when bitten, their susceptibility to trench fever will be reduced to a minimum. This has been the conclusion of American and English medical specialists who spent months upon experiments. Fifty men of Pershing's forces volunteered to assist in the research and went through the agonies of the disease so that science might find a remedy to protect other thousands of American soldiers.

The heroism of the half hundred Pershing soldiers in submitting to the inoculation of this trench fever germs at a stationary hospital back of the English lines on the western front was described by Major E. L. Opie, dean of the Washington University, St. Louis, who has just returned from the front. Dr. Opie, a noted specialist and author, was a member of the American Medical Commission that assisted in the experiments.

When the Pershing forces were ready to take over for the first time a sector on the Allied front, the subject of trench fever was brought before the general staff. There had been no definite conclusions on its origin, and treatment had therefore been unsatisfactory. A call was made on an American regiment to submit their bodies for experiments, and the response was liberal, although the soldiers had seen and had been warned how painful the ravages were.

The experimenting established that the fever would not spread by human contact. The fever was contracted in from three to twenty days. It had many painful symptoms, which started with very peculiar twinges similar to rheumatic attacks in the shins. Spots on the skin, as in typhoid, and headaches are among the symptoms.

Dr. Opie, in summing up, said that there was no doubt but that this disease could be and would be eliminated.

Dr. Rufus Cole of New York, in presenting a paper on pneumonia in the army, declared that it was found to trail epidemics of measles. He said it was especially prevalent among the colored troops and those from the South and Southwest.

Dr. Alexander McPhedran of Toronto, Can., was elected President of the association this afternoon. Other officers are: Vice President, Dr. H. M. Biggs of New York City; Secretary, Dr. Thomas McCrae of Philadelphia; Recorder, Dr. W. W. Ford of Baltimore; Treasurer, Dr. J. A. Capps of Chicago, and Councilors, Dr. Theobald Smith of Princeton and Dr. C. F. Martin of Montreal, Can. The association will probably meet in Atlantic City again next year.

LONDON, May 8.—British troops on May 7 entered the Turkish town of Kerkuk, eighty miles southeast of Mosul, in Mesopotamia, the British War Office announced today. The British met with no opposition. The Turks on retiring left 600 men in the Kerkuk Hospital. The text of the statement reads:

Mesopotamia.—A portion of our troops entered Kerkuk on May 7 without opposition. The Turks, who retired toward the Lesser Zab River, left 600 men in hospital in the town. They also abandoned three damaged airplanes. A heavy rain has fallen.

BUMPER WHEAT CROP THIS YEAR FORECAST

CONDITIONS ARE IMPROVED

May Crop Report Shows 86.4 for Winter Whe..t—Rye Production Expected to be a Record.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Hope for the billion-bushel wheat crop, for which the Government is striving this year, was strengthened today by the Department of Agriculture's May crop report, forecasting a production of 572,539,000 bushels of Winter wheat.

Secretary Houston said tonight there was every reason to anticipate increased farm yields over the record production of last year. He added, however, that the promise did not warrant relaxed efforts for greater production and greater conservation, and called upon the people to realize that the farmer could not work miracles, and to lend him the assistance needed at harvest time.

Realization of a Winter wheat crop as large as that forecast would place this year's harvest of that grain as the third largest ever gathered. The estimate is 12,500,000 bushels more than forecast in April from conditions then existing and 158,400,000 bushels more than the crop harvested last Summer. On conditions from now until harvest time will depend whether the crop will be larger or smaller than today's forecast, based on conditions May 1. In the week since then generally favorable weather for wheat development continued and the crop has made excellent progress in all principal producing areas.

Production of Spring Wheat.

Efforts have been made to stimulate production of Spring wheat, and preliminary reports indicate an increase in the acreage of that crop which may be sufficient under good growing conditions to bring the total wheat production this year well toward the billion-bushel mark. No official report has yet been made on the acreage of Spring wheat. The first announcement will be made in June. Reports indicate the seed already planted has germinated well generally.

Rye production is expected to be a record, the forecast of the crop being 82,020,000 bushels, or 22,000,000 more than last year's crop. This forecast is based on a condition of 85.8 per cent. of normal.

Production of hay is estimated at 107,550,000 tons, based on a condition of 89.6 per cent. of normal and an expected acreage of 69,531,000, of which 53,605,000 acres are tame and 15,926,000 wild. Stocks of hay on farms May 1 are estimated at 11,066,000 tons. Average condition of pastures was 85.1 per cent. of normal. Spring plowing was 77.5 per cent. completed and Spring planting 70.8 per cent.

The area of Winter wheat remaining to be harvested on May 1 was 36,302,000 acres, or 13.7 per cent. less than the acreage planted last Autumn. The condition of the crop was 86.4 per cent. of normal, indicating an acreage yield of approximately 15.7 bushels.

State.	Condition.	Forecast. (Bushels.)
Ohio	88	33,472,000
Indiana	96	47,771,000
Illinois	92	44,120,000
Missouri	95	45,063,000
Nebraska	92	47,884,000
Kansas	84	96,104,000
Oklahoma	78	29,531,000

Abandonment of Acreage.

In a statement on Winter wheat the Department of Agriculture said:

"The abandonment of acreage, 13.7 per cent., is heavier than the average, (10.9 per cent. for ten years,) and heavier than had been generally anticipated, although it followed logically a very low condition last December. Of the total acreage abandoned (5,778,000) 2,749,000, or nearly one-half, is debited to Kansas. The four States of Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas contribute nearly four-fifths of the total acreage abandonment. In percentages of abandonment the heaviest are 45 per cent. in Texas and Wisconsin, 33 in New Mexico, 29 in Kansas, 24 in Michigan, 20 in North Dakota and Oklahoma, and 15 in New York.

"The condition on May 1 for the United States, 86.4 per cent., compares with a ten-year average of 85.7 per cent. A month ago the condition of the plant was about 6 per cent. below the average. The higher condition figure for the United States on May 1 is due partly to the elimination of the abandoned acreage this month in obtaining the average for the United States.

"The vigorous efforts of the farmers evidence their patriotic determination to help win the war," said Secretary Houston. "Reports indicate that in order to plant larger acreages with less help than ever before, farmers are working from early dawn until black darkness, utilizing to the fullest capacity all their man-power, family-power, horse-power, and machinery, and setting an example of extraordinary exertion and efficiency which might well be followed in other essential industries. They will need the assistance in cultivation and harvesting of many additional laborers. The Departments of Agriculture and Labor are taking every step possible to help the farmers secure labor. It now devolves upon the cities and towns to lend assistance."

CLOSE J. W. GATES TAX CASE

Surrogate Fowler declined yesterday to reopen the transfer tax proceedings in the estate of John W. Gates on the plea of counsel for State Controller Travis that new evidence obtained showed that Mr. Gates was a resident of New York and not of Port Arthur, Texas, and that his estate of about $16,000,000 should be taxed in New York. The Surrogate held that the evidence was insufficient to warrant the reopening of the case, and said that "a previous administration investigated the question of his last domicile and was apparently satisfied that his last domicile was in Texas."

The Surrogate's decision is an answer to the charges that Mr. Gates created a fictitious residence in Texas, where death taxes are small, for this purpose of avoiding the New York tax, and that the state concealed taxable assets. The Surrogate decided that "there is no proof of fraud," and no evidence has been submitted which could not with due diligence have been submitted in the original proceeding.

Concerning allegations that Mr. Gates owned automobiles, paintings, furniture, and other property in the State of New York which were not reported, the Surrogate says they are not sufficient for the consideration of the court because the allegations were made on unverified statements which are insufficient to prove anything.

Surrogate Fowler says finally that the evidence on which the application for the reappraisal of the Gates estate was made is so "inferential and inconclusive that even if offered on the trial it would not warrant a finding that the decedent had his last domicile in this State."

FEMINISTS WANT TOBACCO.

PARIS, May 8.—Leading French suffragettes are protesting against the new regulations under which women are excluded from the privileges of the distribution of tobacco by card.

Mme. Dwitt Schlumberger, although favoring prohibition of the use of tobacco by minors, thinks the application of restrictive measures to women exclusively arbitrary and unjust. Other leaders of the feminist movement have expressed themselves likewise.

Mme. Jules Siegfried, President of the National Council of Women, approves the measure. She says that tobacco should be reserved for the poilus, who have well earned it.

"BLUE DEVILS" VISIT MEN AT CAMP UPTON

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP UPTON, L. I., May 8.—The French "Blue Devils," many of whom have fought side by side with American soldiers in France, came here today to see a national army cantonment, and every one of them seemed highly delighted with the place and the reception they got from officers and men.

There were ninety-seven privates and six officers. They reached camp at 1 o'clock, and were conveyed in six big army motor trucks through the principal thoroughfares and up to Division Hill, where General Bell addressed them from a special balcony outside his office windows. Each sentence was repeated to the visitors in their own language by one of their officers.

"I am always glad to address French soldiers, because I am mindful of what France has done for this country," said General Bell. "I feel that if the American soldiers fight as well as you do we will lick the Germans sure. We have men in training in many other cantonments such as this. The United States is out to help, but it is not fighting for France, or England, or Italy, or any of the Allies. We are fighting for ourselves and for our posterity."

Then the trucks were headed for the depot brigade, at the western end of the camp, where luncheon was served in the barracks mess hall. Later a vaudeville performance, participated in by men picked mostly from the new arrivals, was given on a raised platform in the centre of the parade grounds. There was a soldier attendance of at least 15,000, and continued sandstorms seemed to annoy the gathering but little.

When the "Blue Devils" marched from the barracks to their seats in front of the platform they received a rousing welcome from the throng that had been waiting for them for more than an hour. At their head marched the depot brigade band.

The entertainment, which was arranged by Lieut. Col. Cyrus A. Dolph, embraced singers, dancers, wrestlers, jiu-jitsu experts, boxing bouts, Hawaiian singers and dancers from the Liberty Theatre, and performers in grotesque costumes. The "Marseillaise" was sung by a recruit, who soon found himself joined by the chasseurs, whose Color Sergeant waved the colors, and finally by the entire assemblage. "Over There" and "Long, Long Trail" were also sung by the gathering.

Charles Poule, one of the chasseurs, said he was glad of a chance to see an American training camp, because he had been in the trenches with American soldiers on the Toul sector and was amazed at their ability to fight. The visitors went back to the city on the 5 o'clock train.

Reads Mayor's Letter in 1912 on Dual System in Bronx—Says He Favors Brooklyn.

In a speech last night before the Taxpayers' Alliance of the Bronx, Public Service Commissioner Travis H. Whitney challenged Mayor Hylan to a joint debate on any or all of the subway problems, repeated some of the statements made by the Mayor in 1912 in opposition to the extension of the dual system of rapid transit in the Bronx, and declared that the Mayor's acquaintance with the city's transportation needs was only academic.

The severe criticism of the Public Service Commissioners by the Mayor and the latter's frequent and scathing comments on their alleged shortcomings were responsible for the attack. Incidentally Mr. Whitney criticised the Board of Estimate for failing to act promptly on a question involving the continuance of work upon rapid transit lines. In a few words of praise of the commission Mr. Whitney said that within two months the Seventh and Lexington Avenue subways would be ready for operation if the Mayor and the Board of Estimate acted promptly upon an agreement providing for a city appropriation of $300,000, and that their continued failure to act would delay the public use of $50,000,000 worth of rapid trans't.

Mr. Whitney spoke of the delay in transit work caused by the necessities of the Federal Government in perfecting its war plans, and said that the fabrication of steel and other necessary materials had been delayed for long periods. But war was not the only difficulty confronting the commission, he said, and illustrated his meaning by referring to the hostile attitude of the Mayor. He refreshed the memories of his audience by quoting from a letter addressed to Chairman Willcox of the commission by the Mayor on Dec. 29, 1917.

In this letter the Mayor declared that the Bronx had a population of only 430,000, that it had two subways and other means of transportation, and that the subways ran through farmland "away into the woods of Westchester, which will remain so for twenty years to come." The letter asked Mr. Willcox to explain what need there was for the extension of railroads in the Bronx section, and especially why the transit line should be run through the Southern Boulevard to Pelham Bay Park, the reason for the extension of the West Farms subway to Becker Avenue, and for the Jerome Avenue line to Woodlawn Road. Then the letter read:

Mr. Whitney compared these denunciations of proposed improvements for the Bronx with the Mayor's warm espousal of anything that would help the Bushwick section of Brooklyn. He said:

"Mayor Hylan seems to think that the Bronx needs no additional transportation, but he was concerned that there should be rapid transit for at least the Bushwick portion of Brooklyn. He may be interested to know that under the dual contracts the amount of money being spent for rapid transit in and for Brooklyn is about nine times the amount spent in the Bronx, and that the Fourteenth Street-Eastern District line, which traverses Bushwick, will cost more than the entire amount being spent in the Bronx."

"There remain only certain cable lines and substation work to complete. This work will be completed so that the 'H' will go into operation within two months, except that there is certain work to be done at the city's expense in connecting the two lines with the old subway. To provide for this, the commission, on Feb. 20, 1918, sent to the Board of Estimate a modifying agreement with the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, which provides for an appropriation of $300,000, and is still unacted upon, with no indication of immediate approval, although any further delay will postpone the date of operation of nearly $50,000,000 worth of property."

In relation to other parts of the rapid transit system, Mr. Whitney promised that within a month the Ninth Avenue service would be extended to Jerome Avenue, and that within three months after the "H" was in operation it would be possible to operate trains as far as Hunt's Point station.

VISITS THE TOUL SECTOR.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 8, (Associated Press.)—The American Labor Mission arrived today in the zone of the American Expeditionary Force. It had intended visiting the headquarters of the General commanding the Toul sector and other points, but because of its delayed arrival had time only to see the Americans who were engaged recently at Seicheprey and are now resting in billets not far from the line.

The command was drawn up at attention, but was quickly dismissed. The labor delegates shook hands with many of the men and heard vivid stories of the fighting. The party motored through many of the billet towns to General Headquarters, where it was entertained at dinner tonight by General Pershing in his château.

CANAL PLANS OUTLINED.

Will Be Open for Operation May 15, Tomlinson Tells Trade Board.

Plans for the utilization of the Erie Canal under Federal control were outlined yesterday at the regular monthly meeting of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, held at 203 Broadway. The board renewed its opposition to the second class mail zoning provision of the war revenue tax law, and called upon Congress to suspend the operation of the zoning provision at least, until after the war. A report brought in by the Executive Committee, and adopted unanimously, in effect, warned Mayor Hylan not to impair the efficiency of the city's Department of Health, especially in wartime when thousands of troops are using this port for entry and departure overseas.

G. A. Tomlinson, General Manager, New York Canals Section of the United States Railroad administration, told for the first time since reaching New York, the part to be played by the Erie, or Barge Canal, in relieving the railroads centering here from the freight congestion.

"The State officials will have the Erie Canal ready for operation on May 15," Mr. Tomlinson said, "and as General Manager for the Federal Government, I expect to start operation at the same time. In order that no time may be lost, the Government has chartered a large part of the existing boat equipment which has been operating on the canal, including Captains of boats.

"An administrative organization has been effected at New York, Troy and Buffalo, and later on administrative services will be provided locally at other cities along the canal. In this connection it is important that local interests along the canal shall be enterprising enough to provide terminals as well as business. Seventy-five modern steel and concrete boats will shortly be constructed. In addition a certain number of concrete boats will be tried out. If these prove serviceable it will be possible to build others very quickly and at a comparatively small expense.

"One of the greatest problems with which we are now struggling is the matter of providing terminals in New York City. Calvin Tomkins, formerly Dock Commissioner of your city, is giving attention to this matter. We have the assurance of the present Dock Commissioner, other city authorities, and the railroads that they will co-operate in every practical way.

The board adopted a resolution presented by E. F. Cole, Chairman of the Executive Committee, renewing the request to Congress to repeal the second-class mail zoning provision of the war revenue tax law.

The Board of Trade went on record as favoring universal military training and adopted a resolution that the Special Coal Committee of the organization be requested to make an exhaustive study of the coal situation, and especially that the matter of providing places within the city for the storage of an adequate supply of coal be considered.

ONE KILLED, TWO HURT AS ARMY FLIERS CRASH

Two airplanes, coming out of a mist to make a landing on the Keane flying field of the United States Army, near Mineola, L. I., came into collision yesterday, and both machines were wrecked when they reached the ground. One cadet sustained injuries which caused his death, and two others were severely hurt.

Cadet John B. Erwin of West Point, Miss., who was killed, was alone in his machine, and was coming down at a steep angle through a haze when Ralph E. Jeramy of Emporia, Kan., and J. R. Vidmer, who were together in a machine, saw the other airplane almost directly above them.

Fearing that the two machines would strike squarely if they continued their angles of flight, Jeramy, who was then about 800 feet above the ground, attempted a descending loop. This apparently averted a full collision, but the tips of the wings of the two machines struck each other, throwing both planes out of full control. The machine piloted by Erwin fell heavily to the ground. Jeramy's machine was descending at a sharp slope when he saw two farmers plowing the ground for which his plane was headed. He made frantic efforts to avoid them and succeeded, but the sudden turn prevented him from making a fair landing, so that he and his companion were both hurt and their machine badly wrecked.

Erwin was picked out of the wreckage of his plane with a fractured skull, which caused his death later. Jeramy suffered internal and other injuries, and is in a serious way. Vidmer was only slightly hurt.

FIGHT AIRPLANE MAIL.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Consideration of the annual Post Office appropriation bill, carrying $371,000,000, was begun by the Senate today, with opposition developing to an appropriation of $100,000 for the continuance of experiments in airplane mail service, to Government acquisition of pneumatic postal tubes in large cities, and to a flat wage increase of 15 per cent for virtually all postal employes. The disputed provisions were passed over temporarily, and the Post Office Department was asked for a report on expenditures from previous appropriations for the airplane mail service.

Senator Weeks of Massachusetts, Republican, speaking in favor of the appropriation, contended it would encourage small airplane manufacturers.

More Than Forty German Craft Torpedoed, Says Review of Their Work in War.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—More than forty German warships hvo been attacked successfully by British submarines. This was disclosed by an official British statement received here and made public today by the Committee on Public Information. The review was the most extensive ever received in this country of the work of the British underwater craft.

Various exploits of individual craft and recounted. In many instances the submarine commanders have threaded their way through dangerous mine fields to seek out their quarry, and so successful have they been in penetrating the defenses of the German coast that the report notes that the enemy "rarely allows his above-water craft beyond the confines of his harbors."

Most of the battles narrated in the review were with German destroyers which had sailed forth presumably on raiding expeditions, but in one instance a submarine commander told of sighting four dreadnoughts of the Kaiser class off the Danish coast, and of discharging torpedoes at two of them. The submarine submerged as the torpedoes were fired, but from the sounds of explosions which the commander heard he concluded that two of the battleships were hit. The submarine was prevented by German destroyers from rising to the surface to observe the effects of its attack.

Another narrative tells of a British submarine meeting a German U-boat and how the pair jockeyed for position to launch a torpedo until the German finally decided safety lay in flight.

The review also deals with the hazard of operations in the North Sea during the Winter months and tells of the hardship and suffering of the crews from extreme cold. Frequently periscopes and wireless sets were covered with ice so that they could not be used.

Both Ends
Against The Middle
(The Packer.)

The consumer wants to pay a low price for meat.

The packer stands between these conflicting demands, and finds it impossible to completely satisfy both.

The packer has no control over the prices of live stock or meat, and the most that can be expected of him is that he keep the difference between the two as low as possible. He does this successfully by converting animals into meat and distributing the meat at a minimum of expense, and at a profit too small to be noticeable in the farmer's returns for live stock or in the meat bill of the consumer.

	Average Per Head
Sold meat to Retailer for	$68.97
Sold By-products for	24.09
Total Receipts	$93.06
Paid to Cattle Raiser	84.45
Balance (not paid to Cattle Raiser)	$ 8.61
Paid for labor and expenses at Packing House, Freight on Meat, and Cost of operating Branch distributing houses	7.32
Remaining in Packers' hands as returns on investment	$ 1.29

The net profit was $1.29 per head, or about one-fourth of a cent per pound of beef.

By what other method can the difference between cattle prices and beef prices be made smaller, and how can the conflicting demands of producer and consumer be better satisfied?

The Collection of "Slow" Telephone Accounts

THIS AND THE CHATS that are to follow, are published as frank and open discussions of the question of collecting "slow" telephone accounts.

THEY ARE DESIGNED to show that it is desirable, particularly at this time, to save the time and labor that is now expended in collecting bills that remain unpaid after the lapse of a reasonable period of time.

WHILE MOST TELEPHONE accounts are paid promptly, there are a number of "slow" accounts that require labor, time and expense that might better be devoted to other work that is more directly in the interest of the public's telephone service.

WE BELIEVE that this method of bringing the matter to the attention of the public, this frank and open discussion of our aims, is all that is necessary to secure proper understanding and co-operation.

20,000 HONOR FLAGS WON IN LOAN DRIVE

DELAWARE HEADS STATES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—While final returns of subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan will not be received until Monday, telegrams are coming continually to the Treasury Department from counties, cities, and towns claiming the right to fly the honor flag for attaining the quota of subscriptions assigned. From all the records now obtained it seems that more than 20,000 communities—that is counties, cities, and towns—won the flag.

All incorporated banks and trust companies will tomorrow make final reports to the Federal Reserve banks of the twelve districts as to number of subscribers and amounts of bonds purchased. The Reserve Banks in the interval to Monday will make their final reports to the Treasury Department.

The Chicago district already has awarded 4,065 honor flags. The Minneapolis district is second with 3,041 awards, while Cleveland has 1,899, Boston 1,393, Atlanta 891, Philadelphia 752, and St. Louis 196. The small number of flags awarded in the St. Louis district is due to the fact that the committee there decided to give the emblem only to counties and not to cities and towns, as was done in other districts.

Delaware not only carried off State honors for the country by being the only one to obtain more than twice its quota, but its women workers also sold a larger percentage of bonds in proportion to their quota than the women of any other State, according to a report made public today by Mrs. Antoinette Funk, Vice Chairman of the National Woman's Liberty Loan Committee.

"The State of Delaware leads all States in women's subscriptions, having subscribed for bonds equaling 120 per cent. of the State quota," the report said.

Complete returns indicate that Topeka, Hartford, Birmingham, Washington, and Boston led in their respective classes in obtaining percentages of the money quotas assigned them. Hartford leads the cities in all five classes, with a record of 251 per cent. It has not been determined what city under 25,000 inhabitants made the best record.

Under classifications based on the 1910 census cities made the following record:

Between 25,000 and 50,000—Topeka, Kan., 202; Macon, Ga., 141; Augusta, Ga., 119; Montgomery, Ala., 117; Tampa, Fla., 115; Chattanooga, 124; Knoxville, Tenn., 142; Sioux City, 150; Galveston, 124; Shreveport, La., 122; Austin, Texas, 118; El Paso, 95; Waco, Texas, 87; Pueblo, 135; Lincoln, Neb., 149; Muskogee, 82; Quincy, Ill., 175, and Little Rock, Ark., 125.

Between 50,000 and 100,000—Hartford, Conn., 251; Salt Lake City, 112; Tacoma, 136; Savannah, 102; Jacksonville, 171; San Antonio, 117; Houston, 114; Fort Worth, 112; Dallas, 111; Duluth, 125, Des Moines, 145; St. Joseph, 164; Kansas City, Kan., 168; Wichita, 97; Oklahoma City, 134; Evansville, Ind., 139; Waterbury, 173; Portland, Me., 212; Holyoke, Mass., 129; New Bedford, 149; Springfield, Mass., 116, and Manchester, N. H., 129.

Between 100,000 and 250,000—Birmingham, 186; Seattle, 133; Portland, Ore., 126; Oakland, Cal., 104; Atlanta, Ga., 118; Nashville, 152; Richmond, 125; St. Paul, Minn., 125; Indianapolis, 121; Kansas City, Mo., 141; Denver, 100; Omaha, 151; Louisville, Ky., 180; Memphis, 109; New Haven, 116; Fall River, Mass., 138; Lowell, 138; Worcester, Mass., 122, and Providence, R. I., 133.

Between 250,000 and 500,000—Washington, D. C., 107; San Francisco, 109; Los Angeles, 150; New Orleans, 108; Minneapolis, 125; Detroit, 148, and Milwaukee, 141.

Official Total Will Probably Reach $1,050,000,000 — Richmond Takes Over 300% of Quota

The chief remaining interest in the Liberty Loan campaign yesterday, so far as New York is concerned, was the question how far this district's subscriptions ran over the billion-dollar mark, and the total number of individual subscriptions within the district.

The Borough of Richmond yesterday put in a claim for first place among counties, not only in the district, but anywhere in the country. Borough President Van Name stated that Richmond subscriptions would considerably exceed 300 per cent. of its quota, and he said that if any other county had done proportionately better he wanted to hear about it. Henry A. Murphy of the Richmond Liberty Loan Committee estimated Richmond's subscription at from 325 to 350 per cent. of its quota.

Regarding the New York district as a whole, as today is the day of complete returns, it was not possible yesterday to obtain definite figures, but it seemed probable that the New York total might reach $1,050,000,000. The official total will probably be announced this afternoon.

ASKED ABOUT YOUNG MORRIS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—In a discussion of the draft and how to increase the nations man power, Provost Marshal General Crowder told the House Committee on Military Affairs today that the War Department intends soon to have quarterly registration for military service of men who become 21 years of age, instead of yearly registration. Under legislation now virtually completed by Congress the War Department is empowered to make such regulations. Members of the committee told General Crowder that they thought his plan a capital one.

Representative Caldwell of New York suggested that the department go still further and require every young man to register and receive his questionnaire on his twenty-first birthday. Other members of the committee objected to this, asserting that it would prove too expensive.

While the committee told General Crowder they were pleased with his work in the draft and would appropriate the $15,000,000 he has asked for next year, there was a spirited discussion over the cases of two young men of wealth who had obtained deferred classifications. These two were Robert Scripps, the son of the millionaire proprietor of a syndicate of newspapers, and Nelson Morris, the wealthy young Chicago meat packer.

Representatives Lunn of New York, Gordon of Ohio, and Anthony of Kansas told General Crowder that the general impression was that the influential position of the families of these men had resulted in their freedom from immediate service, and that the feeling in parts of the country was suspicious and unfavorable.

General Crowder, replying to questions, said that Mr. Morris is now serving in the Quartermaster's Department as a civilian assistant at a nominal salary. He assured the committee that Mr. Morris is still subject to the draft, and that when his turn comes he must go to camp, so far as information now before the department indicates.

He said of Mr. Scripps that the papers before the department asserted that the young man was an invaluable official and executive in various newsgathering and news-publishing organizations. On close questioning by members of the committee he denied positively that Mr. Scripps had been turned down by the military authorities to whom he appealed, and had only been successful in obtaining deferred classification from President Wilson personally.

He said that both Mr. Morris and Mr. Scripps had received the same treatment as persons of moderate means would have received. A general searching of all deferred classifications is now under way, he said, to ascertain if there are in them men who ought to be in Class 1.

In a letter read to the committee President Wilson announced his disapproval of the proposal to give credits to various draft districts for the number of men who volunteer from them. In a former communication the President had said he saw no objection to this proposal, which originated in Congress. In the letter read today the President said that after a more thorough investigation he was convinced it would lead to undesirable complications. The committee decided to ask the House to follow the President's wishes.

It developed after the meeting that support for raising the draft ages to from 21 to 40 is not yet dead in the committee. Representatives Shallenberger of Nebraska and Kahn of California both said they were convinced such a step was necessary. This was the more certain, they said, since General Crowder's statement that there are about 2,000,000 now available in Class 1. Mr. Kahn said that twice this number must be obtained. There was no committee discussion of this, however.

Adjt. Gen. McCain authorized today additional regulations for the fourth officers' training camp, to be opened May 15, providing that men of draft age may attend these camps if they are members of reserve officers' training corps in accredited schools, who either will complete their senior course this year or who had since Jan. 1, 1917, not less than 300 hours of military instruction under an army officer. Graduates of educational institutions giving military instruction under an army officer also may enter if they have had not less than a year's military training.

BECKER DENIES CHARGES.

Dr. Philip G. Becker of 143 West Eighteenth Street, who is on trial in the Criminal Division of the Federal Court charged with conspiring to get drafted men out of the army by prescribing drugs to make them appear ill and deceive the medical authorities, took the stand in his own defense yesterday.

Under questioning by his attorney, James W. Osborne, Dr. Becker denied that he had taken money from Harry Wallers, a former guardsman and the Government chief witness, for drugs to be given to drafted men. Dr. Becker will be cross-examined today by Assistant United States District Attorney Cotter.

GIANTS WIN SEVENTEENTH GAME AND PHILS STAGE A SMALL CYCLONE

But as a matter of precaution, may we suggest that you make sure of your dealer. You have perhaps read in the newspapers that a lot of last year's straws are pretty apt to turn up as "new"—carried over stuff.

Don't look for them here; it's long been our policy to start with a clean, fresh stock. Besides, any hatter will tell you that there's no way of keeping old stock from becoming "yellow." That's how you tell!

As always, we planned early and bought liberally; had our orders in six months ago.

The result is here to-day and incidentally about 80% are the comfortable, flexible kind that take the shape of any head without conforming.

SPECTATORS JOIN MELEE

Many Motions Made, Many Tempers and One Cane Lost When Verdict Saves Giants from Being Tied.

Charley Moran, who is just in the sprouting stage of umpiring in the National League, was the guest of honor at a mobbing party up at the Polo Grounds yesterday. He wasn't very extensively mobbed, but still, a little bit mobbed. The Phillies started the riot when Moran called Meusel out at the plate in the ninth inning of a game which went to the Giants by a score of 3 to 2.

The Phillies had launched a rally in the ninth which threatened to result in the unheard of calamity of a Giant defeat. The decision in question prevented the Phils from tying the score, so they rose to great heights of tempestuous fury. A bunch of Phillies, which included Stock, Eddie Burns, Bancroft, and Pat Moran, rushed at the umpire when he called Meusel out and jostled him about so roughly that the umpire squared off, put up his fists, and started to hit straight from the shoulder.

In the amazingly short space of one and a half seconds a mob of about 1,000 players and fans had massed around the umpire and Moran had all the appearance of martyr. Events stepped on each other's heels with such rapidity that it was difficult to ascertain with the naked eye just what was happening. There were Stock, Bancroft, and Eddie Burns, all about the same size, standing threateningly in front of the umpire, with the umpire's fists all ready to shoot in any direction pugilistic activity threatened to bloom.

Some say Stock tried to plant a well-chosen blow on Moran, while others say that it wasn't Stock, but Burns, and then again others say that it wasn't Stock or Burns, but Bancroft. As there were a few thousand inquisitive folks trying to get seats in the front row of the scrap, there are naturally that many versions of the conflagration.

When the belligerent Phillies and Umpire Moran were becoming nicely churned into a maelstrom of trouble, elbowing their way into the fray came Manager Pat Moran and Manager McGraw. They got in front of the umpire and stood there like heroes, ready to take any blows intended for that person. When it comes to umpires, McGraw is either for 'em or against 'em. He is never neutral.

When the cornered arbiter pulled back his trusty right arm and let it go forward at Bancroft, Stock, Burns, or whoever it was that happened to be in range at that moment, it seemed to be more in the nature of a shove than a chosen hook at a chosen spot on a chosen jaw. It must have been very close where Umpire Moran was at that instant, and he began to shove, probably to get a little air. McGraw and Manager Pat Moran did some well timed shoving, too, and all the infuriated Phillies who were screaming for their pound of flesh were turned about and headed toward the bench.

A flock of hot-headed fans took up the battle when the baseball players had decided to let the umpire live, and as the cause of the trouble was making his way back under the grand stand to the umpires' dressing room one man was so angry that he hurled a perfectly good cane at the ump, and didn't get it back, either.

There is this much to be said about these Phillies, if any of them did hit the umpire they hit him in about the same way that they have been hitting the Giants' pitching this season. There were no marks on the umpire to show that any of the uppercuts reached home. Last night it was learned that none of the Phillies had gone to the hospital, so evidently Umpire Moran was only brushing the flies away when he was swinging his arms.

Peeking at the umpire's decision at the plate, this way and that, under and over, to and fro, back and forth, with and without, it didn't look like a perfectly hatched verdict. It might be construed that the Phils had grounds for more or less whispering objection, but as far it being serious enough to incite a riot, nay, nay, Oswald, nay, nay.

The score was 3 to 1 in the Giants' favor when the Phils came up for their last digs in the ninth. Stock whiffed before Perritt's shoots and Cravath ballooned to George Burns. Luderus, after poking a wallop into the grand stand, which was foul by an eyelash, came back to the bat and hit a single to right. Meusel leaned against one of Perritt's tangents and cuffed a double over George Burns's head in left field. Luderus scampering around to the plate.

Eddie Burns, the Phils' little backstop, shot a bouncer to deep short and beat Fletcher's toss to first, Meusel hitting up a terrific gait as he rounded third and started for the plate. Holke whipped the ball home to Bill Rariden, and Mr. Meusel and Mr. Ball seemed to arrive simultaneously. Whoa Bill Rariden spread-eagled the plate as Meusel came sliding in, and some 10,000 spectators were yelling like Old Ned in the excitement.

Umpire Moran seemed to be somewhat undecided about whether Meusel was safe or not. In fact, he waited so long that the Phils took it for granted that the runner was safe. Looking back at the proceedings it might be said that Moran hesitated so long that it looked as if he were going to flip up a coin, and if it came heads, Meusel was safe, tails, he was out. When the Phils were dancing around joyously, believing they had tied the score, the umpire went through the gymnastics with his arms which wigwags to the knowing ones that the runner is out. It was then that the Phillies closed in on the umpire and asked him what in the deuce he meant.

Pol Perritt had the Phils shut out up to the eighth, when George Whitted came in as a pinch hitter for Pitcher Mike Prendergast and slapped out a single to right field, which oozed its way through Ross Young and Whitted pulled up at third. Fitzgerald's sacrifice fly to Kauff score Whitted.

The Giants got all their runs in the third session when three hits were bunched with a couple of Philadelphia errors. Holke opened the inning with a single to right centre and Rariden rolled a grounder to Luderus, who threw to Bancroft to force Holke at second. Holke beat the throw and then Banny made a wild toss back to first in a futile effort to get Rariden, Holke going to third.

Perritt singled to centre, scoring Holke, and Rariden went to third and Perritt to second when Meusel booted the ball in the outer garden. Rariden scored while Bancroft was throwing Young out at first and Perritt went to third. Kauff tapped a roller to Bancroft, whose throw to the plate was too late to get Perritt and Pol was safe with the Giants' third run. After Zim skied to Stock, Rodriguez walked, filling the bases. Fletcher hoisted a fly to Fitzgerald for the third out.

ROBINS CRUMBLE IN NINTH.

BOSTON, Mass., May 8.—The Brooklyn Dodgers settled down to some good, clean baseball against the Braves this afternoon, but although they furnished an early 2-to-0 lead for Jack Coombs, and later went ahead, 3 to 2, in their half of the ninth inning, the defense of Robbie's men wabbled at the finish and the Braves nosed out the game, 4 to 3, for Arthur Nehf.

It was the first time this year that the Braves have made it two straight. The Braves won the game by hard hitting. One run behind in the ninth, Wickland, the first batter, got a home run on a low liner that Myers should have played safe instead of coming in. Then, with one out after Konetchy had singled and Coombs passed both Rawlings and Wilson, Nehf won his own game by clipping a hot bounder that O'Mara could not handle.

ST. LOUIS, May 8.—Cincinnati turned the tables on St. Louis today, batting out a 9 to 6 victory in the last inning. May had allowed only three scattered hits up to the ninth, when he weakened and Cincinnati, by annexing five bases on balls, two hit batsmen, and four singles off May and Meadows, who succeeded him, scored nine runs.

SOLDIERS DEFEAT C. C. N. Y.

Ray Fisher's Fort Slocum service nine won its sixth consecutive victory yesterday afternoon in the C. C. N. Y. stadium by defeating the City College team by 11 to 0. So far this season the Fort Slocum soldiers have rolled up 50 runs against their opponents' 4.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., May 8.—The Yankees and Mackmen battled on even terms up to the last of the eighth inning at Shibe Park this afternoon and then came a tornado thump by Cy Perkins, Mack's young backstop, which carried the Yankee winning streak away with it. Perkins' drive nestled among the bleacher boys in left field seats and two runners dusted plateward in advance of the Mack maskman. The final count was 5 to 2.

How Ray Caldwell got to the eighth with no more damage than two runs against him is somewhat of a mystery. He had figured that his ailing wing was fit again, but the ball he pitched this afternoon was not of the usual Caldwell brand. He was in trouble continually and really did some fine pitching when trouble was brewing, but he lacked his usual effectiveness and was outpitched by Scott Perry, the Mack veteran.

The big guns of the Mack batting array, such as Walker, Gardner and Burns had their chances and failed. To Cy Perkins remained the task of beating the Yanks, and Cyrus performed handsomely. He drove in a pair of runners with a single in the fourth inning, tying the score. In the eighth he drove in three more runs, winning the game. Otherwise Cyrus spent a very quiet afternoon.

During the remainder of the game the Yanks got three scratch singles and a double. The only time they threw a scare into the home troupe was in the ninth. With two out and two runners on bases, Hannah launched a long drive in the general direction of the left-field bleachers, where his homer yesterday landed. This was a trifle short, and Kopp caught the ball while leaning against the bleacher wall.

OMAR KHAYYAM IS BEATEN BY CUDGEL

PIMLICO, Md., May 8.—East and West clashed today on the racetrack for the first time this season, and the glory went to the West by the victory of J. K. L. Ross's Cudgel in the Pimlico Spring Handicap. Omar Khayyam, the champion three-year-old of last season and the pride of the East, failed to develop his usual finish and had to be content with third place, behind the lightly-weighted Bondage, to which he was conceding twenty-four pounds.

A hustling pace set by Bondage, Borrow, and Cudgel over the mile and seventy yard route proved too much for Omar Khayyam, which had only one previous outing under colors, to wind him up for the crucial contest. Cudgel on the other hand had taken part in three races and had shown winning form in two. He was in receipt of three pounds from Omar Khayyam, but gave his rival more than a three-pound beating. The time of 1:43 2-5 is very fast, and Omar would have to be in his best form in order to keep pace with the son of Broomstick.

Cudgel was excellently handled by Lyke, and taking a forward position in the early part of the race had plain sailing throughout. Dominick adopted waiting tactics with Omar Khayyam, which was rated behind most of the field of ten for the first half mile. He moved up then, but met with interference and had to be taken to the outside. A quarter of a mile from the finish, Omar began to close the gap, but he was scarcely keyed for a grueling finish and faltered badly at the end.

Bondage meantime was putting up a great fight with Cudgel, but the son of Broomstick stood off all challenges and held an advantage of half a length as he crossed the line, with Bondage two lengths in front of Omar Khayyam. Borrow, which had been a contender most of the way, also stopped in the last quarter of a mile and landed in sixth place, behind Crank and Hendrie.

The summaries:

COLUMBIA IS BEATEN AGAIN.

Loses to Cornell, 5 to 4, for Third Time This Season.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 8.—A ninth inning rally gave Cornell her third victory of the season over Columbia today by the score of 5 to 4, Wagner, a pinch hitter, driving out a single in the last frame which sent Muller over the plate with the tally that meant victory for the Ithacans. Farrell, on the mound for Columbia, outpitched Rees, Cornell's moundman, but the Columbia team went to pieces.

After Cornell had scored three runs in the third on two bases on balls and errors by Goodman and Stickel, Carroll started Columbia off in the New Yorkers' half of the third inning when he received a base on balls. He stole second and came home on Ackerman's hit to left field. Ackerman scored on Buonagure's tap. A hit by Houlahan and a sacrifice fly by Buonagure accounted for two more runs in the seventh.

Bonagura opened Cornell's half of the ninth with a single to right field. Muller was passed and then Lester went to the mound for Columbia. Bonagura stole third when the base was left uncovered. Corwin's infield hit to Hauck scored Bonagura, and when Wagner walloped the ball to centre, Muller scored. Ackerman's hitting and several sensational catches by Houlahan were features.

SUBWAY CAVE KILLS FIVE, ENTOMBS NINE

DEAD UNDER MASS OF ROCK

Five men, who were attempting to repair a loosened timber in a tunnel under construction in the Eastern Parkway Branch of the Flatbush Avenue subway, about ninety feet underground, a short distance from the Plaza entrance to Prospect Park, Brooklyn, were buried alive at 10 o'clock last night, when hundreds of tons of rock fell from the roof upon them. All are believed to be dead.

The cave-in completely blocked the tunnel and imprisoned nine other men who were working in the cut between the cave-in and the head of the tube.

The cave-in occurred about fifty feet from a shaft running up to the surface. The crash of the falling rock was heard by workmen at the bottom of the shaft, who found, when they tried to go to the assistance of their fellows, that the tunnel, which was about eight feet high, was choked completely with broken rock and wrecked timbers.

A number of employes of the Degnon Contracting Company from other branches of the subway were sent down the shaft, followed by firemen. From the appearance of the blank wall of rock they believed at first that the tunnel had been filled up for its entire length and that all the workmen caught inside it were probably dead.

After examining the roof and finding that there was apparently no loose rock threatening, a squad of men with picks and shovels began to work near the top of the heap. From there they could hear shouts from the chamber where the men were imprisoned. Lighting up the fallen mass with lanterns and candles, they found that there were irregular air passes running over the top of the fallen stone, which had not been piled quite high enough to seal up the tunnel entirely.

While not airtight, the blockade was sufficient to prevent intelligible sound from penetrating it. Communication was finally established when firemen and laborers, finding a spot at the top of the heap where small stones were heaped loosely, managed to shove through a long pipe, which they could use as a speaking tube.

Through this tube they learned for the first time what had happened. The spokesman for the imprisoned party said that insecure timber had been noticed and that Harry Bengon, the foreman, had called five laborers to aid him in strengthening it. Their efforts to put up the supports for the timber, according to the workmen, evidently shook the loose overhead rock sufficiently to send it plunging down upon them. They estimated that the cave-in extended for nearly a hundred feet. They said that there was no chance for any of the buried men to be rescued alive.

The men who were in the chamber were extremely anxious to know how soon they could be rescued. They were nervous, fearing further falls of rock.

The firemen and subway workmen estimated that it would take at least five or six hours to run a passage through which a man could crawl, because of the weight of some of the masses of rock which had to be removed. None of the nine men inside the chamber was injured.

Drs. Eis and Cohen of the Jewish Hospital and Dr. Wolf of the Long Island College Hospital, who were the first medical men to arrive, descended the ninety-foot shaft with their surgical instruments prepared to go to work in case any of the buried men might be found still alive. This was considered to be a possibility, because in some cases the huge rocks, which had fallen, leaned against one another in such a way as to form an arch with a small chamber under it in which air could circulate.

While several of the workmen handled the pick desperately to drive an opening through to the men in the chamber, others began to clear away the rock elsewhere in hope of finding the buried men. They listened in vain for the cries of men who might possibly have been caught alive in an air pocket. Priests arrived at the tunnel and waited to administer the last rites, should any bodies be uncovered in which life might linger.

Police reserves were called out from four stations to keep back the crowd which gathered about the mouth of the shaft after the news of the cave-in had spread. Relatives of many of the men in the tunnel came to inquire anxiously for their fate.

To give the men imprisoned in the chamber sufficient good air during the hours which they might have to spend there, a compressed air machine was introduced at one end of the pipe and fresh air driven into the chamber.

Public Service Commissioners Whitney and Kracke arrived shortly after the accident and began an investigation at once. They first questioned Faust Biada, an Italian laborer, who had been working in the tunnel and had a narrow escape from being caught in the cave, which showered him with sand and bits of rock. He said that one of the workmen, in picking at the sides of the tunnel, had loosened a block of wood on which one of the heavy upright timbers was standing. In trying to set the timber firmly on the block, the workmen evidently loosened the entire timbering structure, which was supporting insecure rock.

The Public Service Commissioners began an inquiry to ascertain whether the timbering was sufficient in view of the unsound character of the stone overhead.

At midnight the Public Service engineers, who had been directing the work of rescue, said that the imprisoned men were not in apparent danger, but that there was no hope of finding life in any of the men buried under the cave-in.

OBJECT TO BORGLUM STATUE

Butterfield Executors Say It Doesn't Resemble Civil War Hero.

Allegations that a statue by Gutzon Borglum of Major Gen. Daniel Butterfield, civil war hero, does not resemble the subject, and that there was unnecessary delay in the erection of the statue are made in the answer to a suit by the executors under the will of Mrs. Julia L. Butterfield, who left a fund for the erection of a heroic statue of her husband. The Gorham Company, which made the statue from the cast designed by Mr. Borglum, is suing on a claim assigned by the sculptor to recover a balance of $32,400 due on the $54,000 to be paid for the work.

The case came before Justice Bijur yesterday on an application by the plaintiff to advance the trial of the action, which was denied.

Professor Beard Declares They Are the Most Effective Social Workers.

Speaking at yesterday's session of the ninth annual New York city conference of Charities and Correction, Professor Charles A. Beard, Director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, declared that the best of all social workers was the Tammany district leader. Professor Beard was talking on the subject, "Public Administration and Social Work."

"In order to be effective in his community," he said, "the social worker must know the government of the community, its personnel, and its functions. He must know the courts, particularly the juvenile, domestic relations, and petty criminal courts. Tammany's district leaders visit those who are sick and in prison. Indeed, they help to keep out of prison many who have committed trivial offenses, and I would rather take the word of a district leader as to a minor offender than of a probation officer. They ask no questions and give out no pink and green cards."

Professor Beard pointed out that under two Tammany Mayors—McClellan and Gaynor—the Health Department was transformed into the greatest single public service of its kind in the world. John P. Gavit of Harper & Brothers spoke on "Publicity Methods in Social Work."

Last night's session was in the Surrogate's Court room, Brooklyn Borough Hall. Questions concerning probation and parole were discussed. The conference will end today with morning and afternoon sessions at the Leake and Watts Orphan House, 463 Hawthorne Avenue, Yonkers.

ENGINES TOO BIG TO USE.

STAMFORD, Conn., May 8.—New Haven Railroad officials are wondering, according to information obtained here today, what the company is going to do with certain large engines of the mogul type recently added to its rolling stock.

The engines are said to be part of a consignment of forty originally ordered for the Russian Government and acquired by the New Haven after the Russian fiasco. Ten of them have been delivered, but there is apparently little use for them, because they are so large that two cannot pass each other on the New Haven's double or four-track system.

There is not enough single trackage on the New Haven to keep the engines anything like busy, and at turnouts the problem of two of the engines passing each other would be presented again. It is also said to be impossible for some of the engines to enter certain stations without demolishing sections of the buildings.

ANNOUNCE LOUBAT PRIZES.

Prof. Alvord's "The Mississippi Valley in Politics" Wins $1,000.

The winners of the Loubat prizes of $1,000 and $400, which are awarded by Columbia University under the endowment of Joseph F. Loubat for the best published work in the English language on the history, geography, archaeology, ethnology, philosophy, or numismatics of North America, were announced yesterday by President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia.

Professor Clarence Walworth Alvord, head of the Department of History at the University of Illinois, receives the first award, and the second goes to Professor Herbert Ingram Priestley, Curator of the Bancroft Memorial Library at the University of California, and a member of the history department there.

THEATRES AID RED CROSS.

The first step toward organizing the theatre for the forthcoming Red Cross drive was taken yesterday. It is planned to cover the theatres thoroughly during the period of the drive, just as they have been covered for the Liberty Loans, and to this end a committee of prominent managers was appointed yesterday by William C. Breed, Chairman of the American Red Cross War Fund Committee.

The theatrical committee will be known as the Allied Theatrical and Motion Picture Team and will include William Fox as captain, Winthrop Ames, E. F. Albee, David Belasco, R. H. Burnside, William A. Brady, George M. Cohan, Pat Casey, Charles B. Dillingham, A. L. Erlanger, Morris Gest, Alf Hayman, Sam H. Harris, Marc Klaw, Marcus Loew, Lee Shubert, J. J. Shubert, Sam A. Scribner, Winfield Sheehan, A. H. Woods, and Adolph Zukor.

Headquarters will be opened today in the Subway Central Building at 1,465 Broadway. The committee appointed controls nearly 1,250 theatres in Greater New York, and sub-committees will be appointed which will embrace the various industries akin to the theatre, such as costumers, scenic artists, property men, wigmakers, and music publishers.

At a luncheon at the Hotel Astor yesterday, attended by about 300 motion picture theatre managers, generals were appointed to take charge of the work in the three important boroughs. They were: John Manheimer for Manhattan, John J. Whitman for the Bronx, and William Brandt for Brooklyn. The drive will begin on May 20.

ASKS LORD ABERDEEN TO EXPLAIN BENEFIT

A representative of the District Attorney's office interfered yesterday afternoon with an entertainment at Carnegie Hall, intended for the benefit of the Child Welfare Association of England and Ireland, which was scheduled under the auspices of Lord and Lady Aberdeen, on the ground that public misrepresentations had been made as to certain persons who were to assist in the performance, none of whom was present. Assistant District Attorney E. P. Kilroe, who had an interview with Lord Aberdeen at Carnegie Hall, took one of the agents of the entertainment to his office and questioned him, after which he made a report to Judge Swann, who thereupon requested Lord Aberdeen to appear at the District Attorney's office this morning to answer questions about the entertainment and the affairs of the association.

In the advertisement announcing the entertainment it was stated that Charlie Chaplin, a detachment of General Pershing's men, the French "Blue Devils," and representatives of the Anzacs would be present. Sergeant Blythe of the American forces in France was the only one of the advertised soldiers who appeared.

It was also said at the District Attorney's office that the management of the entertainment had been requested, after it was known that the majority of those mentioned in the public announcement would not be present, to announce to the audience that the box office would refund money paid for tickets and boxes. A representative of Lord Aberdeen said this offer had been made to the audience, not at the request of any one from the District Attorney's Office, but as the voluntary act of the management of the entertainment.

There were probably 800 persons in the audience, and only a few of them sought the return of their money, it was said. It was further asserted at the District Attorney's Office that $300 which was uncalled for by the patrons was ordered to be withheld from the Child Welfare Association by Mr. Kilroe, pending further investigation.

Charles R. Kearney, who said he was a friend of Lord and Lady Aberdeen and was authorized to speak in their behalf regarding the affairs of the association, denied that this money had been withheld at the box office. He said the money had been turned over to the person authorized to receive it, and that all bills in connection with the entertainment had been paid immediately afterward.

When Lord Aberdeen was asked for his version of the controversy last night he referred inquirers to Mr. Kearney, who said Charles Chaplin was responsible for the meeting. Captain and Lord and Lady Aberdeen are guests at the Ritz-Carlton, and in response to a telephone call to his room from Lord Aberdeen, Chaplin agreed to take part in an entertainment, providing it could be arranged for not later than Wednesday.

"Chaplin told Lord Aberdeen that he would have to leave town on Wednesday, but would delay his departure to appear in the afternoon," said Mr. Kearney. "It had been intended to hold the entertainment at the Metropolitan Opera House, but it was found that a clause in Chaplin's contract prohibited his appearance in any theatre, so we changed to Carnegie Hall. Mr. Williams, Chaplin's manager, said that in these circumstances there would be no obstacle to his appearance. It was the intention to have Chaplin auction a haversack that had been carried by one of the men in the charge of the light brigade at Balaclava, but he did not attend, and so far we have not heard a word from him."

Carl C. Diener, who was mentioned in the Carnegie Hall advertisement as the stage director, which Mr. Kearney said he was not authorized to do, as he had been engaged for other work, was taken to the District Attorney's office while the performance was in progress. According to Mr. Kilroe he was told by Diener that he had worked for the association, in which Lord and Lady Aberdeen are interested, for about two months, and had not received more than $200 for his services. Diener said a wealthy Brooklyn woman had contributed to his support for six years. The District Attorney requested a Mrs. L. A. Guile of Brooklyn to call at his office and tell what she knew of Diener's financial affairs.

The District Attorney said his inquiry would go further than the question of the entertainment of yesterday, as he desired to know what amounts had been collected and how applied. Lord and Lady Aberdeen have been engaged in this charitable work here since 1916. Mr. Kearney said the former Viceroy of Ireland and his wife had given lavishly of their means for this charity, and that every cent collected had been well applied. A public report was issued in February, and further verification could be made through the banking houses which remitted the funds to Europe.

RESTORING RAILWAY CREDIT.

The deterioration of railway credit is one of the greatest obstacles to winning the war. The deterioration is on the scale of the loss of a loan campaign, and that would be equal to the loss of a principal battle. The best way of removing the embarrassment of the railways in getting funds for enlarging their facilities would have been to allow them earnings enough to borrow on favored terms next to the Government itself. The course taken was the reverse. The costs of railway operation were allowed to rise, or compelled to rise by law, railway income was reduced to such an extent that the credit of the railways fell by billions in the value of their securities, and the Government itself is compelled to provide a half billion fund for the assistance of railways otherwise trembling on the verge of insolvency. The half billion is absorbed, earmarked, before a beginning has been made, and it is necessary to find other means. The course advised is to raise rates and wages together, the wages by some $300,000,000 and the rates by an unknown quantity.

There are merits about the proposal, but it is not the best course the conditions permit. Only in appearance is it a new departure. It is less absurd than raising costs without raising rates, but the new arrangements are under the control of the same influences as those which caused the trouble. There is so little sympathy with the railways even yet on the part of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which is drafting the contract for the operation of the roads for the Government, that it was decided at first not to allow any return on railway surplus devoted to increase of facilities. The policy of the commission had been to regard such payments on surplus invested in railway property as concealed increase of rates and to forbid it. Upon protest the concession made is to allow 3 per cent., or less than half of what the capital costs the railways now and even less than is paid on Liberty bonds. The Government has not yet paid its bills for the military services of the railways in 1917. Unless there is a change in sentiment, the increase in rates will have to be disproportionate to the increase of wages, if the railways are even to be allowed to maintain the present deterioration of their credit.

The best way would have been to raise neither rates nor wages, but to have found the railways in such condition that they could cope with the war demands on the old basis. The enactment of an increase of wages without relief regarding rates was no benefit to the men. Their cost of living increased, they say, more than their wages rose. That is how it comes about that they are asking another increase of wages, and would ask still others if allowed. Besides, the enactment of ten hours' pay for eight hours' work is a violation of the understanding that there should be no alteration in the relations of labor and capital. What has been gained is merely perception that it is costly to starve railway credit by arbitrarily raising costs alone. Even yet it is not possible to urge that costs should be reduced either by reducing wages to the old rate or by giving the railways preference in the cost of such materials as coal. That was proposed and declined. It follows that rates and costs should be raised proportionately, but there is much choice in the manner of doing it.

The German way of deferring to popular belief that the amount in the pay envelope tells the whole story is to raise wages, but to require that a proportion shall be taken for the loan offerings. It has the advantage that the things which rise together fall together. Just as it was easier to raise wages than rates, so it will be easier to reduce rates than wages, and the railways will be in the way of suffering a "secondary exploitation," as the Socialists say that consumers are robbed twice under capitalism. The British way is to raise wages in relation to the cost of living. That is better than taking back the increase of wages for loans in so far as it answers the argument of labor that no more than the railways can the wage earners live on what supported them before the war. That corresponds to the demand in some belligerent countries for "bread wages."

The American proposal for the same thing is to increase and decrease the purchasing power of dollars as the cost of living rises or falls, instead of increasing or decreasing the number of dollars in the pay envelope. Not all the experts are agreed on this proposal, and popular approval could not be won for it. It seems necessary to concede that the rise of wages shall be allowed, but that the increase of rates shall be enough larger to meet the entire increase of the railways' costs, as well as the wage earners'. In addition, it would be well to provide that the increases shall be limited to the period of the war, and that the process shall be reversed when the deflation of labor and capital arrives, as it always has. In short, the manner of treating costs and rates should be governed by the same formula, and should be equally adapted to reverse action. Some would add that profits also should be regulated simultaneously. As to that, there is this distinction, that it is impossible to regulate profits, whereas it is only difficult to regulate specific items of costs of living to both labor and capital. In any case, the formula is important, and it should not be too much affected by those whose practice has not been approved by results in regulation heretofore.

"HAPPY AUSTRIA."

In the Grand Hall of Ceremonies in the Vienna Hofburg on May 31, 1917, the young Emperor CHARLES, seated under a golden canopy on a golden throne, by the side of the Empress ZITA, now abominate of German and Magyar, opened the Reichsrat, the first one since the war began. Astraea was coming back at last, and a new order of things was to arise in Austria. How bitter now sound the words then so sweet:

> The interests of the State shall no longer be deprived of that effective furtherance which zealous co-operation of a popular assembly, rightly comprehending its power, judicious and conscientious, can provide.

In less than a year from that golden speech, the Austrian Parliament is shut up, the Hungarian Parliament is shut up. So was the Emperor's "truly constitutional speech" to be manifested in act. Against his masters in Germany, against the arrogant, unyielding Magyar magnates, what can an easy-going Emperor do?

> I trust that recognition of your serious responsibility for the formation of political conditions and your belief in the happy future of the empire, splendidly strengthened in this terrible war, will give you, honorable gentlemen, strength, in union with me, speedily to create conditions giving scope to free national and cultured development of equally privileged people.

How splendidly the empire has been strengthened! How grateful are the "equally privileged people"! The Czechs and Slovaks are firm for an independent Czecho-Slovakian State. The South Slavs are firm for a South Slav or greater Serb State. Disturbance or rebellion all through "happy Austria." Hungary and Austria quarrel for food. The German Socialists threaten to revolt. In the armies of the Entente fight soldiers of every disprivileged and oppressed Austro-Hungarian nationality. Such is that "unanimous collaboration "among the various races in the "State" which the golden speech hoped for. Disgusted, divided, bankrupt, starving, such is young CHARLES'S "venerable Austria."

POLITICS IN ENGLAND.

Aside from the old political grudge caused by Mr. LLOYD GEORGE'S supersession of Mr. ASQUITH, divers questions, semi-military, semi-political, are now to be settled politically in the House of Commons. Does the Government adequately support, has it supported adequately, the army? Have "the politicians" got the better of "the soldiers"? Has the Government in the instances alleged by General MAURICE misrepresented the military situation—the strength of General HAIG'S army—to the British people?

Behind the immediate outburst are matters of policy and of personality, the disputes about the Versailles War Council, LLOYD GEORGE'S famous Paris speech, unstilled rumora and rumblings about JELLICOE and ROBERTSON, and the frictions in the Air Ministry under Lord ROTHERMERE. Many old lingering sores are now to be lanced. Probably that is the best way. At any rate, it is the British way.

Under the stresses of war and with a depleted Parliament whose mandate was long ago exhausted, British Cabinet Government as it used to be has ceased to exist. There is a great number of Ministries and departments and what not, loosely connected and not at all connected by an enormous, complicated Secretariat. There is a Cabinet, a War Cabinet, no Cabinet. The Government has assumed monstrous, almost incredible, labors, new functions, mastery or monopoly of the great industrial activities. Meanwhile, by the side of or behind the creative military and naval production and supply, the enormous financial and economic tasks of the Government, a mass of social and political legislation has been passed or undertaken. Perhaps some or much of this, franchise extension, for instance, in particular woman suffrage, has been rather casually pondered. New enemies have thereby been raised for a Ministry supported by a coalition and putting radical measures through a house that is strong in Unionists and a polite House of Lords. With war work and with other work, the Lloyd George administration has been overworked. There has been some incoherence. Some important decisions have been taken without the knowledge of even the members of the War Cabinet. Win the war! That is the one purpose, and in both the Ministerial and the Parliamentary machine nothing else should be considered.

Mr. LLOYD GEORGE'S administrative achievements, his fruitful energy before and in his premiership, can hardly be denied, save by those irreconcilable opponents who have never forgiven his conquest of the House of Lords in 1909 to 1911 and his "subversive" budgets. It is to the honor of British patriotism that schemes to overthrow his Government have been frowned on generally. But if anybody can form a more vigorous Government, if anybody can do more to beat Germany, let him come into power. Is there such a man? To the British themselves, the freest critics in the world of their public men, to their comrade nations in the war, this is the foremost consideration. General MAURICE is known over here mainly as an engaging and a distinguished military writer, but he shows courage in making his charges, whatever be thought of their value or of his justification. General MAURICE, however, is but the representative of the military-political opposition to Mr. LLOYD GEORGE. A whole policy, not a matter of veracity, is involved. The Premier is one of the shrewdest of politicians and parliamentarians and a skilled evader of political disaster. His old chief, Mr. ASQUITH, will move today the resolution, which, if accepted by the House, will be taken by the Government as a vote of censure. Tonight will bring a debate and a division memorable in the history of British politics. Whether Mr. LLOYD GEORGE'S defense and that of Mr. BONAR LAW are deemed sufficient or insufficient, whether the Ministry stands or falls, there is nothing in the incident to discourage the enemies of Germany. In the long excitements of war, men's nerves may be a little more sensitive, but in London, as in Paris, a change, or attempt at a change, of Cabinets is but a signal or a demonstration for renewed vigorous prosecution of the war. Under all the ambitions and the meannesses of politics rests that fact.

ECONOMIZE FOR VICTORY.

Why shouldn't everybody enlist now, today, for the nation-wide economy campaign planned by the Council of National Defense? The call is for volunteers; for a silent army whose units will be unknown, pledged on honor to do without luxuries and to spend money on essentials and necessaries only. There is more, much more, in this movement than the spread of thrift to provide a fund for the purchase of Liberty bonds and War Savings Stamps.

There is no surer, no better, way of arousing the whole country, all the people, to stand by the Government in this war and to support the American armies in the field and the fleet at sea, literally to "root" for our soldiers and sailors, than to get everybody to be frugal and save money, as if thrift were the religion of patriotism, so that the war chest will never run low. The people are to fill it and keep it full.

If everybody subscribes, everybody will have a daily personal interest and concern in the war. The will to win it will thus be promoted and maintained. It is a war of peoples, and not solely of armies representing Governments, as too often has been the case in the past. If our people are not a unit behind the Government and devoted in every fibre to the triumph of the cause of freedom and civilization, the United States cannot put forth its whole strength as an ally and can never make its resources decisive.

A war in which one does not fight or to which he does not contribute from his purse is a war in which he is not really interested. He lets others fight his battles; he lets others pay the cost. He is a slacker, a bad citizen; he gives aid and comfort to the enemy; he is a man without a country. And there is something else in the nation-wide economy campaign. It will be educational and character building. Figuratively, it will make two blades of grass grow where one flourished before. It will double, treble, quadruple the money-savers. It will breed the thrifty until wasters and squanderers become negligible in the community. In short, aside from any question of patriotism and of winning the war, it will prove a boon to millions of our people.

There are still individuals—a census would show an astonishing number—who are not doing their "bit" in the war. In many cases they do not know how to do it. They can do their "bit" by swelling the army of volunteers for the economy campaign. The Council of National Defense does not ask impossibilities or expect privations and hardships as evidence of patriotism. It wants rational amusements to go on; people to have enough to eat, and to be comfortable and contented in their homes; no one to suffer for the necessaries of life; no one to be punished by self-denial. Perhaps what the Council of National Defense appeals for can be compressed into this terse statement by Director WALTER S. GIFFORD:

> The council urges all to refrain from unnecessary expenditures of every kind and to bear constantly in mind that only one thing is of real importance, and that is the winning of the war.

Every man and woman, every family, according to its way of living, knows what a luxury is and what can be foregone for the cause. Sacrifice will be voluntary and personal, and every dollar saved will help America to win the war and make Old Glory to wave in triumph. We must be a united country.

ALADDIN TIRPITZ AND HIS LAMP.

Students of the "Arabian Nights" recall what an inestimable advantage was often conferred upon the hero by the fortuitous acquisition of one of those useful implements—a ring, a key, a lamp—the rubbing of which summoned an all-powerful djinn to the aid of virtue in distress. But while the hero usually got hold of the lamp apparently for no better reason than because he was the hero, he found very shortly that a discriminating Providence had attached some handicaps. The lamp or the ring would work for anybody, not merely for him; if he let go of it for a moment, his enemy might pick it up, rub it, and summon the djinn to compass our hero's destruction.

Some such painful position is now that of the German adherents of the philosophy of unrestricted submarine warfare. By sinking everything in sight Britain's mercantile marine was to be obliterated and British mastery of the seas broken. This, of course, was the final step in the glorious purpose of making Germany the mistress of the seas; her merchant ships are to sail every ocean and have the exclusive coaling privileges at every port when Kultur has triumphed.

But lately it has occurred to certain German publicists that, even if all this happens, there is nothing to prevent the defeated nations from building themselves fleets of submarines, which in the biologically necessary next war will proceed to obliterate the German merchant fleet, just as the Germans say they are now obliterating England's. The advocates of the unrestricted are thus placed in a painful now-that-I-have-got-it-what-am-I-going-to-do-with-it position, which is not mitigated by the obvious reflection that they have not even got it as yet.

Stumbling search for an exit from the difficulty has lately been made by Dr. VICTOR HENSEN-KIEL, who argues that if Germany annexes the Azores as a submarine base she will be able to destroy the fleets of the enemy in the next war (presumably America) as thoroughly as the enemy can destroy hers; and that the prospect of reciprocal annihilation will restrain all nations from naval warfare in future, will lead to the freedom of the seas.

How little nations bent on war are likely to be restrained by considerations of economic waste and damage to future commerce has been pointed out, none too gently, by Captain PERSIUS, himself eager for a peace by reconciliation. PERSIUS sees no hope for freedom of the seas in wartime, and thinks that the only way to work for this desirable end is to try to preserve permanent peace—naturally the rankest blasphemy to the friends of unrestricted warfare. These, indeed, seem to be in a dilemma from which they can escape only by admitting that the Germans are the only people who are willing to sink merchant ships without warning; and while no doubt they are capable of acting subconsciously in dependence on the fact that their antagonists are gentlemen and they are not, they have not yet come to the point of admitting it. When they do, it will mean that a return to national sanity is in sight; and while no doubt this is far enough away, signs are not lacking that the sane minority which has persisted, however small, throughout the war is finding its numbers increased by recent happenings.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Daylight, Anyhow, Is Saved.

According to reports made by the officials of certain corporations engaged here in the manufacture and sale of electricity and gas used for illumination and as sources of heat and power, the setting forward of our clocks has not resulted in any such great saving of coal as was prophesied so confidently by the enthusiastic advocates of the daylight extension plan. Indeed, the officials declare that, if there has been any saving at all, it is too small for them to measure. These same authorities, however, admit that expenditures by consumers of the products in question have been decreased by from 5 to 10 per cent. How that could be so, with no decrease in the amount of coal burned, is a problem either insoluble or soluble only by accepting the theory that the two sorts of consumption are not closely connected—a contention which it will take physics of a wholly new fashion to support.

However it may be about the economizing of coal, there's no doubt that the promises made as to the other advantages of "daylight saving" have been kept to the letter and beyond it. The changing of the clocks caused nothing of trouble, confusion, or injury for anybody except a microscopic minority of people who either in ignorance or obstinacy failed to make the readjustment when other people did, and consequently, for a few hours, found themselves in one or another trivial way out of touch with their neighbors. All that disappeared well within a single day, and already the very fact of the change has practically been forgotten by everybody.

It is no harder now to go to bed and no easier to get up at the accustomed or necessary clock-hour than it was before, and though somebody does speak once in a while about what time it "really" is, such perversity is merely humorous, and nobody fails to enjoy and profit by the lengthening of the day's pleasantest part that has been conferred on us all by this beautifully simple—and absurdly belated—expedient.

The idea of abandoning it, ever, in peace or war, never enters any mind.

We Arouse German Indignation.

There is something peculiarly and characteristically Teutonic in the vehemence of horror with which the German press comments on the lynching of the man PRAGER. Papers that defended the sinking of the Lusitania; that saw only necessary severity in the systematic slaughter of hundreds of civilians in Belgium, that treat as a commendable form of military economics the enslavement and deportation of thousands of men and women from the occupied part of France, that exult over the bombardment of Paris from seventy-five miles away—these papers burn with rage because a drunken mob in a mining village hangs a German in a quarrel that seems to have been a "labor trouble" rather more than an expression of hostility to a real or imagined "allen enemy."

The affair was a miserable piece of business—an out-and-out murder—not to be defended or excused. But in the whole of the United States not one articulate voice has been raised in justification, or even in palliation, of the crime then committed. For it the American Nation is no more responsible than for any other murder, and is no less ready to punish the murderers if the difficulties that always exist in such cases can be overcome. Compared with 10,000 atrocities committed by Germans in Belgium and France, not to speak of half a dozen other countries where their armies have operated, the killing of PRAGER could almost be dismissed as an exhibition of bad manners, a manifestation of poor taste.

And they threaten reprisals on their American prisoners of war, in order that the lynching of Germans may not become a popular sport in this country!

A War Service for Golf Clubs.

Why not begin a nation-wide campaign advising all golf clubs in the United States to offer their club houses for the use of our wounded soldiers? As the war goes on our hospitals will not be able to take care of demands made upon them. The golf clubs are all well located, with good transportation facilities and good surroundings, pure air, clean, and away from the noise of cities, and, with very little work and expense, they could be made ideal for the purpose, and in most cases, if not all, players could still use the links. The Red Cross might take the matter up. It would not be necessary to use all clubs, but all should be offered, and the Government could select what was required.

THE SONG OF THE HOE.

To the fields of the turnip and beet;
And the song that they sing is the Song of the Hoe,
With its jubilant melody sweet.
A song for the wearisome pleasure of toil,
A song of the spade,
It's all in the Song of the Hoe.

"We, too, are good soldiers who gracefully bow
To the call of a land we love dear!
Of hearts that are true to their loved nation's weal,
Of honor and cheer for our own,
The loved who have left us alone
While they fight, as do we,
For the Flag of the Free!
We sing as we finish each row

THE DUTY OF NEW YORK REPUBLICANS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On behalf of a number of disinterested Republicans, who have exchanged views and who find themselves deeply concerned at the present political situation in the State of New York, I beg the courtesy of your columns to bring to public attention some matters of much more than ordinary importance.

It is the merest repetition to say that the problems which now confront the Governments of our State and nation are important and difficult beyond all parallel. They require for their handling and for the protection of the public interest the highest type of statesmanship and the best ability to be found in our entire citizenship. There never was a time when it was more impertinent or more unpatriotic for the mere office-seeker, the demagogue, or the ambitious mediocrity to push himself forward as a candidate for high office.

Yet it is at just such a time and under just such circumstances that we find Governor Whitman bending all the patronage and influence of his great office, as well as the whole machinery of the Republican organization, which, through his patronage, he absolutely controls, to secure a third nomination for the Governorship, in the confident expectation that he will thereby become a favored and perhaps a successful candidate for the Republican nomination for President in 1920. If this situation were not so fraught with public danger, it would be laughable in the extreme. The mere mention of Governor Whitman's name in connection with the Presidency must excite mirth. But what are the facts?

Under the operation of the so-called direct primary law there is no opportunity for Republicans to meet together in representative convention, to formulate party policy, or to confer as to desirable candidates for State office. The registered Republicans are, therefore, apparently at the mercy of one of three types of men: the demagogue, who is willing to spend his time and voice in advertising himself loudly and in playing upon the crudest emotions of the people; or the man of wealth, who can spend money to build up a personal organization and to conduct a widespread campaign of publicity; or the Incumbent of high office, who is able by systematic and unscrupulous use of patronage and influence to bend the party organization to his will, and by so doing to gain a highly favored place in any primary contest.

Governor Whitman is adroitly and cunningly following the course last named. Those men in the different county organizations who owe their present prominence and livelihood to his appointment are one by one announcing themselves in support of his ambition, and are thereby endeavoring to bring about a situation that will deter any other candidate, however eminent, from entering the primaries against him.

Has not the time come when, in the interest of the State of New York and of the nation, the great mass of patriotic enrolled Republicans should find a way to manifest their resentment at this attempt to treat them as if they were mere checkers on a political board, and take steps to conscript as their candidates for State offices and for Congress the ablest and most competent men to be found in the State of New York? If the nation conscripts the young man for battle, why should not the voters conscript the wisest and ablest men for legislative and executive service? Why should the field be left entirely to those who cunningly build up their personal machines and who use public issues and public dangers as mere opportunities on which to feed their own ambitions?

Upon what declaration of policies does the Republican Party propose, in November next, to appeal to the voters of the State of New York? The Democratic Party, particularly if it avoids the peril of Hearst, will almost certainly nominate a strong patriotic candidate for Governor, and put him upon a platform that will vigorously support the Administration in its conduct of the war. What answer do the Republicans propose to make to this appeal? They cannot stand on the record of Governor Whitman's administration, for it has been mediocre in the extreme, as well as highly personal, and it has at every point subordinated public policy to private ambition. Is the Republican Party prepared to be committed to the proposed constitutional amendment for national prohibition because the personal interest of Governor Whitman seemed to make it desirable that he should support that amendment at Albany last Winter? It will be interesting to see how far the Republican voters will permit themselves to be dragged from their fundamental principles of government, and from their traditional defense of personal liberty and personal independence, into the support of this highly obnoxious and most intemperate proposal just because Governor Whitman thinks that by so doing he will aid his own advancement.

Now is the time to think of these things and now is the time for Republicans, and independent citizens, who will have sooner or later to choose between a Republican and a Democratic candidate for Governor, to make their opinions and their influence felt. When the month of August comes and the primary day approaches it will be too late. The machinery will all be oiled and in motion, and in November tens of thousands of Republicans may then find themselves confronted by the necessity of voting for a Democratic candidate for Governor in order to punish a misuse of power by a Republican candidate for Governor, and to head off a silly and absurd ambition for the Presidency.

Reminders for Pacifists.

The last formidable offensive by the enemy at the front not having succeeded to their entire satisfaction, the Germans, we are informed, are about to launch another of their periodical peace drives. This will be good news to pacifists, to those alike who are fit inmates of an institution for the feebleminded and to those who, pro-Germans at heart, are nothing but wolves in sheep's clothing. We are quite prepared for the baaing and bleating of the fleecy flock; but, before they indulge again in their frothy phraseology, they will do well to remember some of the crimes of which Germany stands convicted before the world:

Belgium and France invaded, spoliated, and martyrized, their civil population taken into bondage, the first because she kept her faith, the second because she resisted the brutal invader;

Serbia, whose population has been systematically slaughtered;

Russia dismembered for having trusted Germany;

Syria and Armenia, whose people have also been systematically exterminated by the Turks, to whom Germany gave a free hand;

America, for two years provoked by a series of crimes, the crowning one being the dastardly sinking of the Lusitania.

And if the recapitulation of these monstrous acts, patent to the whole world, is not sufficient to bring a change of heart in the pacifist and make him hang his head in shame, let him then ask himself how long he would remain a pacifist if his wife, or sister, or betrothed, with hundreds of other women and young girls, were held in slavery behind the German lines.

Americans, now thoroughly aroused, will have no more of the hollow mouthing of the pacifist. His pitiful bleat of "Pea-ea-ea-ce" will be drowned in the While! Bang! Boom! of bullet and shell.

Fortunate Australia.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The welcome presence of an Australian contingent here on its way to aid in giving the coup de grace to the Hun invasion makes the following extract timely. My sister, who is devoting all her energies to war work, writes from Sydney, Australia, under date of April 3:

> The city is full of Easter country folk, and money flowing like water. It is the possession of so much wealth that makes the people here insensible to the tragedy of the war. No meatless or wheatless days with us. Plenty—and waste.

This seems to explain to some extent why the great island continent, in lavishing its treasure and sacrificing its best blood to help the mother country in her deadly grapple with the savagery of the Prussian hordes, is, nevertheless, opposed to conscription, as the recent referendum proved.

A Russian correspondent in THE TIMES of today said: "Let America send over to Russia a Lafayette." Yes, happily, America has a man of the size and type of Lafayette. It is Mr. Roosevelt. His name would thrill the whole of Russia and inspire hope in all patriotic hearts now in despair. His name in itself is a well defined republican, democratic program, and his personality is equivalent to a big army. Once in Siberia, Mr. Roosevelt would gather around himself over 100,000,000 loyal Russians, and the militarist Germany would be petrified with terror. Send Mr. Roosevelt to save Russia and the civilization.

A Sauerkraut Compromise.

The profound interest taken by your correspondents in the heated sauerkraut-choucroute-kapoosta controversy proves its intense national importance. This culinophilological discussion should not be closed too abruptly. The Spanish dictionary says sauerkraut is "col acida y fermentada." An idea! "Pickled and fermented cabbage," that Spanish formula is good enough. Let it go at that.

Cheers Help the Soldiers.

I am privileged to send THE TIMES readers an extract from a letter written by one of our soldier boys to his mother. It points the way for important work on the part of every one of us left on this side of the water. This particular soldier is now on his way to France from a Southern training camp, and it gives us an inside view of the soldier's appreciation of the support he craves and appreciates from "the folks at home." Those of us who remain may take a lesson from this and make it our business to give all our soldiers a rousing welcome wherever they appear and a hearty "God-speed" on their journey.

> I remember six months ago when we went South we stopped in several large stations where there were some hundreds of people waiting for trains. There was hardly one smile for us then, and those people stared at us as though we were the cause of the war. All along the line the same sentiment prevailed. I am very happy to say that things are different now. We were cheered all the way up, and everywhere we stopped a hearty "good luck" was the parting word. It makes a soldier feel better to know that the people are with him in sentiment if not in arms.

It is most encouraging to note also that the recent reception to the veterans of the old 69th, the "Blue Devils" from France, and the "Anzacs" from Australia has been everything that could be desired. All classes of our citizens have united in giving them a reception showing high appreciation for their services. Let us send all our boys away with a smile and a word of hearty good cheer. They will remember it; it will help them and do us good.

British Magazines Carry On.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There seems to be an impression among the reading public here that, owing to our participation in the great war, no British or French newspapers and periodicals are being received. This may or may not be due to German propaganda engendered by the fact that since April, 1916, no German publications of any kind—with the exception of those imported for the exclusive use of the United States Government and some of the leading American newspapers—have arrived in this country. It is a very different story with regard to British and French dailies, weeklies, and monthlies. These have been coming over in bulk with remarkable regularity, and it is worthy of comment that since the day when Great Britain declared war on Germany not a single weekly shipment of British or French publications consigned to their American agents has been lost. As on this side, however, and owing to the extreme scarcity of paper, prices have been raised considerably, but the imperturbable manner in which our allies are publishing their newspapers and magazines is additional tribute to their ability to "carry on" in the face of innumerable and unlooked-for difficulties.

Old St. John's in Varick Street.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just returned from a visit—a sad visit—to St. John's Church in Varick Street. The windows are broken; the door is inaccessible; dirt, decay, and neglect have worked wofully upon this church of many memories. But it has not been broken up. We may be thankful for that. The Varick Street improvement will leave St. John's untouched, even if bruised. But why should it remain a day longer battered and bruised? Dating from 1803, designed by John McComb, builder of the City Hall on the model of Wren's St. Martin-in-the-Fields, London, this beautiful building has a place in our hearts as a mother among New York churches—a mother, toothless, tortured, but still beautiful. Could not this mother among Manhattan's churches be restored and dedicated to the New York boys who have died for freedom? This venerable building, this tired but steadfast mother, might be their shrine and a meeting place for all who watch and wait, knowing that those who die for freedom walk with God.

DR. BOLDUAN WANTS LEAVE UNTIL NOV. 1

IS PRAISED BY COPELAND

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, yesterday received the resignation of Dr. Charles F. Bolduan, Director of the Bureau of Public Health Education of the Health Department. Dr. Bolduan asked that the resignation take effect on Nov. 1, and that a leave of absence with pay be granted from May 15 to Nov. 1. Dr. Bolduan is entitled to a month's vacation, and asked for the additional time to compensate him for the payments he had made into the pension fund in the last fourteen years.

The resignation and the request accompanying it will be passed on by the Board of Health. In announcing the receipt of Dr. Bolduan's resignation, Commissioner Copeland said:

"Personally, I am sorry that Dr. Bolduan is leaving the department. Before coming into the commissionership I had never met him. Dr. Bolduan is filled with enthusiasm for health promotion. His suggestions and advice have seemed wise. His knowledge of public health is unbounded.

"It is an unfortunate thing in America's civic life that the man higher up is rarely brought to the bar. Somebody down the line bears the criticism and takes the blame for the sins of somebody at the top. Dr. Bolduan loyally accepted the responsibility for what was really the order of his chief, and, in my opinion, there was nothing for Commissioner MacBride to do other than to fix the responsibility where he found it. Inevitably and properly, therefore, Dr. Bolduan came under the criticism of the investigators.

"It should be known, however, that the much-discussed weekly bulletin, while it is nominally and actually in the hands of its editor, Dr. Bolduan, is nevertheless under the strictest possible censorship of the Commissioner of Health. Every bit of manuscript is first submitted to the Commissioner. He reads and approves or disapproves. Page proofs come to the Commissioner's desk and are passed on by him. In short, then, the ultimate responsibility for the bulletin is the Commissioner's."

Commissioner Copeland denies that Dr. Bolduan had been forced out of the department because he was loyal to his previous chief, Dr. Haven Emerson. He was not prepared to say whether he would have filed charges against Dr. Bolduan if he had not resigned. The charges of Civil Service Commissioner MacBride, referred to by Dr. Copeland, accused Dr. Bolduan of using the publication of the weekly bulletin of the Health Department for "propaganda." Dr. Bolduan made no public reply. Lucius P. Brown, Director of the Bureau of Food and Drugs, who made a public reply to accusations of Commissioner MacBride, was suspended pending trial on charges to be served on him.

"If Dr. Bolduan's former chief was responsible for the articles in the bulletin, why was not responsibility fixed on him?" Commissioner Copeland was asked. "Ask Mr. MacBride," was the reply.

No arrangements had been made, Dr. Copeland said, for the conduct of the bureau by Dr. Bolduan's successor. He was under the impression that a civil service list would have to be created before the place was filled.

Abraham A. Lesser, a druggist of 359 First Avenue, was fined $500 yesterday by Magistrate Appleton for filling a prescription which was found to be 67.8 deficient in potassium iodine, a drug the cost of which has increased considerably since the war. The evidence was obtained against Lesser and the other persons convicted by inspectors under Director Brown of the Food and Drugs Bureau.

The following druggists were convicted of selling an adulterated mixture of rhubarb and soda: J. W. Fincke, 3,461 White Plains Avenue, fined $200; Louis Franklin, 144 Henry Street, fined $250, and Paul Harrison, 27 Canal Street, fined $150. Hyman Kesselman of 26 Suffolk Street, owner of a bakery, was fined $300 for having in his possession unwholesome and unfit cocoanut and almonds.

EDUCATION BOARD TO ELECT.

Officers Will Be Chosen at Annual Meeting on May 14.

At the close of its meeting yesterday afternoon the Board of Education held a secret conference with regard to the annual meeting, which will be held on May 14. There will be a reorganization of the Department of Education in all its branches. President Somers, the latter part of this week, will submit a report to Mayor Hylan on the work of the board since it came into existence in January last. It will deal with many subjects, including salaries of teachers and the elimination of the Gary plan. Among the subjects discussed yesterday was the election of an Associate Superintendent to fill the vacancy caused by the election of Dr. William L. Ettinger as City Superintendent, and it is probable that the choice will be made at the May 14 meeting.

Officers of the Board of Education will be elected at the meeting on May 14. Messrs. Somers and Wilsey, in all probability, will be chosen to succeed themselves as President and Vice President respectively.

Colonel Carty to Get Edison Medal.

The American Institute of Electrical Engineers announced yesterday that the presentation of the Edison medal to Colonel John Joseph Carty for notable achievements in telephone engineering would take place at the Engineering Societies Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, tomorrow evening. The medal was awarded to him by a committee for his work in establishing coast-to-coast telephone communication and for other notable work in his profession. Among the other holders of the medal, awarded annually since 1909, are Alexander Graham Bell, Nikola Tesla, George Westinghouse, Frank J. Sprague, Elihu Thomson, Charles F. Brush, and William Stanley. Colonel Carty was Chief Engineer for the American Telephone and Telegraph Company before he accepted a commission in the Signal Corps of the army.

Women Work for Rabbinical School.

Travis at 11 East Eighty-sixth Street, when the women present formed themselves into a number of teams to find 10,000 additional members. The value of the movement was discussed by the Rev. Dr. H. P. Mendes and the Rev. Dr. H. Goldstein.

5,000 NEEDED FOR RED CROSS ABROAD

More Than 2,000 Workers Must Be Recruited Within Two Months.

ERIC ALLEN MAKES APPEAL

There are more than 2,700 Red Cross workers in France, Italy and Belgium, and 5,000 more are needed, according to Eric Allen, Associate Director of the Bureau of Personnel of the Red Cross, who spoke yesterday to 1,000 delegates to the New York State Conference of the American Red Cross at the Waldorf-Astoria. More than 2,000 new Red Cross workers must be recruited and placed within the next two months in order to handle thousands of tons of supplies going abroad. Mr. Allen said:

"It is essential that we send high-class American men abroad. They are well received and treated. In Italy, for instance, they are treated as officers. We do not encourage any one on a salary basis, although in some instances we do pay salaries as well as necessary expenses. From now on the age limit will be increased and we will take no one under 25 years of age.

"Even then, the men of draft age must at least be in Class 5. No one with German antecedents for even three generations back will be accepted. It is a business problem and the men who meet all qualifications must bring strong letters to prove their loyalty before they are acceptable.

Gerhard M. Dahl, Chairman of the Second Red Cross War Fund Drive, which is to be held during the week beginning May 20, said that gigantic efforts were necessary now because of the failure of America to prepare earlier. Great applause greeted a proposal from him that the nation should erect a monument to the memory of Congressman Augustus P. Gardner, the preparedness champion, who enlisted when war started and died of pneumonia at Camp Wheeler. Mr. Dahl said:

"This is a war of attrition of men, of soldiers, of rifles and airplanes, and of the attrition of the morale of civilian populations as well. There has been an America complacent to such an extent that pacifism controlled it, and nothing or little was done by way of preparation from Aug. 1, 1914, to April 6, 1917. It is even difficult to call this state of mind mere complacency."

Harvey D. Gibson, General Manager of the Red Cross, reviewed some of the relief work in which the Red Cross is engaged. He said:

"There are three fields of relief, the work in camps and cantonments throughout the country, the work for the families of soldiers, and the work with soldiers in the camps in the countries of our allies, especially France. The canteen is the clearing house for human kindness and there are 700 canteen stations throughout the United States. We are now arranging for canteen work for the boys as they come home again. It is just as important, and already we have been informed that there are men on their way who will require medical attention when they arrive."

Miss Ellen L. Adee, Director of the Bureau of Women's Work, asked all local Red Cross officials to notify their members and others that there should be no let-up in knitting socks for soldiers. She said that the demand for them was large and constantly increasing.

MISS DU VIVIER A BRIDE.

The wedding of John A. O'Conner, a son of the late Thomas H. O'Connor, for years prominent in New York and San Francisco financial circles, and Miss Natalie Du Vivier, second daughter of Mrs. Charles Girault Du Vivier of 155 East Seventy-second Street, was solemnized at noon yesterday in the Lady Chapel of St. Patrick's Cathedral, which was decorated with Easter lilies and palms. The Rev. Father Theophile Wucher of the Church of St. Vincent de Paul, assisted by the Rev. Father Martin of St. Patrick's, performed the ceremony.

The bride walked with her brother, Ernest Du Vivier, who gave her in marriage. She wore a chiffon gown having a satin court train, draped with old point lace and wore a rose point veil, an heirloom in the family, and carried a prayer book. Her only attendant was her young niece, Miss Susanne Du Vivier. Mr. O'Connor's best man was Franklin Brush of Boston. There were no ushers. Hana Kronold, the 'cellist, a friend of Mr. O'Connor, played during the ceremony.

The ceremony was followed by a reception, and a wedding breakfast for the families at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Maurice La Montagne, 37 Park Avenue. After their honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor will live in this city.

Mr. O'Connor, who is a Yale graduate, class of 1887, is a widower with one daughter, aged 10, Lucretia O'Connor. His first wife was Miss Frances Brush of Boston. Mr. O'Connor is a sculptor. Mrs. O'Connor is a member of an old French family.

WILSON CHEERS VETERANS.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—President Wilson witnessed an inspiring scene at the National Theatre tonight when he attended the performance of "Three Wise Men." In the audience were forty of the fifty soldiers of Pershing's army who came to this country recently to assist in the Liberty Loan campaign, and at the request of the people they appeared on the stage. The house cheered and kept it up during a brief speech by Sergeant John J. Heffernan, who was in charge of the party.

Sergeant Heffernan said that he and his men were glad to be home, and particularly glad to see their President. There was great cheering at this. Sergeant Heffernan went on to say that the first million American soldiers sent to France would be followed by another million, and still another million. This delighted the audience, which rose to emphasize its enthusiasm.

President Wilson joined in the demonstration and after the men had left the stage asked that they be brought to his box. He shook hands with each of them to the accompaniment of more cheers from the audience.

MARCUS MAYER DIES; ONCE NOTED MANAGER

Marcus Mayer, former manager of many prominent operatic stars and actors, and at one time an associate of Henry E. Abbey in the management of the Metropolitan Opera House, died at a private sanitarium in Amityville, L. I., yesterday, in his seventy-seventh year. Until recently Mr. Mayer had lived at the Lambs Club, where he was one of the oldest members.

Mr. Mayer was born in San Francisco, and in his youth served in the pony express in California, and was later employed as a driver of a stage coach by the Wells Fargo Express Company. Afterward he became the editor of a newspaper in San Francisco.

In association with Henry E. Abbey, Mr. Mayer was the manager of Sarah Bernhardt on her first tour in this country. He was manager for Adelina Patti on her first tour of America in 1881, and also accompanied her on a South American tour. In 1882 Mr. Mayer managed the American tour of Edwin Booth, and a year later was manager for Mrs. Lily Langtry, who is now Lady Hugo de Bathe.

Among the other well-known actors with whom Mr. Mayer served as manager were Christine Nilsson in 1883-1884, and Fanny Davenport. He was also manager of Henry Irving and assisted Mr. Abbey in the management of the Italian Opera Company. Mr. Mayer's last contract was with Mme. Calvé in 1904 for a tour of this country, Mexico, and Cuba.

Of late years Mr. Mayer had lived in London for extended periods, where he was at one time associated with George Edwardes, the manager of the Gaiety Theatre.

Mr. Mayer had been ill since Dec. 31, 1917, when he was stricken near the Lambs Club. It was said at the time that he was suffering from a hemorrhage of the brain.

APPEAL TO THE PRESIDENT.

Patriotic Societies Ask Wilson to Suppress German Papers.

At a meeting of the American Defense Society and the American Relief Legion yesterday afternoon at the Hotel McAlpin a resolution was unanimously adopted to be sent to President Wilson, Governor Whitman, and Mayor Hylan, urging them to use their influence to have German language newspapers suppressed until after the war.

The American Defense Society and the American Relief Legion earnestly urge you in your official position to use all your influence to have the German language newspapers suppressed in the United States for the duration of the war. It is known that during the last twenty years the Kaiser and his agents have used the German language press as a medium to conduct a propaganda in the interest of Germany. It is undoubtedly time that some drastic action be taken, and that the German newspapers should not be permitted to be published in the language of the enemy. The spirit of America is rising. The movement has spread to all States. The State Governors' meeting at Washington the other day demanded that drastic action be taken to stamp out the German language press. In two weeks twelve German newspapers in the United States have suspended publication. We urge you to take immediate action in this matter.

It was further proposed to write a letter to the Presidents of the New York City Women's Clubs, urging them to expel their pro-German members and to have the German language eliminated from their clubs.

Because one South Orange newsdealer refused to discontinue the sale of German papers the South Orange Village Trustees have passed an ordinance prohibiting the sale or distribution of German language papers or magazines. A penalty of $10 is provided for each violation.

NEW YORK SUFFRAGE ACCEPTED BY ANTIS

WANT TO DEFEAT RADICALS

So far as New York State is concerned the fight between the suffragists and anti-suffragists is temporarily at an end. An announcement to this effect was made at an Executive Committee meeting of the Women Voter's Anti-Suffrage Party at the Park Avenue Hotel yesterday when the leaders decided that woman suffrage so far as this State is concerned should hereafter be accepted as a fact, and that the antis should now concentrate their efforts upon the proper performance of the political functions which the vote bestowed upon them.

Out side of the State boundaries the party will continue to oppose the passage of the Federal amendment and the adoption of woman suffrage in States where it has not yet come to pass. But within New York State their main effort will be directed toward co-operating with established parties in a fight against radicalism, especially such radicalism as the Socialist and pacifist elements claim to represent. Mrs. Charles S. Fairchild, who presided at yesterday's meeting, in explaining the new stand taken by the antis, said:

"The time has now come when the suffrage question in this State has ceased to be paramount. It is up to all women suffragists or anti-suffragists to do their duty at the polls, now that the responsibility of voters has been placed upon them, and it will be the aim of our party to get our vote out at its greatest possible strength so that it may present itself as a strong support to sound and conservative government. While our ultimate purpose is to obtain the resubmission of woman suffrage in this State so that the women themselves may vote upon the question, it is our immediate object to utilize that vote now to the best possible advantage in opposing radicalism and socialism, which were chiefly responsible in imposing the vote upon women against the will of the majority of them."

The leaders of the party issued an appeal to the anti-suffrage women, in which they say:

The anti-suffrage women of New York State, enfranchised by men against our will, believe the ballot, however unwisely bestowed, to be a binding obligation. We have, therefore, determined to take up the political duties forced upon us, and to this end have organized ourselves into the Women Voters' Anti-Suffrage Party, thus taking the customary and necessary means of "getting out" our vote in use among men voters.

We must oppose with the full anti-suffrage strength of this State the passage by the United States Senate of the Suffrage Federal amendment, both because it over-rides State right and because it takes the decision of this question out of the hands of the people where it belongs and puts it in the control of politicians in Congress and the legislatures, who in turn are controlled by suffrage lobbies. We women must remember that since becoming voters our position has changed. A new duty has been imposed upon us. We neglect it at the nation's peril. If we fail to vote, we are moral shirkers.

We call upon all women who agree with us not only to register and enroll in a political party on May 25 in order to use their influence in the selection of candidates. If you do not enroll in a party on May 25 you cannot vote at the primaries in September, when party candidates are nominated. We further call upon all women who agree with us to enter their names and voting residence on the cards of the Women Voters Anti-Suffrage Party in order to mobilize the majority of the women electorate for political defense.

We still hold the conviction that politics are bad for women and that women are bad for politics.

While most leaders were unwilling to make any statement so far as gubernatorial candidates were concerned, Mrs. George Phillips stated that the antis would render a valuable service by appearing in force at the polls and showing how unpopular woman suffrage was by "sending Wadsworth to the Governor's chair and returning Whitman to where he belongs."

SCHWAB IS ORATORIO HEAD.

Succeeds Andrew Carnegie, Who Resigns After 30 Years' Service.

Charles M. Schwab, for some years the sustaining patron of the Bach Choir of Bethlehem, Penn., was unanimously chosen President of the Oratorio Society of New York at a meeting of its Board of Directors held yesterday at the home of Clara B. Spence. Mr. Schwab succeeds Andrew Carnegie, with whom he was long associated in the Pittsburgh steel mills. An official announcement of the change was made after the meeting.

"Mr. Carnegie has been the President of the society more than thirty years," the announcement said, "and it seemed to him necessary to retire, on account of his advancing years, from all organizations with which he has been connected. His resignation was regretfully accepted."

Mrs. Andrew Carnegie was elected one of the Vice Presidents at the meeting, and the others were Miss Spence and Dr. John P. Munn. The conductorship of the Oratorio Society was offered for another year to Walter Damrosch, who resumed that post last season.

WAGE INCREASES TO RAILWAY MEN

ceiving over $240 will be increased to $250.

Employes who have received increases since Dec. 31, 1915, however, will receive the increases now recommended by the Wage Commission, less the amount of increase already granted. This application of the system adopted by the commission is explained as follows:

"Reductions in hours," the commission holds, "are not to be regarded as increases in pay. This rule is made necessary, first, by its justice, for it is not to be contemplated that hours are reduced to decrease earnings; and, second, by the impracticability of applying any other rule. In some cases the decrease in daily hours did effect an increase in wages paid, by reason of overtime, but in other cases, where the railroads adjusted themselves to an eight or nine-hour day, there was no increase in the daily compensation. To differentiate between these cases would be an interminable task. Moreover, we assume the good faith of all reductions in hours as being what they pretend to be.

Hints at "Play of Other Forces."

"There are some few cases where the roads, by reason of abnormal conditions, largely local and arising out of the extreme competition in certain trades, have granted wage increases which will well nigh cover, if not altogether cover, the increases here made. As to those who have received such increases, we advise no other course than that the scale be adhered to, for it has its foundation in principle and not in the compelling force of any unusual competitive conditions. In no event, however, should there be any reduction in wages from those now obtaining.

"The railroads must, however, maintain their complement of workers, and if by meeting fairly, as here, the needs of the time, this end cannot be secured, there must be allowed play for other forces than those we have recognized."

Government Not Coerced.

"Things came to a head," the report went on, "just before the Government took over the railroads. Another three months of private management, and we would have seen much more extensive concessions in wages, or there would have followed an unfortunate series of labor disturbances. The Government has, therefore, now to meet what would have come about in the natural course.

"Indeed, the impatience of the men was only allayed, after Government intervention, by the assurance that the matter of wages would be promptly taken up, and that the awarded increases would be retroactive as of Jan. 1 of this year.

"The Government now enjoys this position of distinction: It is not yielding to threats; it is not compelled to a course by fear of any unpatriotic outburst; it is not making concessions to avoid disaster. There has been no hint that such a policy would be pursued by those who have it within their power. The right thing 'at this time,' a measure of justice, consideration for the needs of the men, whether organized or unorganized, whether replaceable or not replaceable—these are the standards that we have sought to meet. By what amount have the railroad workers been disadvantaged by reason of the war, and how may that disadvantage be overcome with the largest degree of equity, assuming that, in common with all who do not wish to exploit the opportunities which the war affords, these workers cannot have and will not expect a full meeting of the entire burden?"

The commission holds that it would be dangerous to the best interests of the nation in wartime to establish a shorter day, but warns that "society will come to see that there is a maximum which is beyond the plimsoll mark of wisdom and a minimum that makes society in many ways the sufferer. The line of moderation, the medial line, is one that must be proved by experience." The report continues:

"While the commission is strongly disposed to a standard day in so far as the nature of the service will permit it, its firm judgment consequently is that the existing hours of service in effect on the railroads should be maintained for the period of the war."

The commission holds also that the existing rules concerning overtime should also be continued during the war and should be taken up, along with the problem of hours of service, at further deliberations by a permanent labor commission.

Pay for women, when they do the full work of men, should be the same as that of men, the commission holds. It calls attention to the need of throwing safeguards about conditions under which women work, especially if war conditions, as now seems probable, will call for the employment of many women in arduous work connected with the railroads. The report calls attention to the fact that many women already have "entered the shops, engaged in handling freight and baggage, and have even been employed upon tracks."

Under the commission's recommendation male apprentices from 18 to 21 years of age shall receive 75 per cent. of the increases granted, and those under 18 years one-half of the increases. Those who have been graduated to the full status of journeymen before they have reached 21 years are to receive the full benefits of the reward.

A stand is also taken for the open shop, it being recommended that "members of organizations and non-members must stand upon the same footing."

Readjustment of Big Salaries.

"The total compensation for the year ended December 31, 1917, paid to such officials is approximately $30,000,000. The individual salaries varied from $5,000 to $100,000. It is reasonably certain from the facts gathered by the commission that a substantial readjustment of such salaries may be made and the efficient operation of the railroads promoted thereby. Such readjustment of salaries, however, presents an individual proposition as applicable to each official. Some salaries may well be abolished altogether, others greatly reduced, while in some cases of lesser paid officials an increase would be welcomed.

"The commission recommends that during the period of Government conduct of the railroads no salaries paid to officials who are not essential to the operation of the roads shall be charged as part of the operating expenses, and that a careful study be made of the proper relation between the salaries of the higher officials and those of their subordinates, with a view to readjustments in the interest of the highest efficiency of the service.

"There should be constituted a tribunal or tribunals to continue the study of railroad labor problems, composed in part, at least, of men experienced in this kind of work—for as to these problems there can be no finality.

Brotherhoods Disappointed.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Leaders of the four principal railway brotherhoods found tonight on examining the Wage Commission's report that they had been recommended for less than half the increases they had asked of the railroad managements before Government control started and which they repeated before the commission. Their demands had been for an advance of somewhat less than 40 per cent., and increases for them averaged less than 20 per cent.

Some union leaders, who anticipated that the commission's recommendations would not be for as great amounts as they had asked, already have appealed to Director General McAdoo to amend the proposed scale to give them higher pay.

Beginning with the advance of $20 a month to workers receiving $46 a month and less, the recommended increases follow a sliding scale, varying with each dollar of advance in the basic pay. The percentage declines steadily as the higher paid classes of employes are reached, but the amount to be added to the wages increases gradually to $34, the largest amount recommended, which will go to workers making from $84.01 to $85 a month. From that point the amount decreases like the percentage.

From $46.01 to $50 the recommendation was 43 per cent., other increases being: 50.01 to $51, 42.35 per cent.

$239.01 to $249 the increase was a flat amount sufficient to make the monthly pay $250.

Concrete Examples.

A few concrete instances of the new rates, compared with the old, will serve to illustrate the effect of the recommendations. Men receiving $2 per day in 1916 will be paid $2.82, $3 will be increased to $4.23, $4 to $5.20, $5 to $6.05. Employes paid $75 per month in 1916 will be raised to $105.75, $85 per month to $119, $100 per month to $131.75, $110 per month to $140.25, $125 per month to $153, $150 per month to $174.25, $200 per month to $216.75.

The employe who received 20 cents an hour for an eight-hour day will get 29¼ cents per hour; 30 cents is increased to 42½ cents, 40 cents to 56 cents, 50 cents to 65 cents, 60 to 73⅓, 70 to 82, 80 to 90½, and 90 to 99. The increases in hourly rates cease at $1.19⅓.

Employes who are now paid on the mileage basis are to have their mileage rates increased as follows: Road or freight engineers and motormen, 15½ per cent.; road freight firemen and helpers, 34½ per cent.; road freight conductors, 20½ per cent.; road freight brakemen and flagmen, 30¼ per cent.; road passenger engineers and motormen, 11¼ per cent.; road passenger firemen and helpers, 28¾ per cent.; road passenger conductors, 15 per cent.; road passenger baggagemen, 38¼ per cent.; and road passenger brakemen and flagmen, 30 1-3 per cent.

Declares That Methodists Are Not in the Dry Federation.

To the literature of the controversy among the Prohibition forces was added yesterday a statement from William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the New York Anti-Saloon League, which was accompanied by an open letter to William Jennings Bryan, in his capacity as President of the National Dry Federation. Mr. Anderson takes Mr. Bryan to task for some of his epithets and justifies his own characterization of Mr. Bryan as a joke, on the ground that he had let himself be cajoled into accepting the Presidency of the Dry Federation.

To show that the demand for his dismissal as Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, made in resolutions adopted by a conference of temperance and prohibition advocates held in Albany on Monday, had not affected his standing with his own organization, Superintendent Anderson embodied in his statement resolutions adopted by the directors of the league, upholding him in the face of the attack that culminated in the Albany conference. The resolutions, however, were adopted before the Albany meeting.

In his open letter to Mr. Bryan, Supt. Anderson charges that the National Dry Federation on its letterheads includes the Methodist Church of America as one of its constituent bodies. Supt. Anderson writes that he is a member of the Temperance Board of the Methodist Church, and says that there is no justification for this representation.

Mr. Anderson adds that he will contribute $500 to the National Dry Federation if Mr. Bryan can prove that the Methodist Episcopal Church is one of its constituent bodies.

War Activities and Public Utility Companies

The successful prosecution of the war depends to a considerable extent on the quality of the services rendered by public utility corporations. The war has emphasized the necessity of developing public utilities, as they not only supply gas, electricity and transportation, indispensable in times of peace, but in addition enable plants now operating for the Government to run at maximum efficiency.

FINANCIAL MARKET

Stocks Continue Strong and Active—Crop Report Favorable—Rails Gain.

With almost as much activity as marked Tuesday's strong market, stocks again changed hands yesterday under the influence of an abundance of good news. The rise in the leading steel issues was halted by profit taking after the very substantial advance scored in the last few days, and United States Steel and Republic closed fractionally lower. Elsewhere leading stocks made fresh gains, with the shipping and railroad issues coming prominently to the front. Industrial Alcohol, Reading, Marine, Chesapeake & Ohio, Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies, and New Haven were particularly strong, but numerous other issues gained from 1 to 5 points.

It was again noticeable that dealings were for the most part professional, yet with signs of a growing interest on the part of the public. The day's news was of a kind that traders appreciate. The war news has been much more favorable, although its good effect has been mitigated to some extent by the threatened crisis in the British Ministry; the later data on the Liberty Loan have shown an even wider distribution than seemed possible in the last hours of the selling campaign, the monthly crop report was exceedingly encouraging, and reports were in circulation concerning an impending railroad rate increase. The latter was undoubtedly an outgrowth of the expectation that the commission which has been investigating the adequacy of railroad wages will announce today an award adding $300,000,000 per annum to the present pay rolls, with another $100,000,000 for deficiencies in the past. In financial circles it was said that to cover this heavy increase in railroad operating expenses the Interstate Commerce Commission will be asked to authorize an increase of from 20 to 35 per cent. in freight charges, with an advance in passenger fares to 3 cents per mile, but there was no official intimation from Washington that this would be permitted. It is perfectly obvious, nevertheless, that, if the expected wage increase is granted, there must follow a substantial readjustment in revenues or the Government's deficit will be much larger than that allowed for.

The crop report reflected the beneficent influence of excellent weather conditions. The condition of the wheat crop on April 1 was 86.4 per cent., as against 76.6 per cent. a month earlier, and the present outlook for this year's yield of Winter wheat has been raised from 560,000,000 bushels on April 1 to 572,539,000 bushels on May 1 showing. If this crop is realized it will be the third largest in history. The Weather Bureau reports that conditions have been generally favorable for the week which has passed since this report was made up.

Investment houses report a widening circle of inquiries which is already having its effect on bond quotations. There are several new issues under consideration by banking houses, but a decision as to their acceptance will depend on the way in which small offerings now being put out are taken and upon the attitude of the new committee on capital issues. Call money was a little more plentiful yesterday, with most of the day's loans made at 5 per cent. Trading in the new Liberty 4¼s for cash will start on the Stock Exchange tomorrow.

LONDON MARKET IS QUIET.

LONDON, May 8.—The stock market was quieter, reflecting the lull on the western front. Investment issues were occasionally easier, due to a slackening demand.

Japanese securities were strong, attributed to sinking fund buying. Chilians hardened in response to a steady upward movement in the rate of exchange. Mining shares and oil declined on realizing, but were readily absorbed. Industrials ruled steady, with electric issues in demand.

Money was in abundant supply, and created a better demand for discounts.

PARIS, May 8.—Trading was active on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 58 francs 75 centimes for cash. Exchange on London 27 francs 25½ centimes. Five per cent. loan 87 francs 80 centimes. The Bourse will remain closed tomorrow.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Dealings in Liberty 4¼s on Friday.

The Stock Exchange announced yesterday that trading in the new Liberty bonds would begin on Friday morning. The transactions are to be handled "regular way"; that is, deliveries will be made and bonds paid for on the day following the making of sales. The bonds will be cleared at the Stock Exchange Clearing House as are the other Liberty issues under a rule recently put into effect.

Steel Men Meet.

The General Committee of the American Iron & Steel Institute, which is cooperating with the War Industries Board in producing steel for the munition factories of the allied nations and the shipyards, held a long meeting at the offices of the steel corporation yesterday. Presumably, additional measures were discussed for carrying out the pledge to the War Industries Board to increase the output and facilitate shipments to points of consumption.

Managing Roads in Receivership.

The further development of Director-General McAdoo's ideas regarding one of his difficult problems—the management of railroads which he either found in the hands of a receiver or have since been thrown into receivership—is indicated by the report of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad Company, issued a few days ago. On April 27, 1918, President W. J. Jackson states, he resigned as receiver of the road, being succeeded by Thomas D. Heed, while Mr. Jackson was immediately appointed President and put in charge of the road's operation. The general counsel of the road remains as counsel to the new receiver, but the rest of the administration is put under Mr. Jackson. This is in line with the scheme first worked out in the case of the Denver & Rio Grande, for making one official operating manager, subordinate to Mr. McAdoo, and another receiver with control only over the financial operations and assets of the road, responsible to the court.

Profit-Taking Sales.

Selling pressure against the steel stocks, notably Steel common, and certain specialties yesterday indicated profit taking on a substantial scale at times. The relative ease with which the selling was absorbed encouraged holders of those stocks who had not been moved to dispose of their shares.

Awaiting Investigation.

An official of one of the prominent airplane companies yesterday reminded a caller that six months earlier he had told the same caller that presently there would be a terrific uproar regarding the airplane program, with charges of graft, incompetence, and what not, and that he—this official and his company—had even then been getting ready to be investigated. He also recalled the fact that at that time he remarked that the curious feature was that one of the prime causes of delay in the program was the fear of investigation which sat upon the shoulders of the Government officials concerned and its effect in making them meticulously and at times ridiculously careful to have every item of business like Caesar's wife.

April Copper Reports.

The Kennecott Copper Corporation's output in April was 5,704,000, an increase of 22,000 pounds over the March result. The Braden Copper Company, controlled by the Kennecott, fell back, turning out 4,722,000 pounds, compared with 5,248,000 pounds in March. The Greene-Cananea Company reported 4,100,000 pounds, a decline of 380,000 pounds from March. The April working period had one day less than March.

Distillers Dividend Meeting Day.

Directors of the Distillers Securities Corporation said after the dividend meeting yesterday that the next meeting for the purpose would be on the third Thursday in September. The payment of one-half of 1 per cent. regular and 1½ per cent. extra, which was ordered yesterday, will be made July 18, more than two months hence. The next payment would be due around Oct. 18. It is the desire of the Directors to have not more than a month intervene between the day of declaration and the day of payment hereafter.

A Chain Store System's Profit.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, the largest of chain store concerns, earned a profit of slightly more than 5 per cent. in the last fiscal year on a gross turnover of $126,004,958. Of the $6,533,940 net income, the company paid 36 per cent. to the Government in taxes. The final balance of $3,571,064 compared with $2,688,264 in the preceding year when the gross business was 40 per cent. less, but no special war taxes had to be paid.

Finding New Jobs.

One result of Government control of the railroads has been to supply many of the big bond houses with very welcome and efficient recruits to their selling forces, previously depleted by the calls to the colors. The Government has ordered the discharge of a great many men previously employed by the railroads as freight solicitors, and many of them have gravitated to Wall Street, where they have become bond salesmen, and are reported to be doing very well at it.

Norwegian Ships at Work.

It is understood in shipping circles that upward of 50,000 tons of the Norwegian shipping which have been tied up in American ports since last February, and which have gradually been acquired under charter by the Shipping Board, have already been put in service.

An Epidemic of Pools.

If there were actually as many pools at work in the stock market as Wall Street gossip speaks of, brokerage house loans would be higher than at any time this year. When a stock moves forward more than a point in one day it has become the fashion to ascribe the rise to "pool operations."

LIMITS RUBBER IMPORTS.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Carrying out its announced intention of placing crude rubber on the list of restricted imports, the War Trade Board today issued regulations holding imports to the United States to a basis of 100,000 tons annually and limiting issuance of licenses for such importation to 25,000 tons from May 6 to July 31. The cut amounts to more than one-third of America's imports, as rubber came in at the rate of about 157,000 tons annually.

The restriction, determined upon after consultation with the War Industries Board and in pursuance of the Trade Board's policy of conserving tonnage for military requirements, was ordered into effect immediately by the Bureau of Imports. The requirements of the United States and its allies will be met in full and the rest of the 25,000 tons licensed will be parceled among manufacturers of rubber products on the basis of their consumption during 1917.

Colonel Samuel Colt, President of the United States Rubber Company, said, concerning the restrictions upon the rubber trade: "I am sure there is nothing in the plan which will work serious hardship to the rubber industry. The United States Rubber Company will do all in its power to induce retailers to refrain from exacting unnecessarily increased prices."

STEEL TRADE STRIVES TO INCREASE OUTPUT

FULL AID FOR GOVERNMENT

Replogle's Statement Indicates That War Requirements Are Approximately 20,000,000 Tons.

With the tremendous scope of steel consumption in war materials and ships clearly in their minds, as outlined by J. Leonard Replogle, Director of Steel Supply, at the recent meeting of steel men, manufacturers this week have devoted all energy to increasing production. Buying of iron and steel for general use, trade reports say, has stopped short. So far no consuming industry has been forced to close down, but some are preparing to restrict output in radical fashion.

"The steel trade is coming quickly into the new stride on war work," says The Iron Age. "Even those of its leaders who were in the best position to gauge the Government's demands in the remainder of the year were surprised at the size of the job cut out for them by the War Industries Board. There was almost equal surprise at Washington at the final showing after four months' efforts to get estimates from Allies, the army, the navy, the Railroad Administration, and all essential industries.

"There is still the belief that sixty days' concentration on war needs and the appeal this may make to workmen to increase output will relieve the situation in no small degree by July 1. An important steel company is passing the pledge for full co-operation with the Government down the line through its operating departments, as well as its sales organization, to be individually signed.

"On the other hand, some items in the Government schedule are growing. The steel that must be sent to Great Britain and France on General Pershing's pledges is now put at 1,250,000 tons, an increase of 500,000 tons over the estimate of four weeks ago. In the last week General Pershing has cabled for 100,000 tons of rails, and of these 76,000 tons will be supplied from the 67½-pound rails rolled for Russia and still stored in this country. A Pennsylvania mill will roll the remaining 24,000 tons in 80-pound sections.

"The April pig iron statistics bear favorably on the war steel situation, showing the largest month's output since May, 1917. At 3,288,211 tons in the thirty days of last month, production was at the rate of 109,607 tons a day, against 3,213,091 tons in March, or 103,648 tons a day. The gain was thus nearly 6,000 tons a day.

"On May 1, with 354 furnaces in blast, an increase of ten in the month, production was at the rate of 113,440 tons a day, which would mean 41,400,000 tons of coke iron in a year. In 1917 the production of coke iron was 38,270,000 tons. Such a gain over last year's rate is highly significant."

The Iron Trade Review says:

"Possessed for the first time, through official advice, of a clear understanding of the tremendous scope of war demands, iron and steel makers are acting swiftly to carry out their plans of 100 per cent. output for Government purposes.

"All orders not of a strictly war character are being set aside and plants are being concentrated exclusively on priority tonnage. The Steel Director's amazing statement at the recent New York meeting of the steelmakers indicates that direct and indirect requirements for the Government and its allies, as at present defined, are approximately 20,000,000 tons."

THE COTTON MARKET

Prices Advance from 8 to 10 Points on Extremely Quiet and Restful Day.

The local cotton market yesterday enjoyed an extremely quiet and restful day. The weekly and daily weather reports formed practically the only subjects of comment or discussion, and as the weekly report was much less favorable than had been expected, the general tendency of the market was upward. There was no considerable business done, however, at any stage, and toward the close the market was listless, with many gaps at the ringside. The close was steady at a net advance of 8 to 20 points.

There were reports of rather more buying by spinners' representatives, but, if so, they did not appear in sufficient volume to offset the temporary withdrawal of trading commitments. Spot cotton in the better grades is still held at very high premiums above futures, but no particular amount of sales are being reported. There was also talk of a quiet accumulation of long contracts by a group of operators who had liquidated heavily on the recent declines. None of these factors, however, appeared to affect yesterday's market, which everybody was content to let drift. It opened from 10 to 25 points off, more due to lack of bids than to abundance of offerings, and sagged down 10 or 15 points further before the weather report.

This induced a spasm of covering by shorts which brought prices back and carried them from 25 to 41 points above Tuesday's close, but there was no body to the advance, and after the more active floor traders had realized on their morning purchases, taking the edge off the advance in the process, there was nothing left to disturb the placidity of the market. Exports yesterday were 25,438 bales.

PLAN BIG WHEAT YIELD ON IDLE INDIAN LANDS

Through inquiries that have been made of several Wall Street banks it was learned yesterday that plans are under way for co-operation between the Government and a group of Western farmers to bring about a material increase in the acreage of wheat which will be planted next year. It is proposed to make use of Indian reservation land now lying idle and Eastern capital to attempt a gigantic farming enterprise with the primary object of adding to the nation's wheat supply, but it is believed that the project can be worked out to show a handsome financial return at the same time.

Back of the new idea is Thomas D. Campbell of Los Angeles, a wealthy landowner who is already growing wheat in the Dakotas and California on an extensive scale. Efforts to get Mr. Campbell who has been in New York for several days to explain his plan brought only the information that it was in the hands of Secretary Lane of the Department of the Interior, who would have to do the talking. Bankers with whom some of the details have been discussed understand that he came East with a proposal that Secretary Lane release 40,000 acres of Indian land for wheat growing during the war, and that the Secretary, after thinking the matter over, suggested that the experiment be broadened to take in 200,000 acres. Mr. Campbell was prepared to handle the 40,000-acre farm with his own and his associates' resources, but the more ambitious plan offered him involves banking support.

It is proposed to use land in the Dakotas and Montana which has never been turned over, and to employ Indian labor to a large extent. Owing to the size of the preparations it will not be possible to do much this year but it is hoped to get machinery on the ground and to erect the necessary housing facilities in time to put in Winter wheat. Some of the territory under consideration is capable of showing a crop of 20 bushels to the acre the first year, but with the average lowered by less productive fields it is estimated that if the full 200,000 acres can be worked there should be an addition of approximately 3,000,000 bushels to the country's wheat supply. At the prevailing fixed price this crop would bring $5,000,000.

Bankers who had not gone into the project thoroughly said that it was in a tentative stage and that no financing would be attempted until the details had been arranged with the Washington officials. It was pointed out that with no interest or taxes on the land the prospects of a satisfactory profit from the venture were excellent, and it is proposed to keep labor costs down to the minimum by the use of tractors and other power machinery on a scale that would not be possible on a smaller tract. The initial experiment is to be made in Western Montana if the project receives the support which has been promised.

LAUDS WOMEN'S WAR WORK.

Roosevelt Urges Volunteers for Vassar Nurses Training Camp.

Mrs. Elon Huntington Hooker of the Recruiting Committee for the Vassar Nurses' Training Camp to be held this Summer to prepare women for war hospitals gave out yesterday a letter written by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, praising the training camp idea and expressing the hope that the young women would volunteer in large numbers. Colonel Roosevelt said that he admired the way Vassar College girls had volunteered for farm and other work to release men to fight at the front, and he praised the Vassar ideas as "fine practical patriotism."

It was announced by the committee that registration blanks for the camp were coming from young women in every State, and that the facilities of the camp would be taxed to the limit. The announcement said that the enrollment showed "that the young women of America are as eager to serve our country as their brothers of the same age." Applications for the camp are still being received at 106 East Fifty-second Street.

Canadian Trade With the U. S.

Extract from a recent editorial in the New York Sun

"Even as we fight the enemy of mankind, we plan and act to expand our commerce with the world; and there is no richer prize for this country than the Canadian market. For years before the war Canada had been buying from us at an increasing pace not approached by any other country. While we were dreaming of Latin American markets Canada had come to be a larger customer of the United States than all the rest of the nations of the Western hemisphere put together. The rewards of our barter with the hundreds of millions of people in the Orient had become a bagatelle to what we were gaining from Canada. . . . And after the war, if we are not so selfish as to disregard a duty and such fools as to throw away the opportunity, Canada will yet lead all."

NEW LAW Concerning TRUST INVESTMENTS

To Trustees, Executors and Administrators

This new law extends the scope of trust investments to include Parts of First Mortgages on Real Estate. Such parts or shares in first mortgages are evidenced by Certificates issued by a Trust Company or by a Title Guaranty Company of New York. The provisions of the new law include ample safeguards for the protection of holders of such certificates. Thus, guaranteed first mortgage certificates, so largely issued by the Title and Mortgage Companies of this City, become legal investments for trust funds.

Trust funds may now be invested promptly in Guaranteed Mortgage Certificates, in any amount, without the usual delays and loss of interest incident to finding single mortgages for funds awaiting investment.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday closed active, with prices firm, though fractionally lower in the majority of issues. Profit-taking was much in evidence throughout the session, especially in the steel shares, which, after a strong opening, closed with fractional net losses. A rally, led by the railroad stocks, near the close caused an improvement in the general list. The railroad issues were prominent factors in the day's trading.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The feature of the day in the wheat trade was the Government crop report, which was published after 2:15 P. M. The report was a little disappointing, inasmuch as the acreage abandoned was 13.7 per cent., compared with a ten-year average loss of 10.89 per cent. In acres this meant 5,778,000, which brought the area standing to harvest to 36,392,000 acres, compared with 27,430,000 last year. The condition of the crop, however, was higher, being placed at 86.4 per cent., compared with 78.6 per cent. In April and 73.2 per cent. last year. On this acreage and condition the department estimates a final yield, provided climatic conditions and other factors during the balance of the season remain normal, at 572,539,000 bushels, compared with a final crop last year of 418,070,000.

RYE.

The local market was dull and nominal. Minneapolis broke 35c per bushel, with cash rye there quoted at $2.25. The Government report indicated a crop of 82,629,000 bushels, compared with 60,735,000 last year.

CORN.

The corn market was weak and lower early, the July position in Chicago declining 2c a bushel under liquidation prompted by exceptionally favorable weather for planting the new crop and owing to a slow spot demand. When oats rallied, however, there was active covering, and prices at the close were only slightly changed from those of Wednesday. In the local cash market kiln-dried No. 3 yellow was quoted at $1.55, No. 4 yellow $1.47, cost and freight New York.

OATS.

The oats market was active, and prices showed sharp fluctuations. Early there was heavy selling, especially of May, owing to further reports of a weak cash position and that 150,000 bushels had been delivered on May contracts in Chicago. The technical position of the market was believed to be stronger, and when the cash position firmed up on an improved domestic demand prices advanced rapidly, with shorts on the buying side. The close was firm, with prices ½c to 1c net higher. The local cash market was steady; natural quoted at 83@84c, clipped white 85@88c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was firmer, reflecting an advance in the price of live hogs and a bullish interpretation of reports that the Government was making allotments for export. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 23,000, estimated for Thursday 30,000; Kansas City received 17,000 and Omaha 14,000 hogs.

COFFEE.

After an unchanged opening, yesterday's coffee market sagged off rather sharply on liquidation by outside longs and moderate trade selling by local trade interests believed to have been against purchases of coffee in the cost and freight market at slightly lower levels. The market closed at net declines of 11 to 16 points. The local spot market was dull, with prices nominally unchanged. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The fact that arrivals of raw sugar at United States Atlantic ports are becoming more regular has enabled refiners here to operate on a more normal basis, and, while new business is being taken on a moderate scale only, the demand appears to be less urgent, and there is no apparent scarcity of sugar in any section of the country. Refiners are reported to be pretty well caught up on old business, and it is believed that they will be in a position shortly to care for the increased demand which will come with the approach of the early canning season. The International Sugar Committee reported heavy purchases of raw sugars, including 400,300 bags Cubas, May shipment, at 4.985c, cost and freight, and 22,300 bags San Domingos at 4.740c, cost, insurance, and freight, (for Canada,) now afloat for New York.

Candles Are Going Well.

Candle manufacturers with offices in this city report that Spring and Summer business is developing very substantial proportions. It is said that the vogue for candles both for illumination and for decoration in Summer cottages is growing very strong in many sections. A fairly wide variety of novel shapes and fancy combinations of harmonizing colors is selling, as well as those of more conservative designs. It is said also that many retail merchants, both in and out of the metropolitan district, are covering their requirements further into the future than has been their practice in normal times.

Small Trade in Gray Goods.

Yesterday was another rather inactive day in the local gray goods market, with second hands still the only real sellers. Additional business was done by them on 38½-inch 64-60s at 17 cents for shipment during the last quarter of the year, and they also sold spot Northern goods of this construction at 18 cents. For delivery in July they disposed of 39-inch 68-72s at 18½ cents. June lots of Southern 38½-inch 60-48s sold for second hands at 15¼ cents. There was little of interest in the coarse goods end of the market. Mill asking prices on printcloths closed this way:

Mock Seam Hose Selling.

It is said that mock seam hosiery for women is proving very popular in all parts of the country. They are being made up in the better grades of silk hose, and, because they require less labor in the process of manufacture, they can be turned out in considerably greater quantities than the regular seamed hose which they are made to imitate. They are most actively sought in black, tan and white. Buyers are said to be very eager for supplies, and price seems to be a secondary consideration. Stocks of these as well as of other hosiery lines, however, are said to be very limited.

Demand for Serge Dresses.

In medium priced dresses, including those designed especially for women who are in business, the navy blue serge models made along neat simple lines continue to be the most generally sought numbers. Light weight serges which are used for this purpose are not plentiful, however, and toany dress manufacturers are finding it very difficult to supply all the garments that are wanted. One manufacturer said that he could have sold fully three times as many of these dresses as he had if he could have obtained the necessary material.

Activity in Wash Skirts.

The separate skirt trade in this city is said to be very active just now, with a great deal of attention being paid to models made of washable materials of various sorts. There is reported to be a general tendency on the part of retailers throughout the country to take on fairly liberal supplies now for the Summer season, in anticipation of higher prices and perhaps a scarcity in certain lines later on. Linen and cotton rep are said to be among the favored materials in this business, and light colors, usually pastel shades, are generally preferred.

Planning the Fall Fashion Show.

Plans are already being laid by the Retail Millinery Association of America for its Fall, 1918, fashion show, which is to be held on Aug. 8. While the place where the show will be held has not yet been decided upon, it will take place in this city if possible. A committee made up of Joseph Mayer of R. H. Macy & Co., Miss Rose Simmons of Stern Brothers, and Milton Wolf of Joseph's has this matter in charge. The forthcoming show will differ from preceding ones in that it will "predict" the market instead of depicting it. In this way it is hoped to supply inspiration to many manufacturers who might otherwise hit the wrong trail in the early part of the season.

Buyers can obtain all kinds of goods quickly by sending a prepaid lettergram to The New York Times. This will be published the next day as a short advertisement on the Business Page of The Times, read by thousands of wholesalers. Cost—50 cents for each line of 6 words. —Advt.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Continued speculative interest in well-located upper west side residential properties was a feature of yesterday's real estate market. Frederick Brown, operator, purchased from the Sigerts Realty Company, of which Herbert R. Limburg is President, the six-story elevator apartment house known as the St. Regis, at the northwest corner of Broadway and 152d Street. The house, which covers a plot 100 by 150, carries an annual rent-roll of about $35,000. It accommodates forty-eight families and contains two stores. Julian T. Saxe was the broker in the transaction, which was negotiated on an all-cash basis.

Resale of $250,000 Lenox Hill Residence.

Charles E. Danforth has sold 18 East Seventy-second Street, a new six-story American basement residence, to a well-known New Yorker for cash for his own occupancy. William B. May & Co. negotiated the sale. Mr. Danforth acquired the property about two years ago through the same brokers from Felix Warburg, and rebuilt it for his own occupancy at a cost of about $100,000 from plans by Beekman & Nash. The house, which is one of the finest in the district, contains two electric elevators and has been held at $250,000.

Exporters Acquire Stanton Street Building.

Operator Buys Long-Held Parcel.

Charles Laue, the operator, has purchased from the estate of Louis L. Lorillard the property at 387 and 389 West Broadway, running through to 73 and 75 Wooster Street, between Broome and Spring Streets, with a frontage on each of these streets of 55 feet and a depth of 200 feet. The buildings on the site were destroyed by fire some time ago, and the purchaser plans to erect a new structure on the site to be leased for the occupancy of one tenant. The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company was the broker in the transaction.

The property, which has been held at $50,000, has been in the ownership of members of the Lorillard family for more than seventy-five years, and formerly was utilized as part of the site of the old Lorillard tobacco and snuff factory.

Resale of Heights Taxpayer.

Negotiations are now pending for the resale of several of the other properties. Mr. Bearns purchased the Subway Building from the Henry Morgenthau Company in April, 1917. Byrne & Baumann negotiated the transaction closed yesterday.

Bronx Apartment Buyers.

The Benenson Realty Company purchased from the Bernhard Weil Construction Company the five-story apartment house at 507 East 179th Street, on a plot 50 by 105, between Third and Bathgate Avenues. The structure was built about two years by the selling company, and has been held at $50,000. In part payment the buyer gave 310 West 127th Street, a four-story flat, on a lot 25 by 99.11.

The Ulster Court Corporation, Joseph G. Abramson, President, has purchased from Joseph Glass the five-story new-law apartment house at 3,426 Kingsbridge Avenue, on a plot 50 by 125, one block north of the subway station at 231st Street. The house shows an annual rent return of about $9,500, and was held at $70,000. Heller & Sussman were the brokers.

New Home for Banker.

James A. Stillman, the banker, has leased an apartment of seventeen rooms and six baths in the new apartment house at 270 Park Avenue, recently completed by the Vanderbilt Avenue Corporation, Charles V. Paterno, President. The present Stillman home is at 9 East Seventy-second Street. Pease & Elliman and Douglas L. Elliman & Co. were the brokers in the lease.

Important Commercial Leases.

M. & L. Hess, Inc., subleased for the Hardman & Sons Piano Company the eight-story building at 599 to 603 Eleventh Avenue, southwest corner of Forty-fifth Street, for a term of years at an aggregate rental of $100,000. The lessee is the Republic Storage Company, a newly formed corporation, which will use the building for the storage of leaf tobacco. As a condition of leasing these premises it became necessary to find a new location for the lessors, and M. & L. Hess procured the six-story building at 8½ to 12 Jones Street from the Greylock Building Company, represented by the West Side Bank for Savings. This building contains about 45,000 square feet, and was leased for a term of years at an aggregate rental of $125,000.

Government Leases Old Club Building.

The building formerly occupied by the Racquet and Tennis Club at 23 to 31 West Forty-third Street, has been leased by the Government for the period of the war as a barracks.
